4872 WOMEN REGISTERED

GUILD'S PROTEST

Was Utterly Ignored by the Russian Government Officials

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 22.—Ambassador Guild's representations on behalf of American Jewish citizens whose passports are ignored by the Russian government have been ignored.

Acting Secretary of State Neratoff sent the usual stereotyped reply that all passport questions were under the control of the department of the interior. The new minister of the interior, M. Makaroff, is more anti-Semitic than the late Premier Stolypin. He is now engaged in attacking those Russian Jews whose educational diplomas entitle them to live outside the Jewish pale. They are compelled to observe stricter registration regulations than even domestic servants.

WOMAN DROPPED DEAD

She Was Stricken While on Her Way to Work

Mrs. Mary A. Lord, wife of George I. Lord, aged 40 years, dropped dead in Cushing street early this morning. Mrs. Lord left her home at her usual time this morning going to her work. She seemed to be in the best of health, for she never complained of being ill. When she reached 173 Cushing street, she dropped to the sidewalk, and when she was picked up, life was extinct.

TAKEN FROM JURY

Court Orders Verdict for Defendant in W. H. Penn Case

In the superior civil court, with juries, this morning in the case of Rebecca Goldman, administratrix of the estate of Abraham Goldman vs. William H. Penn, Judge Morton took the case from the jury, ordering a verdict for the defendant. This is the case of the bricklayer who was drowned in the canal, during the construction of the new Massachusetts mills in East Merrimack street a year ago last September. The defendant had the contract for the carpentering work and it was alleged that through the carelessness of the defendant or his employees the deceased stepped on a loose board that covered a hole in the floor and was precipitated into the canal. When the plaintiff's case had been put in yesterday afternoon Messrs. Trull & Wier for the defense made a motion to have the case taken from the jury and the motion was overruled by the court. The arguments for the defense were heard after a few witnesses had been heard Judge Morton ordered a verdict for the defendant.

RALLY EX-MAYOR Casey

THE POLICE BOARD

This is Not the Time to Increase Wages

It is understood that an effort may be made to increase the pay of the police officers 25 cents a day before the present board loses its control of the police department.

While other departments are short of money it would be highly improper for the police board to grant an increase of 25 cents a day in the police department. That increase would amount to $3000 per annum and it would also add to the amount of the pensions, present and prospective. The police board will do well to let this matter pass over to the new government for decision. An increase of pay now would probably be followed by an effort to have Lowell exempted from the provisions of the pension law.

RECORD BREAKER

Vote at Primaries Will be Largest in City's History

The problem of handling so many extra voters at the polls is bothering not only the registrars of voters but all others who are conversant with and interested in political affairs. It didn't dawn upon even the wisest of them all that the voting population of the city would be increased almost 50 per cent in a few days, but that's just what has happened. Before the women started registering for the pending election the checklist contained the names of only 519 women and up to and including yesterday that number had been increased to 4872. The registrars allow that that's going some.

Here is a very interesting table, gotten up by Clerk King of the board of registrars. It gives the number of women registered in the different wards up to the time of the present rush for registration and the increase since the present rush began:

The Original List
Ward 1	21
Ward 2	12
Ward 3	17
Ward 4	8
Ward 5	33
Ward 6	25
Ward 7	14
Ward 8	14
Ward 9	147
Total	519

The Additions
Ward 1	542
Ward 2	323
Ward 3	745
Ward 4	547
Ward 5	460
Ward 6	353
Ward 7	557
Ward 8	675
Ward 9	640
Total	4872

Thus it will be seen that the number of names added is more than ten times greater than the number of women qualified to vote last year.

The registration yesterday by wards, was as follows:

Wards	Women	Men
2	74	2
3	150	6
4	125	7
5	91	9
6	33	6
7	178	5
8	140	3
9	143	5
Total	1065	60

Chairman Allard of the board of registrars announced today that the office of the board would remain open tonight so long as there was any one to be registered. The hours are supposed to be from 1 p. m. to 9 p. m., but it is optional with the registrars, in this instance, as to when they shall close an "if you are in the line when curfew rings don't abandon hope, for the registrars will not close up shop until the coast is clear."

Edward T. Goward of the school committee was a caller at the office of the board of registrars this forenoon and he took occasion to compliment the registrars upon their almost flawless check list for the state election. Relative to the anticipated rush at the polls on election day Mr. Goward said he thought the trouble could be overcome if the women would go to the polls between 1 and 5 o'clock. "The polls," said Mr. Goward, "will open at 12 m., and close at 9 p. m. Now if the women would go to the polls between the hours of 1 and 5 o'clock I think the crowd could be handled in good shape. As a rule there is very little doing at the polling booths between one and five and that would be the best time for the women to vote."

WEST CENTRALVILLE

Live and Growing District---Many Improvements in Progress

That portion of the city commonly known as West Centralville will soon be a village by itself if its population continues increasing as it has done for the past ten years. At the present time it is one of the most thickly populated corners of Lowell, and many new buildings are going up. The residents in that section of Lowell can purchase anything from a tin to a house without going across the river.

THE BEEF PACKERS

Striving Hard to Secure a Stay of Proceedings

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—With the last word of District Judge Carpenter yesterday, that "unless a stay order is granted, the case will proceed next Monday" still uppermost in their minds, were just as busy watching the activities of opposing counsel. Close watch was being kept on Washington, where it was said, Attorney Austrian had gone today with the appeal papers. It was the belief of counsel for the government that he would endeavor to gain a halt in the trial by appealing to the justice of the supreme court. Rumor had it that the packers intended appealing directly to Chief Justice White. This move was considered unlikely by others engaged in the case because it was argued that if the chief justice should be appealed to and refuse, then it would be practically useless to appeal to any associate justice. Therefore, it was thought that an appeal would first be made to an associate justice. It is argued by counsel for the defendants that each justice has the power, during recess, to issue a stay order on an appeal for a decision in a habeas corpus case. The question of whether the packers would go to trial next Monday, it was believed today, hinges entirely on this question of power. Whether any further moves would be taken before local federal courts was a matter of conjecture. The appeal taken from Circuit Judge Kohler's decision in the habeas corpus proceeding with the constitutionality of the criminal provision of the Sherman anti-trust law as a basis and the subsequent postponement of the hearing by Judge Carpenter of the trial gave counsel for the packers ample time to arrange surprises for the government lawyers and these were momentarily looked for.

BOXING GOSSIP
Billy Mulvey, who is to meet George Stone in the semi-final at the Lowell Social and Athletic club Friday evening, is training daily for his coming bout, and is reported to be in fine condition. Mulvey is a clever boxer but never paid much attention to getting into condition before. Now he is preparing carefully and should give a good account of himself. Stone, his opponent, keeps in shape all the time and the pair should make a fast bout. The bout between Al Delmont and Chick Roskin of New Bedford will attract many boxing fans from out of town, for the bout was originally scheduled for Boston and there is great interest in it outside of this city. Delmont is one of the cleverest bantams that ever donned a mitt, having met all the topnotchers in his class, while Roskin is a young boxer who is coming along fast. The preliminary will be given and the bouts will start at 8.30 sharp.

BILLERICA
There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Billerica board of trade Monday night and many matters of importance were discussed during the evening. The feature of the meeting was an interesting address by J. L. Park of Boston. Rev. Charles H. Williams presided during the evening. The board of selectmen met Tuesday night and transacted routine business and also gave a hearing on the petition of the N. E. T. & T. Co. for the location of a pole in High street.

CHELMSFORD
The town is to have some hot games of basketball this winter for at a meeting of basketball enthusiasts held at the firehouse, Monday night, a league was organized. Arthur W. House was chosen president, and Fred Carl, secretary and treasurer. A league of four teams was formed, composed of practically the same members as last year. The teams are: Firemen, captain, H. W. Sweetser; Pirates, captain, Roy Montgomery; Tigers, captain, Charles Douglas; Alumni, captain, Fred Carl. The schedule of games was arranged, the first a double header, to be played between the Alumni and Pirates and the Tigers and Firemen on December 2. The majority of games will come on Saturday nights.

MATRIMONIAL
The marriage of Mr. William C. Jackson, son of Dr. and Mrs. William B. Jackson of 329 High street, and Miss Mabel A. MacIver, was solemnized last evening at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. A. C. Wheelock, 157 Nesmith street, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. M. Craig. The bridegroom is well known in this city, where he lived until a year ago when he went to Milwaukee to accept a position in the tanning business. The young couple will make their home at 771 Maryland avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.

MANY CANDIDATES

Seek Offices in L'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique

Mr. Elzear H. Choquette of New Bedford, and formerly of this city, who for many years he successfully conducted the Lowell One Price Clothing company, is a candidate for treasurer general of L'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique at the coming election of this society which will be held in Providence, R. I. on Dec. 12. This convention was called by Auditor Chaffee who made an inspection of the society's affairs, and who will at that time gave the final report of his findings.

L'Union St. Jean Baptiste is one of the strongest fraternal orders in New England and its actual treasurer is Mr. Philippe Boncher of Woonsocket, R. I., and it is claimed that the campaign for this office will be one of the biggest in the history of the organization, for both candidates are capable men and they both count a host of friends in the society. Mr. Choquette is a charter member of Carillon council of this city, and he was its first president. He is also a member of several local societies among them being the C. M. A. C. of which he is a past president. He was also president of Visitation, a Zehnau of New England, and he presided at the last convention of the union held at Woonsocket, R. I. Other candidates in line for treasurer, are Norbert Descelles, banker of Woonsocket, R. I., and an ex-senator of the state of Rhode Island, and Mr. Olive St. Denis, real estate dealer of Fall River.

The candidates for president up to the present time are President Felix Gathuau of Southbridge, Henri T. Ledoux, Esq. of Nashua, N. H., and Edouard Cuddeux of Holyoke, Mass. The following are candidates for secretary: Phylome J. Hammond, secretary pro tempore of the organization and Alexis Bisson, both of Manchester, N. H. Dr. G. A. Pellerin of Wrentham, Mass., a former member of the general board of officers, Dr. Edouard A. Rochette of Worcester, Mass., and Dr. F. A. Ruest of Pawtucket, R. I., are candidates for medical examiner. Mr. Arthur Beaucage, former editor of "L'Etoile" of this city, is also a candidate for secretary general. The Lowell delegates to the convention are Adolphe Bouchard of J. N. Jacques council, Arthur Beaucage of Carillon council, Henri Lemaitre of Laval council, and Pierre A. Brousseau, president of District council, No. 5.

J. N. Jacques Council

J. N. Jacques Council of the union held a well attended meeting in the Centralville Social club rooms in Lakeview avenue last night with President Albert Barotte in the chair. It was decided that a committee of the council meet with the other councils of the city to make arrangements for the quarterly meeting of District council, No. 5, to be held in St. Louis' parish, this city, on Jan. 14.

At this meeting will be delegates from all over the state and they will attend high mass in a body at St. Louis' church where a sermon on the order will be preached by one of the priests of that church. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon a large meeting will be held in the convent hall at which time the installation of the officers of the District council will take place as well as the installation of the officers of the three local councils.

The local councils are very much interested in the coming election of the union, but how they feel on the question of candidates cannot be known, but a sure thing is that they approve the candidacies of Messrs. Elzear H. Choquette and Arthur Beaucage for treasurer and secretary, respectively.

TURNED ON SPEED

ARRESTED CHAUFFEUR MADE DASH FOR LIBERTY

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Shots fired by a detective who was taking him to the police station in a stolen automobile yesterday failed to halt Frank R. Chase, a chauffeur, charged with stealing the machine of A. S. Porter in Boston and bringing it to this city. The chauffeur, instead of driving to the police station as ordered, started speeding along at 50 miles an hour in an opposite direction through the streets of the Bronx and refused to slacken down. The detective shot close to the chauffeur's face, but Chase in reply said: "Go ahead; if you kill me we'll all be killed," and turned on more speed.

H. V. Chamberlain, a garage owner of Boston, who caused Chase's arrest, was obliged to climb down on the swaying running board and disconnect the battery before the car could be brought to a stop.

The chauffeur was then handcuffed and taken in a trolley car to the station. He was held in $1500 bail.

GIRL WAS MURDERED

She Was Shot by Lover She Had Rejected

WALTHAM, Nov. 22.—Giovanna Natoli, aged 17, was shot and killed last night by the man she refused to marry with whom the victim made her home, about 6.30, a few minutes after the girl had arrived from her place of employment.

Miss Natoli, who was employed at the cotton mill, had just taken her seat at the supper table when the door quietly opened and a man thrust his arm through the open space and shot her.

His revolver was within four feet of her when he fired. So quickly did the assailant do his work that he had disappeared in the darkness before the inmates of the room realized that the girl had been injured.

Mrs. Delosa soon regained her composure and gave the alarm. The girl, who had dropped to the floor without a word, was lifted onto a lounge and a physician called, Dr. Richard Hincney, who responded, hurried her to the hospital, where she died at 8.15 without regaining consciousness. The bullet struck her just over the ear and entered the brain.

Rode Away on Bicycle

The police were notified and Inspector W. P. McKenna and a detail of officers hurried to the scene of the shooting. Beninati had been seen in the said hanging about the factory gate from shortly after 5. He was riding a wheel and after shooting the girl made his escape on the bicycle.

Last evening it was learned that Beninati and the girl had been keeping company for several months. He asked her to marry him and she said she would if her mother would consent. It was agreed between them, Mrs. Delosa said, that Giovanna was to write to her mother in Italy and ask her consent to marry Beninati.

Mother in Italy, Refuses

The girl received a letter from her mother a few days ago in which the latter even forbade her daughter to continue keeping company with the young man.

When Miss Natoli told her lover of the mother's reply he became furious. He urged the girl to disregard her mother's command and to run away with him. This she refused to do and she told Beninati that he must not call upon her any more because she could not disobey her mother.

Beninati is alleged to have said that unless she would marry him he would kill her. He gave up his position in the mill Saturday and this noon he told Mrs. Mary Monie, with whom he boarded at 19 Spring street, that he wanted his supper served at 4 o'clock as he was going away.

Every police station within a radius of 15 miles was notified of the murder, but up to late hour no trace of him had been found.

The alleged murderer is about 22 years old weighs 160 pounds, is 5 feet 6 inches tall and has dark curly hair. He wore a dark blue or black suit, and derby hat.

Samana Island is one of the small outlying coys of the Bahamas located just southeast of San Salvador, where Columbus landed.

Among the passengers on the ship were Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Bryan and their grandchild. Samana is an uninhabitable rock about a mile wide. The Prinz Joachim appears to be 25 miles off her course in a region known to mariners as very dangerous. The Prinz Joachim is a modern boat of about 4,760 tons belonging to the 40-pose and gave the alarm. The girl, who had dropped to the floor without a word, was lifted onto a lounge and a physician called, Dr. Richard Hincney, who responded, hurried her to the hospital, where she died at 8.15 without regaining consciousness. ### VISCOUNT CHINDA TO BE JAPANESE AMBASSADOR AT WASHINGTON

TOKIO, Japan, Nov. 22.—The transfer of Viscount Sotomi Chinda, the Japanese ambassador at Berlin to Washington was officially gazetted today. As ambassador to the United States he succeeds Viscount Uchida, who has returned to Tokio as minister of foreign affairs. Washington was notified of China's tentative appointment, but the appointment was not officially made here until the American state department had indicated that the selection was acceptable. The minister at Stockholm, Mr. Sugimura, succeeds Baron Chinda, at Berlin.

BABY PITIFUL SIGHT WITH ECZEMA

Completely Covered. Bandaged from Head to Foot. Dared Not Wash Him. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment 4 Weeks and He Was Cured.

"A few days after birth we noticed an inflamed spot on our baby's hip which soon began spreading until baby was completely covered even in his eyes, ears and scalp. For eight weeks he was bandaged from head to foot. He could not have a stitch of clothing on. Our regular physician pronounced it chronic eczema. He is a very able physician and ranks with the best in this locality, nevertheless, the disease began spreading until baby was completely covered. He was losing flesh so rapidly that we became alarmed and decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

"Not until I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment could we tell what he looked like, as we dared not wash him, and I had been putting one application after another on him. On removing the scale from his head the hair came off, and left him entirely bald, but since we have been using Cuticura Soap and Ointment he has as much hair as ever. Four weeks after we began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment he was entirely cured. I don't believe anyone could have eczema worse than our baby."

"Before we used the Cuticura Remedies we could hardly look at him, he was such a pitiful sight. He would use until I would treat him, they seemed to relieve him so much. Cuticura Soap and Ointment stand by themselves and the result they quickly and surely bring is their own recommendation." (Signed) Mrs. T. B. Rogers, Mill Hill, Pa., Feb. 20, 111.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 20A, Boston, for a liberal sample of each, post-free, with 2-p. book on the skin.

Napoleon Charrest, charged with arson who was on trial at the criminal session of the superior court at Cambridge yesterday, was found not guilty by the jury after it had been out about three hours.

DESTROYS DRINK HABIT

The man who drinks to excess needs treatment for his condition. The Orrine treatment can be used with absolute confidence. It destroys all desire for whiskey, beer and other intoxicants. It is a simple treatment. It is given in the home—no sanitarium expense—no loss of time from work. If after a trial you fail to get any benefit from its use your money will be returned. ORRINE is prepared in two forms—a powder, for secret treatment, and in pill form, for those who desire to take voluntary treatment. Costs only $1.00 a box. We have an interesting booklet about ORRINE that we are giving away free on request. Call at our store and talk it over. Riker-Jaynes Drug Co., 119-123 Merrimack St.

Charrest worked for a tailor in upper Market street and occupied a room in the rear of the shop. On the night of the 27th of September a fire broke out in the tailor shop and as a result of investigation it was found that gasoline had been used and Charrest was placed under arrest. Although he admitted that he had used gasoline he said he did so to remove some vermin in the place. He said he had been drinking and may have accidentally allowed a lighted match to come in contact with the gasoline. After being given a hearing in the local court probable cause of guilt was found and later he was indicted by the grand jury. The trial opened yesterday and it was three hours after the jury was charged that it returned a verdict of not guilty. J. Stuart Murphy appeared for the defendant. Inquests Court club, Associate hall, Thursday, Nov. 23rd. Tickets 25c.

AN UNUSUAL RECORD FOR A PILE REMEDY

When Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, of Lincoln, Neb., located the cause of piles and found a successful inward remedy for piles, he had it put on sale under a strict guaranty of satisfaction. In ten years only 3 per cent. of HEM-ROID users have asked for their money back, and it speaks well for this scientific modern remedy. ### THE DEGREE STAFF OF THE LOWELL NEST OF OWLS

The degree staff of the Lowell Nest of Owls gave a complimentary banquet and smoke talk in the banquet hall of the Park hotel last evening. The affair was in honor of and complimentary to the officers of the Nest. It was a delightfully informal affair. Every number on the program was well given and many encores were called. Dr. Harold B. Plunkett acted as toastmaster and did his part well. The doctor was introduced by C. F. Harrington, chairman of the committee. After a sumptuous menu had been disposed of, cigars were passed and Brother John W. McCallum gave the Owl toast, an originally prepared effort by Mr. McCallum. This took immensely and the brother was a favorite at once. Mr. James P. McManus was then called upon to sing and sang so well that he had to sing again and again. President E. M. Bowers was then presented and in the absence of Deputy Supreme President F. M. Merrill, who was unable to be present, spoke for both the Home Nest and the Lowell Nest. Mr. Bowers spoke interestingly of the work of the local Nest since its institution. He referred to the phenomenal growth of this great fraternity in the United States and spoke of its great work of charity. "The Order of Owls," said the speaker "is a friend to the suffering and the helpless. They endeavor by good cheer and kindness to make this world a better place to live in. They believe in equality. The golden rule is their creed. Varden John J. Harrington then sandwiched in a sentimental song. He was a favorite at once, and had to pay for his cleverness by singing some more. Arthur Peters was called and gave a recitation and was commended for his effort. "Our degree team" was the subject assigned to C. F. Harrington, and it was seen at once that he knew what he was talking about. Mr. Harrington is the degree staff drillmaster and is a great favorite with the boys. James E. Dacey's subject was "Lowell's outlook, politically." Vice President C. E. Rogers, the financial secretary, introduced some of the best hits of the evening. His "knocks" on candidates now before the voters of the city were timely and very much enjoyed. Readings and recitations were given. Songs were sung, and stories told by these members. C. F. Harrington, staff, Geo. O'Malley, William Hartnett, Geo. Latham, H. Worden, J. Hurley, William Hollingsworth, L. Smith, J. Elzeli, L. Charron and F. Morrison. All these were well received and contributed much to the evening's entertainment. "And Lang Syne," was then sung by Albert Edmund Brown tonight, at Colonial hall, is given below: Recitative and aria from "The Sea-songs," "With Joy the Impatient Husbandman".....Laydn "Down Among the Dead Men".....Jacobite Song "Swallow's Song".....Radecke "Folk Songs".....Max Bendix "Annie Laurie".....Old Scotch "Drink to Me Only".....Old English Hungarian Melodies— (a) "Where the Tizsa's Torrents Through the Prairies Swell." (b) "Had a Horse a Finer One None Ever Saw." (c) "Shepherd, See Thy Horse's Foaming Mane." Francis Korbay "Tom the Rhymer," Op. 135. "Sir Olaf," Op. 2, No. 2 (Herder) Carl Loewe "An' Wiedersehn".....Max Bendix "Requiem".....Sidney Homer "Pirate Song".....Henry F. Gilbert "Who is Sylvia?".....Schubert "O Thou Sublime Sweet Evening Star" (from "Tannhauser").....Wagner "The Pretty Creature".....Storace "Invictus".....Bruno Huhn "Daddy Deever".....Walter Dammrosch Sheehan's orch., Hibernian hall, Fri. eve. Kittredge's orchestra, Lincoln hall, tomorrow evening.

FORMER MINISTER

SAID TO HAVE JOINED THE REVOLUTIONISTS

TOKIO, Nov. 22.—According to reliable private advices received here from China, Tang Shao Yi, the former minister of posts and communications, who refused to continue in office under the new regime, has joined the revolutionaries and declared for a republic. He is one of the most prominent of the younger Chinese progressives in Peking and is well known abroad. He is a graduate of Yale and was sent to America as a special envoy to thank the United States for the return to China of a part of the Boxer indemnity. The same despatches declare that Yuan Shi Kai is believed to be only waiting the right opportunity to join the revolutionary cause.

THE HARVARD ELEVEN

AUTO OVERTURNED

Penacook, N. H., Man Badly Injured On the Boulevard Today

VESPER COUNTRY CLUB

Will Spend the "Night Before" at Vesper Country Club

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—A 25-minute scrimmage failed to develop a score when the Harvard Varsity clashed with an eleven made up of varsity substitutes and coaches on the Stadium gridiron yesterday afternoon. The regulars did not have the services of Percy Wendell to carry the ball, as he was given another day off, but Campbell, Reynolds, Ted Frothingham, Morrison and Huntington were all used in the first-string backfield.

The work of the regulars did not come up to what the coaches desired by any means, and a long session has been prescribed for today in consequence. There seemed to be something of a reaction as a result of Saturday's hard game with the Greens, and the players all lacked the life and dash that has been in evidence for several days.

The most encouraging part of the work was the return of Bob Porter to his old place behind the line. This is the second day that the varsity quarterback has donned his uniform since his injury at Princeton more than two weeks ago, but his work yesterday shows that he is regaining his form rapidly, and unless he gets another setback he should be in first class shape for Saturday's big game. He gave no signs whatever that he was not fully recovered, and he can be looked for in the final game with a good deal of certainty.

Sam Fulton was also back in his old place at right end and is working well again. He is spending some time each afternoon in punting, but he is working regularly with the team and can also be counted on for the final contest. O'Brien also will probably get a show on the right wing, as his good work in recent games has shown that he is a player of good varsity calibre.

At the start of the scrimmage the regulars were given the ball in mid-field. In the progress down the field a large variety of plays were tried, but many of them with little success. Twice the varsity worked the ball down to within their opponents' 10-yard mark, only to be held without gaining the distance.

A number of times the play was carried back to the middle of the field, and the march was started over again. Throughout the fray the substitutes were kept on the defensive in order to give the varsity attack a good tryout. Among the coaches playing with the subs were Leo Leary, Paul and Lollor Frothingham, Charles Hann, "Doc" Leslie and Hamilton Corbett, all former Harvard players, and their aggressive work yesterday showed that they had forgotten few of the fine points of the defensive game at least.

Huntington was again shifted to fullback, and Parmenter went in at center. With Fulton in the game and able to look after the kicking, Blackall will not be needed in the backfield to do the punting, and Huntington, then probably, will be used at fullback, but in case Fulton is forced to drop out and Blackall is sent to fullback, Huntington will probably be shifted into the line in place of Parmenter.

Just who will start the game on Saturday in the pivotal position will depend on whether Huntington considers Fulton in good enough condition to go in at the start of the game.

The afternoon's practice yesterday wound up with a 25-minute signal drill, in which the team was driven at top speed. It was not until darkness made it impossible to see the ball, that the players were sent to the locker

Mr. H. W. Alexander, who conducts an automobile garage at Penacook, N. H., had a narrow escape from being killed about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon when something happened to the machine which he was operating and caused the car to overturn near the windmill on the Pawtucket boulevard. The driver was pinned under the car and might have been crushed to death but for the assistance rendered by Russell E. Rolfe, who was thrown from the car, and escaped injury.

Mr. Alexander was taken to the Lowell General hospital, where it was found that he was suffering from a number of bruises and lacerations and might be internally injured. Messrs. Alexander and Rolfe went to Boston yesterday where the former purchased a model 33 Hudson touring car, and the pair were on their way to Penacook when the accident happened. The machine was being operated at between 20 and 30 miles an hour when it either skidded or the steering knuckle broke, for suddenly the machine refused to respond to the steering wheel and before the car could be brought to a stop it ran into the sand on the side of the road and turned over, Mr. Alexander being pinned under the car, while Mr. Rolfe was thrown several yards but fortunately landed on the grass. Employees at the pumping station rushed to the assistance of the man, and word was sent to the ambulance station. A few minutes after the accident an autoist came down the boulevard and volunteered to take the injured man to the hospital. He was placed in the tonneau of the car and was being rapidly taken to the Lowell General hospital when the ambulance in an appearance and Mr. Alexander was taken the remainder of the way in the ambulance.

One of the penalties inflicted on Princeton last Saturday was one seldom imposed. It was for delaying the game and a five yard setback was inflicted.

There will be a strong nucleus of varsity players at Princeton next year around which to build a team. Of those who played against Yale, Damm and Hammond, ends; Brown and Wilson, guards; Blumenthal, center; and Baker, De Witt, Vaughn and Pendleton in the backfield all have one or more years before graduation. Wright, an end and who was first choice for end, also will be back. The 1912 men are White and Duff, so that there will be only a few holes to fill and the "Tigers" should be nicely fixed for material next fall.

A dangerous fire broke out in a room on the floor of the five story brick building at the corner of Moody and Aiken streets shortly after three o'clock yesterday and but for the timely discovery of the blaze and the effective work of the firemen upon arriving on the scene the damage would have undoubtedly been large.

The room is occupied by Mrs. Pierre Gosselin and when she left the building this afternoon she neglected to extinguish the flame in a gas stove in a bedroom. During her absence the flames communicated with the bed clothing. A woman who occupies the adjoining room discovered the smoke and she notified the janitor and the latter pulled in an alarm from box 52.

When the firemen arrived on the scene there was a lively blaze in progress, but it was extinguished after ten or fifteen minutes' work and the damage will be confined almost wholly to the room and its contents.

The building is owned by Dr. L. V. and Gideon Rochette and Alphonse Bibeault.

DEFEATED QUINTET FROM THE MACHINE SHOP

The quintet from the Kitson Machine Shop defeated the Machine Shop team in a game in the Machine Shop league series last night by winning all four points. The vanquished team put up a stiff argument in the second string but was a few pins shy of capturing the point. The Foundry and Drafting Room teams of the same league met on the alleys and they split even, each team winning two points.

The Pawtucket Blues and Pickups met on the alleys and the former team won by a score of 1293 to 1204.

RUSSIAN TREATY

Is Still Being Fought by Schiff

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Jacob H. Schiff, the New York banker, who charged John Hays Hammond and William W. Rockhill, former ambassador to Russia, with having aided the czar of Russia in evading the Jewish passport issue an order to get Russian commercial contracts, will continue his fight to procure the abrogation of the treaty of 1832 between the United States and Russia unless Russia recedes from her position. Senators O'Gorman and Hoar of New York have promised to do all in their power to compel Russia to change her attitude toward American citizens who are disconcertingly treated in Russia.

FLANAGAN WON

HAROLD WALKER GIVING QUITE A WALLOPING

NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 22.—Harold Walker of England, who has been looked upon as a corner, was relegated to the preliminary ranks last evening by Tommy Flanagan of Boston, who gave him a terrific beating in their 10-round bout before the New Bedford A. A.

Flanagan's clean, fast punching sent him to the front after the second round. In the fifth he clinched the fight, only the bell saving Walker. Flanagan put Walker down with a right to the jaw and beat him to the floor again and again as fast as he got up, scoring eight knockdowns, with Walker floundering desperately into a clinch whenever able.

Flanagan missed a swing for a knockout at the close of the round, Walker managed to come back and last through the next round and his pluck kept him on his feet.

In the 10th Flanagan beat Walker about the ring until one of the latter's seconds jumped in and led him to his corner.

Paddy Callahan of Brookline and Kid McDonald of Boston had a lively 10-round bout, which ended in a draw in the preliminary bout. Fred Worcester of this city knocked out Ted Lewis with a right to the jaw in the first round.

STARS OF HARVARD AND YALE READY TO CLASH IN FINAL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 22.—The football eleven of Harvard and Yale will clash here at the stadium Nov. 25 in the final big game of the season. Although no championship title hinges on the event, Princeton having defeated both, there is no decrease in interest. If the weather is right it is likely to be the most satisfactory contest of the year. Yale came through the game with Princeton without a single injury in consequence, and the same is true of Harvard's encounter with Dartmouth. Harvard and Yale have not met on the gridiron thirty years since 1876, when time Harvard has won only four games, four have been tied, and Yale has won twenty-two. Up until 1903 Harvard had not defeated Yale since 1901, when Campbell's great eleven triumphed by a score of 20 to 0 over a Yale eleven that had beaten

UNITED STATES LAW VERSUS UNITED STATES STEEL

EXPOSITION EXHIBIT BY STEEL COMPANY

SCENES IN PITTSBURGH'S STEEL DISTRICT

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

WHAT happens when an irresistible force is set against an immovable body? The old question, propounded as a "catch" in logic, occurs to the mind when one considers the situation created by the bringing of the government suit against the United States Steel corporation. In resistance might, viewed with respect by any government on earth or by any conceivable combination of powers, the United States government, the consensus of nearly 100,000,000 persons, is the "irresistible force." On the other hand, the United States Steel corporation, the very biggest industrial concern in the universe, the employer of 200,000 men, the recipient of a revenue greater than that of the government, the mighty combination of far-reaching, allied industries, may be likened to the immovable body.

The shock of the clash may stir the world. It is the very culmination of the anti-trust actions which have engrossed the attention of economists for a decade. Unless a basis of compromise be found, it may be, say the alarmists, the financial Armageddon in which men and financial institutions and industries may go down in a vortex of disaster. It is the climax of some of the most important questions which have engaged the minds of men for many years.

The hearing of the case against the corporation will bring into action some of the ablest legal minds in the country. Francis Lynde Stetson is the corporation's chief attorney. Jacob M. Dickinson, former secretary of war, has been engaged by the government as special counsel.

"The Biggest Thing on Earth." When the United States Steel corporation was formed, in 1901, by combination of previously existing corporations, it was hailed as "the biggest thing on earth." So it was, in command of capital, in extent of resources, in the enlistment of able intellect, in possibility of good or evil influence on the trade of this country and of the world, and in other respects. The company, these companies, yoked together to form the "steel trust," was $11,700,000. The present capitalization of the corporation amounts to $1,464,000,000, divided as follows: $508,000,000 common stock, $380,000,000 preferred stock and $576,000,000 first and second mortgage bonds, including those of subsidiary bodies. It is the world's first and only "billion dollar corporation." The men who approve the government's suit assert their hope that it will be the last and that the ultimate result of the attorney general's action will be its resolution into the originally independent companies, more than 200 in number, which were merged to form the ten monster companies recombined to make the corporation.

These ten companies were themselves monster aggregations of capital. They were the Carnegie Steel company, Federal Steel, National Tube, American Bridge, Lake Superior Consolidated Mines, American Steel and Wire, National Steel, American Steel Rolling, American Tin Plate and American Sheet Steel. Others like the Tennessee Coal and Iron, the acquisition of which caused so much furor in 1907, were added later.

Purpose of the Combination. To Charles M. Schwab, first president of the United States Steel corporation and one of Andrew Carnegie's chief lieutenants in the steel business, is awarded the credit—or the discredit—of suggesting the formation of the big corporation. Asked by the congressional investigating committee which probed into the consolidation to explain his purpose in suggesting it, Mr. Schwab said:

"I explained the very great advantages that would result in manufacture through such an organization as the United States Steel corporation, and I gave my reasons in detail. First of all, that instead of manufacturing steel as it was then manufactured by a number of companies, each of which manufactured the same lines, it was my idea that the organization to be truly successful should be made of such a character that one mill should be run on one product and not one mill on fifty products, as was then the rule."

How far Mr. Schwab's contention was correct in predicting success for the corporation, viewed only on the material side, may be gathered from a study of the figures showing its dealings. The gross receipts have amounted in ten years and eight months to $5,813,243,724. In one year they have been as high as $767,014,767. Last year they amounted to $703,961,424.

The United States government's receipts from customs and all other sources of revenue in the fiscal year which ended June 30 last were $700,100,000, so it will be seen that in one year and in one respect the United States Steel Corporation was a bigger thing than the United States government by over $3,000,000. This is the colossal of finance and industry against which the law department in Washington has directed its attack. The corporation may be reduced to its component parts without disaster—crash of business is predicted by few alarmist economists—but the action is bound to be felt wherever the steel trust stretches itself.

Defend Corporation's Size.

Naturally the steel corporation heads do not and cannot conceal the fact of its immense size. They argue, however, that size is not in itself criminal, that their business has been marked by fair dealing and by justice to competitors and that they have not monopolized the steel and iron business or fixed prices, in spite of their preponderant position in the industry. Elbert H. Gary, the chairman of the board of directors of the corporation and chairman of its financial committee, who is the virtual but not titular head of the company (the president is James A. Farrell), said recently:

"We do not wish or intend under any circumstances to countenance any violation of any law in force. I cannot say in language too emphatic that, not only from the standpoint of good morals, but from the standpoint of our personal interests, we must never make the mistake of intentionally violating or permitting to be violated any law which is in existence."

Judge Gary's Defense.

This was spoken to the presidents of the underlying companies which form the corporation. Continuing, Judge Gary said:

"Certainly we know that in trying to understand the application of the Sherman law, so called, we have been confronted by two extremes. On the one hand, if we should have engaged in the destructive competition which naturally results from unrestrained selfish competition, we might have placed ourselves in a position which would justify the criticisms which have been applied to other large interests—that is we might properly have been charged with attempting to establish or exercise a monopoly. On the other hand, if we had attempted to foster competition and to make it certain we were in no wise disposed to restrict competition by entering into agreements that we should not compete we would have been in danger of violating another provision of the Sherman law which is opposed to restraint of trade."

"I wish we could be of real, substantial benefit all the time to our competitors and to our customers, because we know that would be of benefit to ourselves, and, what is more important, to the two hundred odd thousand men who are dependent upon us for continuous employment at good, fair living wages. We do not seem to be in that position at the present time."

These are the words of the man who told the congressional investigating committee personally he believed "the Sherman act does not now and never will fully prevent the organization of great combinations of capital. I believe we must come to enforced publicity and governmental control of corporations."

"So far as I am concerned, speaking for the United States Steel corporation, I would be very glad if we could know exactly where we stand and could be free from the dangers and criticism of the public. I wish we could go to some responsible governmental source and say, 'Here are our facts, here is our business, here is our property and our cost of production' and could be told just what prices we could charge and just what we could do."

The utterance attracted much attention at the time it was made, last June. The steel trust's plea for justice from the government has been given. On the other hand, we have the testimony of witnesses before the investigating committee that hundreds of millions of the steel trust's securities need splices of dividends to elevate them above the water which is said to form their only foundation. And, too, there has been much talk recently of an international steel trust which should be strong enough to dictate terms to the combined governments of the world if need arose. Among the men named in the government's suit are the two John D. Rockefellers, Sr. and Jr.; J. Pierpont Morgan, Andrew Carnegie and others almost as well known in finance and industry.

"SIDNEY LOVE'S IN FUNDS AGAIN"

GOOD evening," wirelessly the Flatiron building to the Times building tower, along Broadway, "have you heard the news?"

"No," answered back the white imitation of an Italian tower. "What's new in this old town anyway?"

"Sidney Love's in funds again," said the architectural monstrosity at Twenty-third street.

"You don't tell me!" replied the

was sorry when he dropped out. (Even if it hadn't liked him it would have been sorry, for New York tries very, very hard to like a man with money to spend and a willingness to scatter it.)

Sidney C. Love is the young man—he is not yet forty—whose marital and financial difficulties caused the running of much newspaper ink two years ago, who flared into prominence again in the earlier months of this year when the cross suits for divorce of himself ten years, brought him wealthy clients and social sponsors and, probably, saved him from utter ruin when he failed almost three years ago.

But in one matter his personality failed him signally. That was in matrimony. It couldn't keep for him the love of "the most beautiful woman in America," just as it had not proved its adhesive qualities in a previous matrimonial venture.

Lots of times it has been said of Sidney Love that "he went up like a rocket and came down like a stick." But that is not strictly true, for a rocket takes about the same time to go up as it does to come down, and Love took several years to reach the zenith of his flight, while his descent was very much more rapid. Keokuk, Ia., had the honor of introducing him to the world, but he soon outgrew Keokuk and went to Chicago. He became a clerk in a railroad office. Clerking was too slow for Love, so he entered a stockbroker's office. Soon the personality of which something has been written began its work, and he expanded socially to so wonderful an extent that the smartest set in Chicago was glad to have its butlers introduce the agreeable, entertaining young man. Naturally, when mother and the girls "look up" Sidney Love, papa had to follow suit, and a chart of Love's fortunes soon began to resemble the diagrams which tell of the advance of the cost of living.

One of Chicago's great gifts is the facility with which New York's financial center acts as a magnet on the western city's bright men. Wall street supplanted State street in Love's affections, and his operations in "the little, narrow street which begins in a graveyard and ends in the river" attracted much notice among the younger, faster set in New York's moneyed circles and even among the older men. The Loves, Mr. and Mrs., were taken up by the Vanderbilts.

The tale of Love's financial undoing is spelled "w-h-o-a-t." He tried to "buck" James A. Patten—that's all. When the smoke cleared away, according to current tales, Love was "in bad" to the extent of $2,000,000. But nothing happened, save that he gave up his business and went west to engage in gold mining. It was said that his backers forgave his financial failings.

Just about then the limelight was thrown on the matrimonial troubles of Love and his wife, who was the famously beautiful Marjorie Burnes, called by an English artist "the most beautiful woman in America." (The report goes that the painter never saw her, but formed his opinion from a portrait.) She is an heiress of the "unlucky" Burnes millions of St. Louis, which are said to be tainted by a curse. In her divorce suit in Westchester county, N. Y., she said Love had ill treated her and made other charges. The cross suit of Love in Oregon, brought about the same time, was defeated. There is a daughter, about three years old, who is now with her mother. Love fought hard to obtain possession of the child, but lost.

Now he is said to have inherited a goodly share of the $7,000,000 estate of an uncle, whereat Broadway rejoices. It is that of a millionaire stockbroker in

I.
WHEN city folk sit down to dine
Upon Thanksgiving day
Their tables groan with dainties fine
For which they've had to pay.
The costly turkey makes them glad;
The fruits though dear, are nice.
And they are thankful that they had
The necessary price

II.
THE farmer likewise sits him
down;
His heart within him glows,
And when he thinks of folk in town
His soul with joy o'erflows,
And this his deepest joy affords
Upon Thanksgiving day—
That in the local bank he hoards
The price they had to pay.

III.
NOW, out on those who wildly
wild
The muck rake for their gain!
Thanksgiving day to me revealed
A truth that's very plain.
This world of ours is managed well,
With joy for all its ranks.
When those who buy and those who sell
Alike can offer thanks.

THE TURKEY IS ONLY HALF THE DINNER

JAMES E. LYLE,
19 Summit Street.

At the earnest request of many of my friends together with the leading business men of Lowell, I have consented to place my name before the voters of Lowell for their consideration as a member of the Board of Aldermen for 1912. In doing this, I fully realize the importance of such a position. My policy, if elected, will be to see that the city gets a dollar's worth for every dollar expended and fair and impartial treatment to each and every citizen. I am a warm supporter of the new charter from which I believe an unusual benefit will accrue to the city. I firmly believe that the vote cast for my nomination will be tantamount to business the city will profit by it. If the voters of Lowell see fit to elect me, I will do everything in my power for the benefit of the city.

HIGHLAND M. E. CHURCH

To Observe Anniversary of Dedication of First Chapel

Today marks the 35th anniversary of the dedication of the first chapel of the Highland M. E. church, and the event will be observed in a fitting manner. At 7 o'clock this evening a banquet will be held in the vestry of the church and a feature of the evening will be addresses by the following prominent speakers: President Lemuel H. Murlin, LL. D., of Boston University; Rev. Franklin Hamilton D. D., chancellor of the American University of Washington, D. C.; Hon. Charles S. Baxter, former mayor of Medford; Rev. Dr. Geo. H. Spencer, district superintendent of the Cambridge district of the M. E. churches. The address of welcome will be delivered by Rev. Arthur Bonner, pastor of the church. An entertainment program will be given after the discourses and an orchestra will also be in attendance.

History of the Church

The Methodist Episcopal church was the first of the great Evangelical denominations to establish a mission in the Highland section of the city. A committee made up of representatives of the three older Methodist churches in the city met on the evening of May 12, 1874 to consider the advisability of such a work being inaugurated. This committee acted favorably and a mission work was inaugurated in Highland hall on March 12, 1875. A meeting was held at which all the Methodist pastors of the city were present, Rev. Daniel Dorchester, D. D., presiding elder of the Lynn district, presiding. This meeting completed the organization of the Highland Methodist church, the mission feature of the work passing in consequence during the early months of the mission the pastors of the older Methodist churches in the city, St. Paul's, Worthen Street and Central, graciously acted as pastors of the mission also.

In the summer of 1875 Mr. John P. Mahan presented the church with a church building, lot, 50x100 feet. June 11, 1876 the first building erected for worship on the church lot was dedicated. The Rev. W. F. Warren, LL. D., president of Boston University, preached the dedicatory sermon. Chapel and land were together estimated to be worth only $3000.

Of the 16 pastors covering the years from the inauguration of the mission in the Highlands till April of the present year perhaps those most marked by prosperity and growth were those of Rev. E. A. Smith, 1882-84; Charles Tilton, 1893-94, and Dr. James Mudge, the present secretary of the New England Methodist conference.

It was during Mr. Smith's pastorate of three years that both spiritual and temporal prosperity marked the life of the church as perhaps at no other time in the history of the church. The membership greatly increased, the congregations were very large and the chapel was developed into a most commodious church building at a cost of $7500. Also a parsonage costing $1800 was secured for the convenience of the pastor.

During the administration of Rev. Charles Tilton, now pastor of Trinity M. E. church, West Medford, Mass., improvements were made upon the church building including the installing of a steam-heating plant. The Sunday school grew to be the largest in its history during this pastorate.

The four years' pastorate of Dr. Mudge was notable as a period of

TO MAKE YOUR HAIR SOFT, BRIGHT AND FLUFFY

(Fashion's Guide)

"The reason many women find it difficult to arrange the coiffure pleasingly is because of the top-free use of wet shampoos, which make hair dull, brittle and stringy."

"One of the most pleasing things with which to cleanse the scalp of impurities and keep the hair clean, fluffy and silky is 4 ounces of either orris root or corn meal and 4 ounces of theriac. Mix together and sprinkle a tablespoonful on the scalp, then brush thoroughly through the hair. This rids the hair and scalp of dust and dandruff, and a few times using tones the scalp and hair roots, causing the hair to grow soft, brilliant and easy to manage."

220 ARRESTED

Big Suffragette Attack on Parliament Met by Police

The organized raid upon the British parliament by hundreds of suffragettes was stopped by the police who arrested 220 of them after a struggle that caused great excitement. Some of the women chained themselves to railings and posts on the sidewalks, and when prevented from entering the parliament buildings they smashed windows of public offices by stones carried for the purpose.

STORY OF THE OUTBREAK

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The suffragettes fared badly at the hands of the police last night. They had threatened to force their way into the house of commons and make a protest on the floor of the house against the prime minister's refusal to pledge the government to a bill giving equal suffrage to both sexes, but they failed to even reach the entrance to parliament.

Thwarted by the police, who arrested 220 women and three men, the suffragettes resorted to a campaign of window-smashing. Driven from parliament square by the police, 1800 of whom were on duty, the women, accompanied by sympathizers and gangs of rowdies, proceeded through Whitehall armed with bags of stones concealed under their coats and broke the windows in the public offices, liberal headquarters and the National Liberal club.

They even extended their operations to the Strand, where windows of the postoffice bank and other private concerns suffered from the onslaught.

The militant tactics of the suffragettes followed a statement by Premier Asquith that the government was unable to introduce a bill to enfranchise women, as the cabinet was divided on the question, but would allow an amendment to be introduced to the proposed manhood suffrage bill.

leaving it to the house of commons to decide whether women should be given a vote.

The suffragettes had made ample preparations to renew their attacks on parliament with a battle which was expected to surpass all previous efforts. They met early in the evening in Caxton hall, less than a mile from parliament square, and after adopting a resolution declaring that the prime minister's denial of their request was a grave and unpardonable insult to women, called for volunteers for "dangerous service."

A deputation of 50 women headed by Mrs. Pethick Lawrence and accompanied by immense crowds, started for the house of commons to present the resolution, or take whatever other action was deemed advisable.

Strong detachments of police, both on foot and mounted, guarded the streets from Caxton hall to the houses of parliament. They broke up the deputation into units, which, when they reached the cordons surrounding the square, were thrown back, or if too persistent were arrested and passed along to a receiving squad in the square and thence through a double line of constables to the police station.

The greatest confusion prevailed. Several women were injured in the scramble, while others fainted or became hysterical and required the attention of the ambulance men. The battle was fierce, but short.

An hour after the women emerged from the hall parliament square had been cleared of the attacking forces, except half a dozen women who had chained themselves to the railings and whose chains the police had to file or break.

The demonstration was not so large as those of last year. The damage to property was greater than ever, however, and the number of arrests established a new record. Cannon Row station in Whitehall was crowded with prisoners and the police were occupied for hours in making charges against them. Among those arrested were Mrs. Lawrence, who is joint editor of Votes for Women, Lady Constance Lytton, sister of Lord Lytton, and Miss Mrs. Evelyn Haverfield.

Among the many buildings where windows and glass doors were smashed were the offices of the Daily Mail and Somerset house, on the south side of the Strand. The latter building contains public offices. The window-breaking was systematic, the motive apparently being to ensure arrest. Many of the women carried stones attached to long tapes. These were used as slings.

SCHOONER DAMAGED

The Ella Clifton Attempted to Double Cape Cod

VINEYARD HAVEN, Nov. 22.—For the second time in less than a week the little Boston schooner Ella Clifton has attempted to double Cape Cod only to be driven back in a damaged condition and today she lies at the wharf here without anchors, windlass, mainboom and other running gear, while in addition she is leaking.

The Clifton was bound around the cape last week with a cargo of gravel from a Long Island sound port when she was torn from her anchorage under the Handkerchief shoal. She was in danger of going ashore on Great Point, Nantucket, when the revenue cutter Acushnet in response to hurried wireless calls reached the scene and towed her to Hyannis and later to this port.

The tug Neponset came here from Boston Monday and yesterday took the Clifton in tow and started around the cape in the teeth of an increasing northeaster.

The Clifton has lost both anchors and had her windlass carried away in her first attempt to round the cape and there was no chance to anchor her when the Neponset found the seas too big off Nantucket to return to this port instead of waiting under the Handkerchief for more favorable weather. The Clifton will remain here for orders.

Credit.

It is predicted on the face of a straw vote that Arthur Reynolds of Chicago, now treasurer of the association, will become chairman of the executive council.

THE POLICE BAFFLED THE TRIAL OF BEEKS

Two More Attempts to Enter a Filipino Mess Attendant Was the Residence in Wakefield

WAKEFIELD, Nov. 22.—Completely baffled by the depredations being committed at the home of Judge Frank E. Fitz, the police force of this town does not know which way to turn. For four consecutive nights the home of the judge has been visited by some "unknown" and during last night the "unknown" made two calls while a couple of police officers were on guard, unaware of his presence.

To catch this elusive person the entire police force, consisting of two regular patrolmen and eight reserves, was on duty last night. Two of the men were assigned to the grounds of Judge Fitz's residence.

CLOSING ARGUMENTS

In the "Tar Party" Case Will be Made Today

LINCOLN CENTRE, Kan., Nov. 22.—Closing argument in the "tar party" case will be reached late today, it was predicted at the opening of court this morning. The state rested its case with the testimony of Mary Chamberlain yesterday and before the evening adjournment twelve of the defense's witnesses had been heard.

A. M. Simpson, one of the three defendants now on trial, resumed the stand at the opening of court today. The plan for the defense was to follow his testimony with that of the other two accused men, Sherrill Clark and John Schmidt. Only a few more witnesses, if any, other than these will appear. It is understood. It is possible that Miss Chamberlain will be called to the stand for further interrogation. A letter in the possession of Everett Clark, which came from a former friend of the young woman, is regarded highly by the defense and it is expected, an effort may be made to get the letters into the records.

The main line of the defense to be followed throughout, however, is that the "tar party" and, therefore, though they knew it was to take place and had started to the scene of the crime they were not actual participants.

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Faustino Paz, a Filipino mess attendant on the battleship Nebraska, who peeped into the junior officers' messroom while the shooting was going on and then ran up on deck, was the principal witness called at the continuation today of the trial in the United States circuit court of James Beeks, a negro mess attendant charged with the murder of Alexander Allen, another colored waiter. Paz testified that on the morning of May 8 last when the battleship Nebraska was in drydock in the Charlestown navy yard he passed Beeks while the latter was slipping shoes in the corridor leading from the junior officers' messroom. No words were exchanged but he heard Beeks mutter, "You got me."

ANOTHER OUTBREAK

Spencer Made an Attack on the Attorney General

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 22.—At this morning's session of the trial of Bertram Spencer, charged with the murder of Miss Martha Blackstone, the prisoner indulged in another outbreak of violence in the courtroom. Attorney General Swift being the especial object of his wrath. The attorney general was conducting the cross examination of Dr. Edward B. Lane of Jamaica Plain, one of the alienists for the defense, which was begun before adjournment yesterday. Dr. Lane was testifying as to how he reached his conclusions regarding Spencer's mental condition at the time that Miss Blackstone was killed and after Harriet Dow was wounded in the Dow home in this city. As Attorney General Swift mentioned the name of Miss Dow, Spencer began to show signs of anger. He muttered to himself and moved uneasily in his cage. Looking at the attorney general Spencer shouted in anger: "I'll give you something." Mr. Swift turned leisurely, looked into the face of the prisoner and smiled. The smile seemed to put Spencer into a frenzy. He jumped to his feet and began to swear and curse at the attorney general. Turnkey Wade, the defendant's guard, soon overpowered the prisoner and forced him back into his seat.

Spencer struggled with the officer, muttering continually. The prisoner's wife put her hand through the cage and tried to soothe her husband, but he thrust her hand away and cried "I'll give you something." Spencer, however, was soon subdued.

During the outbreak most of the spectators stood up in order to see told of a conversation that he had with the prisoner lately. Spencer, the witness testified, spoke of a number of instances where he found it impossible to restrain himself from robbing. Once Spencer said he found himself out in the street in his nightclothes and walked three miles in an attempt to overcome his impulse to rob. On the way home he said he stole a floorman and was satisfied.

Once Spencer told the witness he left a theatre to commit a robbery. Spencer said that when he was robbing a building he always took things that were bright. Sometimes he wanted to take the whole house he was in. At this point the noon recess was taken.

When the cross examination of Dr. Briggs was concluded the defense rested its case and the commonwealth at once opened its rebuttal. District Attorney Callahan conducting the examination. Five witnesses, all of Lebanon, Conn., Spencer's home town, were heard before the luncheon recess. Those witnesses were Albert Knoelgan, judge of the probate court, Charles Bell, town clerk and town treasurer, Nathaniel Barker, a storekeeper, Mrs. Harriet Robinson, who has lived in Lebanon during her entire lifetime of 59 years and has been a teacher in the Sunday school attended by Spencer and of which the prisoner's father was superintendent, and Miss Louise Cooley, formerly Spencer's school teacher. All testified that they had known Spencer and his family well and never knew of any peculiarities or eccentricities exhibited by the prisoner or any of his relatives. Under cross examination Miss Cooley recalled that on one occasion Spencer had trouble with some of his schoolmates and ran home for a revolver. She thought that this act was somewhat peculiar. She also said he frequently left school during sessions and went either to his home or his father's store but she did not think that this indicated he was eccentric.

BOSWORTH ON TRIAL

He is Charged With Killing Woman

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 22.—The prosecution having introduced evidence to show that Arthur Bosworth shot and killed Mae Labelle at Essex Junction last June after the young woman had caused his discharge from the hotel where both were employed, the defense is endeavoring to show that the defendant was mentally irresponsible. At today's session of the trial attendants from the state insane hospital at Waterbury testified that while Bosworth was under observation there he was irritable, criticized the management of the hospital and was possessed of the idea that his confinement was part of a plan to deprive him of a hearing in court.

SEVERAL RALLIES

WERE HELD IN THIS CITY LAST NIGHT

Several rallies in the interests of different candidates were held in various parts of the city last night. Jas. E. O'Donnell, Thomas J. Fitzgerald and J. Joseph Hennessy addressed the members of the Metropolitan club in Chelmsford street, James E. Miskella spoke to an audience at the corner of Broadway and Adams street, and Andrew E. Barrett talked to voters of ward nine in the high street engine house wardroom.

ACCUSED OF MURDER

The Police are Searching for Chinaman Named Leon Ling

CLEVELAND, Nov. 22.—The arrest of Leon Ling, charged with the murder in New York two years ago of Elsie Sigel, is expected to follow information furnished to that state by the Cleveland police. The police said that Leon Ling is a cousin of friends in one of the principal cities of Texas, which, however, the police decline to name at present.

The information came to the Cleveland officers as a result of a long feud which was responsible for the fatal shooting of Woo Dip here yesterday. His assailant was Leon Young, a member of the Hip Sing Tong, who fled and has not been arrested.

Today members of the On Leon tong, of which Woo Dip was a member, told the police that Leon Young is a cousin of friends in one of the principal cities of Texas, which, however, the police decline to name at present.

FIRE IN T. & S. MILLS

Dangerous Blaze Broke Out Last Night

A blaze which threatened to gain great proportions broke out on the fifth floor of No. 10 mill of the Tremont & Suffolk mills last night and considerable damage was done before the fire was placed under control. The members of the fire department connected with the mill did good work and they were materially assisted by the local fire department. The principal damage will result from smoke and water, although the loss by fire will be over $1000. The cause of the blaze is unknown.

The blaze was discovered during the early part of the night in a box of bobbins. The volunteer firemen were summoned but before they arrived on the scene the flames had spread rapidly. The sprinkler system checked the flames to a considerable extent and the firemen poured volumes of water on the fire.

The smoke which poured through the windows into the street gave passersby and residents of the vicinity the impression that the fire was much larger than it really was and some persons pulled in an alarm from box 52. The apparatus was on the scene in few minutes and one line of hose was laid up the fire escape, while another was pulled up the main stairway, and a chemical line was also brought into service, but when Chief Hosmer arrived he found that the mill firemen had the fire well under control.

The protective company did excellent work in covering up the goods and machinery on the floors below that in which the fire started. Eighty covers were laid, it being necessary for the protective machine to make two trips to the firehouse in Warren street for extra covers.

After the blaze was under control the members of the local department assisted in clearing the water and debris out of the building.

Although the alarm was sounded shortly after the alarm was rung in, it was about midnight when the apparatus left the place.

THE BARTLETT SCHOOL

Is Overcrowded and Pupils Sit in the Corridor

Because of the crowded condition of the Bartlett grammar and primary school in Warranahat street, the principal of that school, Herbert D. Bixby, has advised the parents of first grade pupils that if they continue to send their children to the Bartlett school it must be for one session only, for the present.

Up to the present time the corridor has been used for seating about 40 children, but the corridor is too cold for class occupancy in the winter time and the return of these 40 children to the class rooms means that the beginners will have to give way to make room for them.

Principal Bixby says that this crowding in the first grade is caused in no way by children coming to the school from outside the district, there being but four in the first grade rooms from outside the district line.

His letter to the parents of the first grade children reads as follows:

Dear Sir:
I am writing you this letter to call to your attention the fact that the Bartlett school is in a very crowded condition. The primary department contains some 250 children. More than 200 of these are children of the immediate district and must be cared for in this building. To do this we have at present but four rooms at our disposal, the other rooms of the building being occupied by the grammar department. Since April, some 40 children have been seated in the corridor, but the approaching cold weather makes this arrangement longer impossible. The school committee, last spring, requested the city council to finish new rooms in the building that these children might have proper accommodations.

This the city council refused to do. Consequently, the following plan must be put into effect, Nov. 21, 1911:

Children of the first grade will attend one session only, per day. The first week children now in Miss Roche's room will attend school mornings and those now in Miss Perlman's room will attend school afternoons. On the second week, children now in Miss Roche's room will attend afternoons, and children now in Miss Perlman's room will attend mornings.

This is done on account of the difference between the length of the morning and afternoon sessions, that all children may receive a like amount of instruction. Each week you will be notified on what day this change will occur.

Two regular teachers will be employed in the room both mornings and afternoons, and as much individual attention will be given to children as is possible. This plan will not be allowed to interfere in any way with the promotion of children at the end of the year, provided the attendance has been regular. To insure promotion, however, attendance must be regular. By applying at the office of this school for certificate, parents so wishing may send children to the first grade of the Cross street school both sessions of the day.

It is hoped that parents will be patient in this matter until such time as proper accommodations shall be furnished. The principal of the school will be glad to talk the matter over with parents and others interested at the school, at any time.

Very truly yours,
H. D. Bixby.

SWINDLING CHARGED

Through a Chain of Bucketshops.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—More messages relating to the objections of customers were read today at the trial of George Graham Rice and others, members of Sheffield & Co., on charges of swindling through their chain of alleged bucketshops. They all told of the sentiments of a customer in Providence who had ordered stock evidently but had not received it.

The firm's branch office in Providence wired: "It's kicking like the devil. Wants his stock as he is going abroad."

The answer to this, signed, "G. G. R." was: "Thought he was a friend of yours? Hold him off until tomorrow."

To a request from Providence for an excuse to give the customer "G. G. R." replied: "My stock of romances is exhausted. You give it to him."

TURKEY RAFFLES

Are Barred by the Providence Police

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 22.—Thanksgiving eve will pass in Providence this year devoid of one of its time-honored customs, that of raffling turkeys in stores, markets, saloons and homes. An edict has come from the office of the police commissioners prohibiting the continuance of the practice, following the protest made to the board by the committee on public morals of the Federation of Churches, which declared that this custom "is a menace to the morals of the community." Raffling for "turkeys" on Thanksgiving eve has been in vogue in this city as long as the memory of the oldest inhabitant can revert.

THE O. M. I. CADETS

Observed Their 7th Anniversary Last Night

The seventh anniversary of the organization of the O. M. I. Cadets was observed last night by the young soldiers and their girl friends. The affair was the most successful ever conducted by the organization and the evening was spent in a most enjoyable way. The only drawback was the absence of the organizer of the cadets, Rev. Denis A. Sullivan, O. M. I., who is confined to St. John's hospital as a result of a severe cold. It was planned to make the event a double one, for aside from the cadets' anniversary, it was also the seventh anniversary of Fr. Sullivan's assignment to the Immaculate Conception church. The cadets had planned a great reception to their chaplain and his illness that prevented his attendance caused great regret among the boys. The cadets and their young friends assembled in Y. M. C. I. hall at 8 o'clock and after a brief reception at which the young people were greeted by Rev. Fr. Tighe, O. M. I., and Rev. Fr. Fox, O. M. I., dancing was in order. An orchestra of six pieces furnished music and a varied order of engagements was carried out. During the evening a buffet luncheon was served and the cadets and their friends were about as happy a gathering as one ever saw. The hall was prettily decorated with the national colors and the stage was set with palms and ferns. Dancing was continued until 11 o'clock, when the young people departed for their homes. The general manager of the affair was Major Francis J. Haggerty.

MAJOR FRANCIS J. HAGGERTY

THE PERSIAN GOV'T

To Comply With Russia's Ultimatum

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The Persian government today officially notified the British government that acting on the latter's advice, it would comply with the demands of the Russian ultimatum. Orders have been given for the withdrawal of the gendarmes, who were sent by Morgan Shuster, the Persian treasurer general, at the instance of the national council to seize the property of Shua-Ez-Sultaneh a brother of the ex-shah of Persia. The Persian Government will apologize to Russia. A new Persian cabinet will be formed today.

TWO ACCIDENTS

Young Men Met With Painful Injuries

Harry Audibert, a young man living at 26 Beaulieu street, received a bad cut on the leg while at his work in a local mill this forenoon. He was taken to his home and at 12:50 o'clock this afternoon the ambulance removed him to the Lowell hospital, where he received treatment.

Lost Two Fingers
Arthur Pinard, an employee of the Conway Transfer company and living at 67 Middlesex street, suffered a bad accident this afternoon, when he lost two fingers of the left hand. Mr. Pinard was unloading a beer keg at Martin Moran's saloon in Salem street, when in some unaccountable manner his fingers were caught under the heavy keg and almost severed from the hand. The ambulance was called and the injured man was removed to St. John's hospital, where the doctors amputated the two injured fingers.

BIG CLAMBAKE

TO BE GIVEN BY WEST CENTRAL-VILLE FIREMEN

The members of those company No. 12 will give their friends a feast tomorrow in their quarters in West Sixth street. The affair will be in the form of a clam bake and will be held from 6 to 8:30 o'clock. This is one of the many social affairs held in the fire station, and they are always well attended, for the firemen are making a wide reputation with their many West Centralville friends.

We shall have an exceedingly long ballot at the primaries and a delightfully short one at the final election.

If the Manchus are massacred in China they will be made victims of a fate they dealt out to thousands of others.

The appropriation committee is right in applying the cut-off rule on demands for new appropriations. Let the demands pass over to the new city government.

Will the indictment or even the conviction of the parties who made charges against the Middlesex county ring give the county officials a clear vindication? That is a question that under present conditions the public would not answer in the affirmative.

THE SUFFRAGETTES AGAIN

The suffragettes are to resume hostilities against Premier Asquith in London. The militant tactics proposed will do no good. The British premier is very fair in this matter of woman suffrage as in every other matter. He says he does not personally believe in it, but he will not object to the fullest discussion of the matter by parliament whenever an opportunity presents itself. That means that a bill may be the subject of debate, and the time is not far distant when the British parliament will favor the extension of the franchise to women.

THE VOTERS' RESPONSIBILITY

Seldom has it happened with the introduction of the commission form of charter that so many people became candidates for the first election as we find on the ballot prepared for the primaries of Nov. 28th in this city. If a preconcerted effort were made to defeat the object of the charter, no better plan could be adopted than to have such a multiplicity of candidates, a large proportion of whom are wholly ineligible and unfit for the offices they seek.

The task before the voters at the primaries will, therefore, be one of great difficulty, and one in which they will have to exercise unusually good judgment in order to secure satisfactory results.

To be plain about this matter, the interests of the city are at stake, and unless the voters decide to adopt heroic measures we shall see the main object of the charter defeated. It is time, therefore, to talk plainly to the voters and to say that unless these undesirable candidates be turned down and wholly ignored at the primaries it will be impossible to select the best men who are up for office.

The new charter gives the voters a larger list to select from than did the old. There is ample material from which to select a first class city government, but the great trouble is, that the voters are liable to be misled by the great number of undesirable candidates who are going from house to house, stirring up excitement, appealing for votes and telling the people that they, the candidates, have a chance of election.

The old custom of voting for those who make a house to house canvass or who buttonhole the voters along the streets should be abandoned in the present case. It is very evident that the best men who are up for office, and the most desirable men to select for public office, can never adopt this method of campaigning. What then is to be the result if the voters support the undesirable candidates whose reputation extends only to their own precinct or at most to their own ward? It will simply operate against the movement for better city government. Let the voters concentrate upon the strong candidates, men whose reputation is known throughout the city, men who are known to be capable, honest and trustworthy and who have had the experience necessary to fit them for the position they seek. Unless the voters adopt this course they cannot possibly elect a city government that will conduct the city's business in a thoroughly honest, efficient and progressive manner.

It would appear that some directing mentor is needed to name the strongest men on the ticket. The Sun could easily do so, but declines for the reason that its judgment might not be accepted, and the attempt might make a bad matter worse. Besides, it would hardly be fair for a newspaper to single out any number of men as those most worthy of support at the polls. The voters have certain rights that should not be interfered with, and one of those is perfect freedom of choice. They will have ample opportunity in the coming primaries to exercise that right without the slightest restriction, and the result will show whether they use that privilege in the interest of good government or the reverse. There are a few days left in which the voters can make inquiries of disinterested parties as to who the best candidates are. The Sun will publish brief sketches of the candidates for the information of the voters. Thus the latter may be able to get the information that will guide them in making a wise selection at the polls.

We cannot under present conditions approve any movement for a good government association which would be liable to split the electorate on lines far more objectionable than the political party labels. Therefore, in this case we must depend entirely upon the patriotism, the local pride and the good judgment of the voters, confident that they will select none but good and capable men for the various elective offices.

There are so many democrats up for nomination that very few can hope to be nominated. We presume, therefore, that after the primaries they will blame the charter, but the responsibility rests on their own shoulders. If they all want to be candidates it is obvious that the number to be nominated will be inversely small. If they thus defeat themselves by an over-weening desire for office they need not blame the charter for their mistake. The party designations have been abolished, and nobody is now to be considered on party lines. In the present election it is to be hoped that the voters will pass upon the candidates on the basis of merit alone, so that we may have a municipal board and a school committee made up of men fully competent by training and experience to conduct the business of the city in a manner that will reflect credit upon themselves and demonstrate the superiority of the new system of government to be introduced on January first of next year.

SEEN AND HEARD

"Your age, please?" said Registrar Evans to a somewhat portly woman who advanced to his window in the office of the board of registrars. "In twenty-one," said the woman. "It would be to your interest to tell the whole truth and nothing but the truth," said the registrar, interrupting the genial George in his little speech.

Here's another one in which Mr. Evans figured. He was going out to "grab some cats" when a woman accosted him. "I have been waiting here for more than an hour," she said, "and I'm awfully tired. I wish I could get registered. I want to go home and prepare the evening meal."

"Even registrars of cats have to eat," said Mr. Evans. "If I should open the office for you there are fifty others who would want to come in. I am going to lunch."

"Forget the lunch," said the woman. "Think of the lovely dinner you will have on Thanksgiving day, and it is only a couple of weeks away."

Needless to say that Mr. Evans "beat it" for the restaurant without further ceremony.

If pigeons had the right of suffrage there is many a flock that would vote in a body against the continuance of confetti as a wedding appurtenance. They are the pigeons that dwell in church towers.

"It is only when confetti usurps the place of rice that they hold a grudge against it," a seerion said. Since bride parties took to showering the bride with confetti the quantity of rice thrown has diminished by half. The birds miss it. Formerly they had a chance to gorge on rice after every big wedding. They were a knowing lot and could scent a wedding party two blocks away.

"I always give my husband a box of cigars on his birthday, and they don't cost me a cent," said the woman. "You know, men never realize how much they smoke. My husband always has a box of his favorite brand in his cigarette case, and when I take them out one at a time—I mean one each day, he never misses them. I save one of the old boxes and by the time his birthday comes around I have it full. And I give it to him and he always says he knows how I know his favorite brand and is tickled to death, the old goose."

ONLY A NEWSPAPER GUY

I see a man strut through a jam in a hall. Take a seat 'mid the speakers and chat with them all. "Is this Murphy?" I ask, "that the crowd he defies?" "No," says someone, "he's one of the newspaper guys."

I see a man start on the trail of a crook. And he seems all assistance, but brings him to book. "My, Burns?" I inquire. Someone scornfully cries: "Burns? Now, he's just one of them newspaper guys."

I see a man walk through the door of a show. Where great throngs are blocked by the sign S. R. O. "Is this Goodwin himself, that no ticket he buys?" "Well, hardly. He's one of those newspaper guys."

I see a man knock on a president's door. And the sign "No admittance" completely ignores. "Is this Morgan, that privacy's rights he denies?" "Morgan? Shucks! It's just one of those newspaper guys."

And some day I'll walk up the great streets of gold. And see a man enter, unquestioned and bold. "A saint?" I'll inquire, and Old Peter'll reply: "Well, I should say not, he's a newspaper guy."

—Carlton G. Garretson, in the New York Globe.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Springfield Union: Dr. Cook describes the demonstration in Copenhagen against him by saying: "A great crowd sought to shake hands with me, but were prevented by the police." Perhaps the great American public can swallow that without choking, for Dr. Cook has found that he can fool some of the people all the time, even if he cannot fool all the people some of the time.

THE NEW BEDFORD CASE.

Lawrence Telegram: Lawrence is in no position to throw stones at other cities in the commonwealth. But the newspapers of so many other cities in the commonwealth have been casting stones this way for some time that it is a matter of such common talk in New Bedford that no one there seems to doubt its truth. Conditions haven't reached that pass here and show no signs of reaching it.

"STOP! DON'T YOU SEE THE DITCH?"

who are always ready to cooperate with it an "advanced legislation."

The general result makes very little difference in the complexion of the council. A remarkable feature of the election, however, was the turnover in the city of Geneva from liberalism to radicalism. In the old council the city had seven members, of whom four were radicals. This time a combination of radicals, socialists and Catholics was formed, resulting in the choice of five coalition members and only one liberal on the first ballot out of the eight members allotted to the city under the new census. The liberals were defeated for both of the remaining seats on the second ballot.

The discussion which has been going on in France and Germany as to whether the government of the two countries made during the recent Moroccan dispute appeals to socialism is said in avowing war had its origin during the debate on the army bill in the Dutch second chamber. The leader of the social-democrats in that body, Mynher Troelstra, started the ball rolling with the flat footed statement that the two governments had communicated with the International Socialist Bureau of Brussels.

The hint was at once taken by the leading German socialist journal Vorwarts, which affirmed the statement even more positively. The North German Gazette and the Paris Temps contradicted the story, but then the Frankfurter Zeitung and the Paris Radical reaffirmed it, giving additional details. Finally Troelstra in a conversation reported in the Algemeen Handelsblad of Amsterdam backed up the whole story, so that many papers throughout Europe now take the stand that the evidence is sufficient to prove that the French and German governments actually appealed to international socialism to save them from the consequences of the situation in which they had become involved, seeing that war at that time was not quite convenient to either of them.

Awaiting a formal statement on the subject by the International Socialist Bureau the best opinion seems to be that while neither government made any official approach to the socialist organization both may have intended through intermediaries that any help given by socialism in preserving the peace would be highly appreciated and means would be found to show governmental gratitude for the service.

PEOPLE OF NOTE
Switzerland has been holding an election for members of the federal council. The results as usual, show a large predominance of the radical and socialist elements in the republic. As a consequence of the recent census the membership of the council has been increased from 197 to 189 seats. In the old body the extreme leftist element held 103 seats against 84 liberals and conservatives. For the new council 163 members were elected on the first ballot. Of these 107 were radicals, 35 Catholics conservatives, 10 liberals of the centre, 10 socialists and 7 democrats. The second ballot gave the radicals, who are the administration party, six out of the twenty contested seats. Thus the government has a radical majority behind it of more than fifty votes, not counting the socialists.

A MATTER OF TEMPERAMENT

The Commoner: Just before the election of 1908 Mr. Rockefeller said that he favored Mr. Taft because he was "temperamentally" better fitted than Mr. Bryan for the presidency. Now we know what he meant. He had examined both candidates carefully and from his standpoint he was right. Mr. Taft's temperament suits Mr. Rockefeller the better, because he would defend a suit in equity than he a defendant in a criminal prosecution.

THE SUFFRAGETTES

Prefer to Go to Prison Rather Than Pay Fine

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Unrepentant suffragettes to the number of 223, many of whom are apparently still in their teens, appeared at Bow street police court today to answer for their sins of yesterday and were sentenced to fines or alternative terms of imprisonment varying from a fortnight to a month. The women invariably chose prison instead of a fine.

Counsel for the public prosecutor said he could not adequately describe the "disgraceful and discreditable scenes of organized disorder" of which the accused were guilty.

From the evidence it is quite certain that the militant suffragettes acted yesterday on a complete plan of campaign. As soon as they were repulsed by the police drawn up in Parliament square they dispersed into small groups, who mixed with the crowds.

These were kept on the move by the police. Occasionally a missile was hurled from the middle of the throng but the police were unable to detect the thrower.

This gave the militants more confidence and as they came within reach of the government officers in Whitehall and the surrounding streets the throwing of stones became more frequent and excited shouts of "Votes for women" were raised.

At the National Liberal club on the Thames embankment the excitement reached its height. The club was full of members and the windows as the crowds approached but were soon forced to retreat in order to avoid the showers of well aimed stones which crashed through the lower windows.

Many more arrests were made here and also along the Strand, where the telephone office and operators were attacked as well as a number of the stores. Some of the suffragettes rode on horses and motor cars from which they threw stones. The newspaper offices, over a mile away, suffered in this way and in some instances the assailants succeeded in escaping, but in others they appeared to seek arrest.

Some of the house, where all the public records are kept, was also attacked but its distance from the sidewalk and its formidable walls prevented much damage being done.

Most of the women arrived in court this morning carrying grips with a change of clothing in anticipation of spending a period in jail. A number of them who had broken windows of a value exceeding $50 were committed for trial at the London sessions. All of these, however, were allowed out on bail.

A poster circulated by Mrs. Reihel Lawrence calling on women to gather in their thousands and see fair play and protect their sisters from being brutally victimized by the police in uniform and plain clothes, as they

FUNERALS

LADD—The funeral services of Miss Alta E. Ladd were held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. Hall, 58 Highland avenue, and were largely attended by many of the friends she had made while in this city. Rev. Selden W. Cummings spoke at the services in a most beautiful manner, telling of her loving disposition, and her wonderful capacity for making friends. He reviewed her course at the Lowell General hospital and after her graduation the term spent at the floating hospital in Boston in search of further knowledge. Miss Ladd returned to Lowell after leaving the hospital in Boston and practiced her profession.

On her second case, one of pneumonia, she was herself stricken with the disease and died a few days later, a sacrifice to her profession. Mrs. Poplin sang "Over the River" and "My Heavenly Home" and "Some Sweet Day," in a most impressive manner.

The body was sent to Laconia, N. H., where the funeral will be held from the home of her sister today. C. M. Young was in charge of the arrangements.

GREEN—The funeral of Mrs. Gertrude B. Green took place Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the rooms of Undertaker George W. Hensley, 79 Branch street. The services were conducted by Rev. A. R. Ditts, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church. The remains were taken to Mount Auburn cemetery, Cambridge, Mass., Wednesday morning and burial took place this afternoon in the Edison cemetery.

SULLIVAN—The funeral of the late Mrs. Maria Sullivan took place this morning at 8:30 o'clock from her home, 12 Lane street, and was largely attended. The cortege proceeded to St. Peter's church, where at 9 o'clock a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. W. George Mullin, assisted by Rev. John O'Brien as subdeacon. The choir under the direction of Mr. James E. Donnelly sang the Gregorian mass, the solos being sustained by Miss Whiteley and Mr. Donnelly. Mrs. Josephine McKenney presided at the organ. Among the floral tributes were a beautiful wreath from the daughter of deceased, Miss Margaret Sullivan, and a large spray from Mrs. Ada Sanborn. The bearers were Michael Keefe, James O'Brien, Frank Riley, Philip Glinz, John Duffy and James Dogovan. At the grave Rev. Mr. Mullin read the committal prayers, and the burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery, in charge of Undertakers J. E. O'Donnell & Sons.

PENDERGAST—The funeral of John H. Pendergast took place this morning from his late home, 4 Cross street avenue at 8:30, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. The cortege proceeded to St. Patrick's church, where a high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock by Rev. Timothy Callahan. The choir sang the Gregorian mass and as the body was being borne from the church the choir sang "The Profundis." Miss Alice Murphy and Mr. Andrew McCarthy sustaining the solos. Mr. Michael Johnson presided at the organ. Among the many beautiful floral tributes were: Large wreath from family; large cross inscribed "R. T. U. Local 85," from Bartenders union; sprays of plums from Susan C. Lynch, James E. Donnelly, J. H. Sheppard, Jennie (Heaton) Kelly, John D. Gaffney. The bearers were John Danahy, John Conlon, Clara Bailey, James J. Gaffney, Frederick Hammond and Thomas Hladky of Lawrence, Mass., in attendance at the funeral were a delegation from Court General Shields, F. of A. consisting of James Fyfe, James Lange, Frank Lang and John Hulme; delegation from Bartenders union local 85, Frank McMahon, Patrick Heslin, Redmond Sullivan and Michael McPartland. Interment was in St. Patrick's cemetery, Rev. Timothy Callahan read the committal prayers. The funeral was in charge of Undertaker Peter H. Savage.

CONNORS—The funeral of Mrs. Cecilia Connors took place this morning from her home, 156 Cross street. High mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Patrick's church by Rev. Fr. Fortier, O. M. I. The choir rendered the Gregorian chant, the solos being sustained by Miss Alice E. Murphy and Mr. Andrew A. McCarthy. Mr. J. L. Johnson presided at the organ. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery, where Rev. Fr. Fortier read the committal prayers. The bearers were John Asha, Thomas McGovern, James O'Donnell and Michael Connolly. C. H. Molloy & Sons, undertakers.

WHITE—The funeral of Mrs. Mary White will take place from the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Winn, 21 Ellsworth street, Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. A high mass of requiem will be celebrated at 9 o'clock at the Sacred Heart church. Burial will take place in St. Patrick's cemetery, C. H. Molloy & Sons in charge.

WAGNER—The funeral of Marion Louise Wagner will take place on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of her parents, Alfred and Margaret, 44 Mammoth road. Burial will take place in the Edison cemetery, C. H. Molloy & Sons in charge.

MIZENER—Died in Malden, Nov. 20th, S. Phillips Mizener, aged 91 years. Funeral will take place from the Edison chapel, Lowell, Friday, at 11 o'clock. Friends invited. Please omit flowers. C. H. Young, undertaker in charge.

DEATHS

SILVA—Jose S. Silva, aged 1 year, beloved child of Jose and Camilla Silva, died this morning at the home of his parents, 17 South street.

WHITE—Mrs. Mary White died yesterday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Winn, 21 Ellsworth street, aged 39 years. She leaves her husband, James; four brothers, John, Patrick, James and Michael H. Winn, and one sister, Catherine Winn.

WAGNER—Marion Louise Wagner, daughter of Edward and Margaret Wagner, died yesterday at the home of her parents, 44 Mammoth road, aged one year, five months and 10 days.

Phoenix Campers, Assembly, Lincoln hall, tomorrow evening.

CARD OF THANKS

At this time we take the opportunity to extend our heartfelt gratitude to our friends and neighbors, for their uniform kindness and thoughtful aid to us on the death of our beloved one, the late lamented Cormick Conlon. We beg to assure all that such beautiful evidences of love and affection, when one's heart is burdened with the weight of sorrow, will be held in loving remembrance in the days to come. Signed, Mrs. Mary S. Conlon, John J. Conlon.

INTEREST INCREASES

COMPLETE REVELATION TO MANY PEOPLE

Among the many statements made in connection with the introduction of "Tona Vita" is the new tonic that is accomplishing such remarkable results in Lowell, none is more interesting than the following by Mrs. James Roberge, of No. 58 Grand street. Mrs. Roberge said: "I have been complaining for the past three years or more. I have doctored almost continually during that period, but with no success. I had dull headaches and I felt so tired that I hated to be on my feet. My condition grew serious. I took all kinds of medicine, but nothing seemed to help me.

"I bought a bottle of 'Tona Vita' and Lee's Rhubarb Laxative, and began the treatment. I began to improve from the very beginning. I now sleep and eat well. I feel strong once more and the miserable nervousness and depression is gone. I cannot recommend this medicine too highly."

"Tona Vita" is now being introduced in the United States for the first time, and is establishing as great a record in the larger cities of this country as the original did in Europe. Specialists are stationed at the Hall & Lyon Drug Co., where they are meeting a tremendous number of people each day and explaining the nature of their remarkable preparation.

The sale of this medicine is now the biggest thing of the kind ever seen in Lowell and each succeeding day marks an increase of interest. "Tona Vita" is proving a complete revelation to the thousands of men and women in the city who did not know exactly what was the matter with them. It would be worth anybody's time to visit the Hall & Lyon Drug Co., the exclusive agents for Lowell, and inspect the large numbers of testimonials from those who have been benefited by the new tonic, and who have no doubt faith in it as a remedy of unusual value. These specialists are on hand to meet the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

THE STEEL TRUST

Inquiry Will Close for the Present

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Witnesses who had been subpoenaed to testify before the house steel trust investigating committee have been notified by Chairman Stanley not to come to Washington at the present time and it is probable that the inquiry will close for the present after Leonidas Merritt of Duluth, Minn., gives his testimony today relative to the Rockefeller loans on Mesaba ore properties in 1893.

COUPLE ARRESTED

In Connection With Several Persons' Deaths

DETROIT, Nov. 22.—A Journal special from Uxley, Huron county, says that Dr. Robert McGregor and Miss Margaret Gibbs, a nurse, were arrested today and taken to Bad Axe. It is charged they did not tell all they knew in their testimony at the Uxley inquest regarding the deaths of John Wesley Sparling and his three sons. Suspicion of arsenic poisoning have been raised in connection with the four deaths.

POLISH FARMHAND

Was Placed on Trial for Murder

EAST GREENWICH, R. I., Nov. 22.—Brenio Cravager, a Polish farmhand, was placed on trial today for the murder of Joseph Brigham, a farmer of South Kingston, before Judge Rathbun in the superior court of Washington county. Brigham was killed on the morning of Oct. 16 last while he lay asleep in bed with his young son by a bullet fired through the window of his room. A posse which was organized immediately traced footprints from the farm where Cravager was employed, and it is alleged found him just entering the house. The impounding of a jury occupied the forenoon of the opening day and this afternoon the jury were taken to view the scene of the murder. The Sparling hall, an isolated section of the town of South Kingston. Testimony will be heard tomorrow.

WHIST PARTIES

IN AID OF THE FRENCH AMERICAN ORPHANAGE.

Two very successful whist parties were held yesterday afternoon and evening in the People's club, 65 Merrimack street. The affairs were conducted by Mrs. Magloire Groudin and were given for the benefit of the orphans of the French American orphanage.

The afternoon was devoted to women only, while in the evening men and women attended. Mrs. Groudin had general charge of both parties and her efforts were well repaid, for the receipts were very substantial. Through the courtesy of Mr. E. J. Gilmore, superintendent of the People's club, the use of the rooms was obtained gratis.

NEW EMBROIDERY SHOP

A very neat and beautiful embroidery shop has been opened in the Chautauque building, 22 Central street, by Miss Gertrude E. Allen, at which one can find a most select and normally priced stock. Miss Allen was formerly employed as a stenographer by Fred C. Church. In addition to carrying an extensive stock in which a piece to suit the most fastidious taste may be found, Miss Allen will do designing and stamping and customers may have original designs made to their order by visiting the studio and giving an idea of the design wanted.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to visit the studio and inspect the stock.

Good Centers Are Not Numerous This Season

TACKLING IMPORTANT TO FOOTBALL MEN

By TOMMY CLARK.

IN going over the list of centers this season one finds that there is a scarcity of good men for the position. Years ago under the old rules the middle man on the line was generally a place for the fattest boy of the school. The new code has given that doctrine a black eye. The center who is fit for the part these days must be an athletic youngster who can run, tackle, pass the ball well, fit in more ways than one and generally prove his usefulness.

And out from a big human yelling machine composed of a thousand throats there bounds a two minute ses-

The center who plays good football under the new code must combine quickness of body with quickness of thought. While the passing of the ball still devolves upon him as it has in the past, the new centers have shown such remarkable ability to play the defensive football that they have revolutionized every idea that has been in vogue as to the duties of the position.

Those whose playing has stood out this year are Morris of Penn. Weems of Annapolis and Bluthenthal of Princeton. The last mentioned is the best middle man in the east this season. In the west Morrell of Minnesota is the leader. Others who have shown up very well are Storer of Harvard, Whyte of Cornell, Walmsley of West sion of "rahs" and other things intended to put ginger into the football players and make them fight harder for their college and victory.

To the modern game of football organized yelling and singing and the coaching of rosters are just as essential as the coaching of the players themselves. Straggling yells out of tune don't reach the players; hence they carry no ginger and do no good. In the stands there must be team work just as there must be team work among the men struggling with a ball back and forth across the white lines. The college or school without its band of organized rosters and squad of yell leaders isn't on the football map.

Watch these yell leaders and one soon realizes that it isn't the easiest work done in the world. These rooting coaches never see more than mere glimpses of the game. The chief turns his head and sees the enemy ripping through for good gains. Then it's "Hold that line! Hold that line!" Brandishing their hands faster and more wildly than the most eccentric of band leaders, these yell leaders then put in a busy five minutes perhaps. Another glance and the line has held. Then it's "Block that kick! Block that kick!"

Next, perhaps, will come a series of good old college yells, yells that must drown out the enemy's rooting; otherwise they are useless. These are shouted just to let the team know that the rosters are still there, pulling, shouting and fighting for them, to win.

No rest at all for the yell leaders.

Their hands, mouths and bodies are going all the time, before the game, between halves and between quarters. They must know music, too, and when a song signal is given by the band the rosters are led as a chorus.

MINNESOTA HAS NEW IDEA IN ATHLETICS.

Dick Grant, the old Harvard university runner, at present coaching the University of Minnesota athletics, has sprung a new idea in the athletic game by combining Bible study with active training.

FIRST FOOTBALL GAME WITH RULES.

The first football game to be played with any trial of rules was that between Columbia and Yale in 1872.

MORRIS

Huntington, Harvard's Little Fullback, Strongest Man in Football

A MASSACHUSETTS boy, fullback of the Crimson football squad and the lightest man who ever played the position, is this year's strong man at Harvard. He is Frederick Dana Huntington of Leicester, Mass., twenty-one years old, 163½ pounds on the scales, 5 feet 7½ inches high and "nothing but muscle." His record for the strength test shows a superiority of 200 points over Jack Johnson.

Young Huntington's astonishing

The Sargent methods include points for strength of legs, arms, back, chest and lungs; weight also figuring in the calculations. With his legs Huntington is able to lift 1,263 pounds, and with his back 594 pounds. With a short intermission after these feats he "chins" himself sixteen times, and with one minute's respite after that he "dips" twenty-five times. Other Huntington statistics are: Capacity of lungs, 280; strength of lungs, 34; strength of right forearm, 65; strength of left forearm, strength was determined by a series of tests conducted under the system employed by Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, director of the Hemenway gymnasium and a strength expert who has measured the brawn of many athletes who have held the public eye, among them John L. Sullivan, Yusuf, Sandow, James J. Jeffries and Jack Johnson. His record under the Sargent test is 1,302.2 points, ninety-four more than those of his teammate, F. H. Leslie, whom he displaces as the Crimson's strongest student. In addition to excelling the negro pugilist in brawn, this young son of Harvard also compares favorably with Jeffries and Sandow.

Besides holding the position of fullback on the football even the Leicester boy is captain of this year's hockey seven and is prominent in other Harvard sports. In comparison to him some of the other brawny Harvard men are almost puny. Captain Fisher, who was an All-America guard last year, for instance, did not come within 400 points of Huntington in the Sargent test.

Last year's strong man, Leslie, was second this year with a record of 1,209.2; W. J. Gardner third with 1,132, and H. B. Gardner fourth with 1,040.

THORPE AN ALL AROUND ATHLETE

THE 1911 football season has brought into the public eye a young Indian student at the Carlisle school who promises to become one of the greatest athletes the world has ever seen. James Thorpe, a Sac and Fox from Oklahoma, went to Carlisle in 1903 with no knowledge whatever of athletics, and since then he has accomplished a variety of athletic feats on floor, gridiron, diamond, track and in the field.

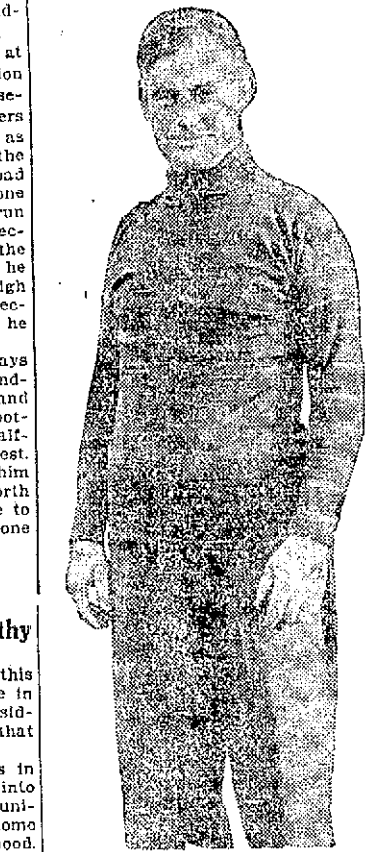

Thorpe is a basketball player, at which game he fills the center position with remarkable skill. He is a baseball pitcher of great talent and covers any of the sacks or outfield as well as many professionals. He can put the sixteen pound shot 43 feet and broad jumps 22 feet 10 inches, having done much better in practice. He can run 100 yards in 10 seconds, his school record being 10 1-5. When he tries the high jump his measure is 6 feet, but he has done better than that. The high hurdles are easy for him in 15 4-5 seconds, while the 220 yard hurdles he negotiates in 26 seconds.

This youthful redskin hunts, plays lacrosse, tennis, indoor baseball, handball, hockey, all with equal skill, and can fill almost any position on a football team with credit. As football fullback he is probably seen at his best. One great coach said after seeing him play at Pittsburgh that it was worth five times the admission to see Thorpe tear down the field for one sport.

"Silk" O'Loughlin Tells One on Umpire McCarthy

UMPIRE "SILK" O'Loughlin tells this one on Jack McCarthy, umpire in the American league in 1905, considered one of the wildest arbitrators that ever officiated in the circuit.

"Jack had just finished a series in Cleveland, where he had bumped into a peck of trouble. The decision uniformly had gone against the home fans, and they were in an ugly mood. Jack was a born fighter. He wouldn't take anything from anybody, either ball player or fan. He went to the mat with several obstreperous fans and came out the winner, but he shrugged his shoulders when one mentioned Cleveland to him. We had just finished a series in Chicago and were on the way to Boston. We were nearing a town when Jack looked out the window and asked what the name of the city was. 'That is Cleveland,' said the porter. Jack shut his eyes and said, 'Let me know when we are through.'" monuments have their uses, but not on the football field.

Use your "searchlights." The rules say, "Keep one foot on the ground when making a tackle," but that does not mean that you should grope there.

One man only is needed to carry the ball, but it is mighty hard going for him unless he is ably assisted by his teammates.

Do not get discouraged at strong opposition. Keep up your courage and determination when the game seems to be going against you. The team that has met and surmounted strong opposition and difficulties is the team worth while.

A universal rule for tackling—never let anything get away from you. Do not hesitate "go to it," carry the fight into the enemy's country.

Remember, it is not what you did in your last game or last year that is going to win the day, but what you do now. You will get out of the game just about what you put into it.

Play the game fair. You will have so much more confidence in yourself and far more enthusiasm for your work.

The spirit of the contest is half the battle, so have plenty of spirit, but "no spicits."

A man without courage and confidence is licked before the game begins.

Maxims For the Gridiron

By FIELDING H. YOST.

DO your part in every play; be a worker. The plays are designed for eleven men to execute, not ten. Spectators are not wanted on the gridiron. Their places are in the grand stand.

Think; be versatile; take advantage of every opportunity. Cigar store Indians, clock models and boundary

The man who can "come back" after he has encountered difficulties is made of the right stuff.

Eleven men make a football team now, as in the early days of the game, but modern requirements make it necessary that eleven men play constantly together and to the end. If one man lags, errs or is inefficient it is almost impossible for the others to get good results, no matter how well directed may be their efforts. Individual strength, wit, courage and ability must be there. But they must weld themselves into a chain that makes every advantage possessed by one member of the team a common asset.

It is team play, and only team play, that will yield success, and no eleven can succeed without it.

SWEDES MAY SURPRISE US IN OLYMPIC GAMES

ERNEST W. HJERTBERG, the famous trainer of athletes, who is now in Sweden shaping up the home talent for the fifth Olympiad, which is to be held in Stockholm from June 22 to July 22, writes to a friend in this country that he has strong hopes of his pupils winning the laurels.

The Swede was selected last summer by the committee formed in Sweden to arrange for the Olympic games of 1912, and it was a proud day for Hjertberg when he went home to undertake his patriotic task. It was like coming into his own, a consummation that he had not foreseen when he came to America, because there was here a better field for his athletic instruction than in Scandinavia.

TACKLING, which is one of the most important individual plays in modern football, is one of the things which seem to be receiving scant attention from many western coaches. Under the new rules practically every tackle made is an open field one, so hard, accurate felling of the runner has become more and more important until at present it is to be doubted if there is a more important individual play.

Western coaches have been rather negligent in teaching their men how to perform this most difficult feat, and the schools of this division which have achieved any portion of fame through the ability of their men in this particular might be counted upon the fingers of one hand. Michigan, Illinois and Notre Dame are three schools in which hard, deadly tackling is the first thing instilled into candidates for gridiron honors, and every year the men of these three squads need give no odds to eastern teams in this respect.

One of the most important rules concerning tackling was made in 1910 and was in force last season. Yet this rule was scarcely ever enforced by officials, and coaches have practically agreed among themselves to take no cognizance of the paragraph.

The revised rule is as follows: "A player when tackling an opponent must have one foot at least on the ground."

This was aimed at the flying tackle, which some persons believed to be dangerous both for the man making it and for the one thrown by this means. It came in the sweeping revision of 1909 and apparently was slipped in while the students of the game had their minds elsewhere, for of scores of former players and present coaches who have been asked their opinions of the flying tackle fewer than 10 per cent have declared they thought the flying tackle a dangerous play, while more than 50 per cent have declared the flying tackle less likely to result in injuries to players than the ordinary standing check.

A flying tackle, as its name implies, is made by a player "on the fly"—that is, it is a diving tackle, the man making it often taking both feet off the ground before he hits the man carrying the ball and sailing through the air with almost irresistible force. It is one of the most difficult tackles to avoid, for the stiff arm is practically useless against it. The tackler comes sweeping in low, where the leverage of the stiff arm is practically a minus quantity, and the force gathered in springing through the air is far greater than could be obtained by a man standing firmly on both feet.

Of course if the tackle is started too soon it can be easily avoided, for the man making it naturally cannot change his course once his feet have left the ground, but if made an instant too late all the man carrying the ball must do is to sidestep it.

Flying tackles are essentially open field plays, and as the game under the new rules is practically entirely played in the open field the flying tackle has come to be used more and more in spite of the embargo against it. Few years are made inside the guards this year, and oft tackle and around end plays are more easily stopped by the dive than by a piling up.

Tackles in the day of line plungers were usually made by linemen who had both feet on the ground. They checked the runner for an instant, and in this instant came the push and pull of the mass play, which probably resulted in more injuries to players than any other part of the game with the exception of the deadly body check.

Harvard used a tackle in 1909 which combined all the good qualities of the flying dive, while it was strictly within the rules. Instead of leaving the ground with both feet the Crimson players converted the dive into a lung, keeping one foot on the ground, and thus obtained the leverage of a purchase on the ground the instant they hit the man carrying the ball.

It takes the exceptional player to execute this well, however, and other coaches rave up trying to do so after a few weeks of attempts. Yale used it to a slight extent last year, as did Harvard and Princeton, but when sure tackles were imperative the men instinctively reverted to the use of the flying tackle.

More than one old player is of the opinion that the flying tackle, properly made, is less dangerous than any other sort. It is undoubtedly the prettiest play on the gridiron, and spectators will applaud a perfectly made flying tackle quicker than they will any other thing. It is a noticeable fact that few men who are masters of the flying tackle ever have been injured in using it, the great percentage of injuries resulting from it coming rather as the result of its misuse than its use.

"To my mind, the flying tackle is one of the safest possible ways to stop a runner," declared a former star recently. "It is quick and sure, and if the man running with the ball has been taught how to fall he is in little danger. I have used the tackle myself in all the football I ever played, and most of the men against whom I played have used it also, yet I never received an injury."

"When a runner is hit hard and dumped quickly there is no chance of his regaining his feet and so no necessity for 'piling on.' On the other hand, an inexperienced tackler catching a man in a gentle manner in such a way as not to cause him to lose his feet the instant he is touched is in need of help from his teammates. Players of the side carrying the ball naturally rush to aid their comrade with the ball, and this results in the mass play."

"The flying tackle is made at a point below the center of mass of the man carrying the ball in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred. This naturally slams the man to the ground in short order and the play is all over. With a ball is hit above the center of mass and balance and is able to keep his feet to a far greater extent. A man hit hard and thrown to the ground is far less liable to injury than one who struggles in the grasp of an opponent and often is involved in the center of a struggling mass."

Few coaches or officials take cognizance of the rule forbidding the flying tackle. A prominent western coach was asked last season immediately upon the promulgation of the rule forbidding the play what tackle he would teach his men.

"That depends altogether upon how strictly the rule is enforced," was his answer. "There is one man, however, who will be taught the flying tackle as much as I ever taught it before the rule was made. This man is the defensive back. All his tackles are made when the man carrying the ball has passed the line of scrimmage and he is the only defender of the goal line. The penalty for violation of the rule is five yards. I figure that I would rather take a certain penalty of five yards for the violation of the rule than take a chance of teaching this sole defender of my goal a less efficient tackle than the dive. The penalty is easier every time."

Officials found it well nigh impossible to enforce the rule last season and after a few ineffectual attempts desisted. A tackle is the work of an instant, and it would be as difficult to tell whether the man making the play had one foot on the ground, as it is the task of the baseball official in calling plays at first base. The football referee, however, never is in as favorable a position as the baseball arbiter and is seldom willing to call a foul.

Of course flagrant violations are penalized and will continue to be, but flagrant violations are as much an offense against the perfection of the play as they are against the rule itself and seldom occur with good coaching.

Michigan, Notre Dame and Illinois are the schools which show greatest ability in the west in the art of tackling. The coaches of these schools annually lay stress upon the value of sure downing of the man with the ball and much of their early season practice is directed toward perfecting the art. The method used is strenuous, both for the tacklers and the backs. The backs are sent running down the field with the ball, and the tacklers are dispatched after them in pairs. Backs are never praised for escaping the oncoming tacklers, for the order of the day is tackling practice, and the tacklers are soundly "balled out" for failures.

GRAND CIRCUIT HORSES TO AUSTRIA.

Two of the season's best grand circuit performers will be raced in Austria next year. John E. Madden has sold Soprano, 2:03 1/4, to Leopold Hoyer of Vienna, the present owner of Bob Douglas, an American bred trotter. Arlo Leyburn, from the Geers stable, has been sold to J. Schleringer and will also go to Austria.

Proper Way For One to Tackle Under New Rules

UMPIRE BILL EVANS KNOWS WHY FANS BECOME WILD

"NOW I know how it feels to see a decision go against one's favorite. Now I know why the baseball fan acts like a wild man," said Umpire Bill Evans during one of the world's series games.

"I never understood until now the sensations endured by the spectators at a ball game. I don't believe I have had a headache for ten years until this series."

"It's funny what a difference there is between the views of an umpire and a spectator. On the ball field I feel no thrill. It is a cold blooded mechanical affair from that point of view. I have no preference. It is no trouble being impartial. In the world's series in which I was an umpire I felt no different from the way I felt during any game of the regular American league season.

"But what a difference there is to a ball game when one becomes a spectator and a fan. It's a vastly changed game then, a thing of beauty, of skill, a game which thrills and inspires."

Bill was thrilled. He had never looked at an important contest from the fans' point of view before. He was one of the wildest fans. He shouted and howled when Baker's home runs turned the tide of the second and third games. He groaned when the Giants scored the winning run of the fifth game and when Murphy's error let the Giants score the first run of the final game.

He watched every action of players and umpires. He passed opinions on the decisions of the arbitrators like any rabid fan, never failing to express disapproval when he thought the decisions against the Athletics.

For the first time in his life he knew the feelings which make of the average mild individual a raving maniac when once the real baseball fever hits him.

Bill's ideas have changed vastly. "This is the umpire's job beaten a mile," he declared after the Athletics had settled the championship beyond doubt and he had wiped away the perspiration which had gathered during the early exciting periods of that decisive contest.

MEMBERSHIP GROWS

THOMAS MALONEY,
Physical Instructor.HENRY P. SULLIVAN, Chairman Athletic Committee.Catholic Young Men's Lyceum in a Prosperous Condition

The membership boom of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum has resulted in an addition of over 100 members to the gymnasium connected with that popular organization and daily new members are being added to the list.

Henry P. Sullivan, the well known swimmer and athlete, who is chairman of the athletic committee, has engaged the services of Mr. Thomas Maloney as physical instructor.

Mr. Maloney has had a wide experience in this kind of work and as a result of his zealous work the interest among the older members as well as the new members is increasing.

Mr. Maloney proved his value as an instructor at the Greenleaf school playgrounds in West Centralville last summer.

Owing to the big increase in membership new and improved apparatuses being added to the gym. There is a large attendance every day of business as well as others who have an opportunity to visit the gym during the day, while the attendance at night is unusually large.

The shower baths are also well patronized and at the present time visits can be made during the day or evenings as each member is furnished with a key and the restrictions as to the hours of use of the place have been removed.

Mr. Sullivan is very enthusiastic over the work undertaken and in conversation with a representative of The Sun said that there is nothing better for a young man than the regular exercises in class drills. Last March he started to participate in these drills and today, although he has reduced 52 pounds in weight, feels much stronger and is enjoying better health and has more endurance than he had prior to joining the lyceum. Under the guidance of Instructor Maloney or John Conlin, of whom is always ready to help the young athletes, any person can rapidly improve his physical condition.

During the past season the C. Y. M. L. athletes have taken prizes in every open event held in this city. Among those who were the C. Y. M. L. colors and captured prizes are Mullon, Flory, Carr, Salmon, Lynch, Quinn, Christy, Matoney, McManus, Kivlin, Harrington, Roark and Halloran.

Besides having one of the finest gymnasiums in this vicinity the C. Y. M. L. has for the use of the members a reception room, reading room with the best of books and current literature, a pool and billiards room, card and game room and an assembly hall which seats 300 people.

THE 15th INFANTRY

Will be Ordered to Proceed to China

MANILA, Nov. 22.—The 15th Infantry, which is due to arrive here on Dec. 21, probably will be sent at once to China. The soldiers will arrive on the transport Thomas and will leave for China on the same boat. The regiment will be reinforced to full war strength taken by transfers from other regiments and will be prepared before departure for a long stay in Chinese territory. It will be accompanied by a hospital corps and by detachments of engineers, signal men, field artillery and possibly cavalry. Army officials conferred here today regarding preparation for the trip.

Incidentally, an order was issued directing all officers in the vicinity of Manila to take a special physical test immediately.

ENGINEER KEARNEY

Puzzled About Defining Line on Northerly Side of Merrimack St.

City Civil Engineer Stephen Kearney went rummaging through the records in the city clerk's office recently in search of some authority upon which to rely in defining the line on the northerly side of Merrimack street from a point near number 747 to Park street, there being some doubt as to the proper location of the line there.

Mr. Kearney discovered that in 1860 an agreement had been entered into between the city and the then abutters whereby the latter agreed to abate the city from any liability. There were four houses there at that time and they were occupied by James Keel, A. J. Griffin, Samuel W. Lock and W. S. Southworth. There were vacant lots owned by C. B. Coburn, A. M. Ayer and Josiah Corner.

Mr. Southworth, at that time, was agent of the Lawrence corporation. The agreement was drawn up by J. G. Chase, the first elected civil engineer for the city of Lowell, and he served for 15 years.

WOMAN DROPPED DEAD

She Was Stricken While on Her Way to Work

Mrs. Mary A. Lord, wife of George I. Lord, aged 49 years, dropped dead in Cushing street early this morning. Mrs. Lord left her home at her usual time this morning going to her work. She seemed to be in the best of health for she never complained of being ill. When she reached 173 Cushing street, she dropped to the sidewalk, and when she was picked up, life was extinct. Dr. Joe Melis, medical examiner, viewed the body and the remains were removed to the funeral parlors of Undertaker Weinbeck, 16 Market street. The deceased's home was at 117 Willis street.

TAKEN FROM JURY

Court Orders Verdict for Defendant in W. H. Penn Case

In the superior civil court, with juries, this morning in the case of Rebecca Goldman, administratrix of the estate of Abraham Goldman vs. William H. Penn, Judge Morton took the case from the jury, ordering a verdict for the defendant. This is the case of the bricklayer who was drowned in the canal, during the construction of the new Massachusetts mills in East Merrimack street a year ago last September. The defendant had the contract for the carpentering work and it was alleged that through the carelessness of the defendant or his employees the deceased stepped on a loose board that covered a hole in the floor and was precipitated into the canal.

When the plaintiff's case had been put in yesterday afternoon Messrs. Trull & Wier for the defence made a motion to have the case taken from the jury and the motion was overruled after the arguments by counsel on both sides. This morning the defence opened but after a few witnesses had been heard Judge Morton ordered a verdict for the defendant.

The next case was an action of tort by Jennie Mercer against the Boot mills to recover for injuries received while at work on a freight elevator while in the employ of the defendant company. H. B. Charbonneau appeared for the plaintiff, and Messrs. Dunbar, Spaulding and Rogers for the defence.

The case of Mercer vs. Boot mills took up the entire afternoon session. Among the witnesses called by the defence was D. George E. Calise, who attended the plaintiff after the accident.

Equity Cases Heard

At the opening of Judge Fessenden's session of court this morning the equity and court lists were read and several motions heard.

In the equity case of Philippe N. Gosselin vs. Marie Zoe Lamothie, the matter was referred to William A. Hogan as master on agreement of counsel, William H. Bent for the plaintiff, and John J. Devine for the defendant.

In this case the plaintiff acquired certain property from the respondent and her husband, the late Louis P. Lamothie, in 1904, giving a mortgage under the provisions of which he was to keep the husband and wife during their lives and afford them decent burials at their death. The husband died some time ago and since his death the wife has been dissatisfied and leaving the home of the plaintiff. She sought to foreclose the mortgage. The plaintiff claims that he carried out the provisions of the mortgage until the wife left his house and is ready to continue to carry out his provisions. The respondent answers that the plaintiff did not keep her in comfort and he neglected to insure or pay taxes on the property as provided for the mortgage.

When the case of McCormick vs. Callahan on exceptions to a master's report was called, John J. Devine, who appears for the plaintiff, stated that the plaintiff was ready but Clerk Putnam stated that Charles J. Wier, who appeared for the defendant, was engaged in the criminal court at Cambridge and desired a continuance. Lawyer Devine addressed the court asking that the case be heard this session as it has been going along for three years. He was instructed to communicate with Mr. Wier relative to a hearing on the case at this time.

In Judge Fessenden's court this afternoon the case of Demery vs. Mary Finnegan, father and daughter, for the recovery of certain property in Agawam street, was heard. Mr. Silverblatt appeared for the plaintiff and Messrs. Trull & Wier for the defence.

More Divorce Cases

There was the usual large attendance in the divorce court this morning when Judge Irwin opened his session at 10 o'clock. From the manner in which the cases were proceeded today it is probable that both courts will hear contested cases.

In the case of Windrop H. Farnsworth of Waltham vs. Luella Farnsworth, for desertion, it was apparent that both parties were more attached to their aged parents than to each other and in consideration thereof the court granted a decree.

Georgiana Sanderson of Waltham was granted a decree from Fred S. Sanderson on the ground of desertion. Annie M. Haviland of Malden was allowed a decree from James B. Haviland on the ground of desertion.

Marjorie B. Purvis of Dracut testified that her husband, John B. Purvis, treated her cruelly and she was granted a decree.

Trene Slater and her husband, Ernest J. Slater of Cambridge, are Salvation Army people, but the court prevented them having their troubles and Mrs. Slater asked for a divorce. One of the women witnesses for the libellant, wearing a Salvation Army uniform, was asked what reputation was borne by the libellee in the army. "His reputation was weak and he was expelled from the army," was the reply. A decree was granted.

Bertha N. Ordway of Reading applied for and received a decree from her husband, Orville O. Ordway, on statutory grounds.

At the opening of the afternoon session uncontested divorce cases were taken up again.

RECORD BREAKER

Vote at Primaries Will be Largest in City's History

The problem of handling so many extra voters at the polls is bothering not only the registrars of voters but all those who are conversant with and interested in political affairs. It didn't dawn upon even the wisest of them all that the voting population of the city would be increased almost 50 per cent in a few days, but that's just what has happened. Before the women started registering for the pending election the checklists contained the names of only 519 women and up to and including yesterday that number had been increased to 4572. The registrars allow that that's going some.

Here is a very interesting table, gotten up by Clerk King of the board of registrars. It gives the number of women registered in the different wards up to the time of the present rush for registration and the increase since the present rush began:

The Original List
Ward 1	21
Ward 2	12
Ward 3	17
Ward 4	8
Ward 5	33
Ward 6	38
Ward 7	229
Ward 8	14
Ward 9	147
Total	519

The Additions
Ward 1	542
Ward 2	323
Ward 3	245
Ward 4	547
Ward 5	460
Ward 6	383
Ward 7	465
Ward 8	657
Ward 9	649
Total	4572

Thus it will be seen that the number of names added is more than ten times greater than the number of women qualified to vote last year.

The registration yesterday by wards, was as follows:

Wards	Women	Men
1	121	16
2	74	2
3	159	8
4	125	7
5	81	9
6	82	6
7	113	5
8	149	3
9	143	3
Total	1063	60

Chairman Allard of the board of

registrars announced today that the office of the board would remain open tonight so long as there was any one to be registered. The hours are supposed to be from 1 p. m. to 9 p. m., but it is optional with the registrars. In this instance, as to when they shall close an office you are in the line when curfew rings don't abandon hope, for the registrars will not close up shop until the coast is clear.

Edward T. Goward of the school committee was a caller at the office of the board of registrars this forenoon and he took occasion to compliment the registrars upon their almost flawless check list for the state election. Relative to the anticipated rush at the polls on election day Mr. Goward said he thought the trouble could be overcome if the women would go to the polls between 1 and 5 o'clock. "The polls," said Mr. Goward, "will open at 12 m., and close at 9 p. m. Now if the women would go to the polls between the hours of 1 and 5 o'clock I think the crowd could be handled in good shape. As a rule there is very little doing at the polling booths between one and five and that would be the best time for the women to vote."

GUILD'S PROTEST

Was Utterly Ignored by the Russian Government Officials

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 22.—Ambassador Guild's representations on behalf of American Jewish citizens whose passports are ignored by the Russian government have been ignored.

Acting Secretary of State Neratoff sent the usual stereotyped reply that all passport questions were under the control of the department of the interior. The new minister of the interior, M. Makaroff, is more anti-Semitic than the late Premier Stolypin. He is now engaged in attacking those Russian Jews whose educational diplomas entitle them to live outside the Jewish pale. They are compelled to observe stricter registration regulations than even domestic servants.

BOARD OF POLICE

Granted a License to Richard Murphy

The members of the police board held a special meeting this afternoon and transacted a little business. J. T. Donohue was granted a transfer of his license from 259 Lakewood avenue to 376 Middlesex street. The license of E. A. Shea at 599-601 Broadway was surrendered and cancelled and a license of the first class was granted to Richard Murphy for the same address.

HON. DAVID I. WALSH

Will Probe the New Bedford Corruption Cases

Hon. David I. Walsh, democratic candidate for lieutenant governor in the recent state election this afternoon informed a reporter of The Sun that he would accept the invitation of the Boston Post to probe and prosecute the alleged corrupt balloting in the city of New Bedford on election day.

Mr. Walsh was in Lowell to try a court case which came up before Judge Irwin late this afternoon and when asked by the writer said: "As a candidate for high public office I feel it my duty toward the commonwealth to enter upon the prosecution of the alleged cases of corruption at New Bedford. There is nothing more despicable to my mind than the corruption of the ballot. What is the use of nominating good men to office if they are going to be sold out on election. The situation in New Bedford is not merely a local affair but affects the entire commonwealth."

MERRITT TELLS STORY

Of His Dealings With John D. Rockefeller

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—With a bitterness that lent emphasis to his utterances and at times fairly beside himself with pent up rage, Leonard Merritt told the Stanley steel trust investigating committee today a personal narrative of his dealings with John D. Rockefeller and how the latter had forced him out of the copper business in Minnesota. Mr. Merritt declared that it was after he had turned down a proposition from Mr. Rockefeller which he characterized as "stealing" that Rockefeller called on him to pay a million dollar loan and brought about his downfall. "The proposition," Mr. Merritt said, "came through the John D. Gates, Mr. Rockefeller's attorney."

"I listened in amazement to it," said Merritt. "It meant that several men would be thrown out of the company and their stock taken. I turned to Gates and said: 'Mr. Gates, you came from John D. Rockefeller. Go back to John D. Rockefeller and tell him that when I steal for a living I will steal for myself.'"

At one time during the remarkable recital of his dealings with Mr. Rockefeller an encounter between the witness and George W. Murray, counsel for the Standard Oil magnate, was narrowly averted.

Merritt, turning suddenly in his chair and facing Mr. Murray, pounded the table as he declared:

"I couldn't see how in hell I could have gone to New York with millions, in those few months have lost them all and was standing there contemplating the wreck. I had gone there placing confidence in Mr. Murray as counsel."

"I would like to interrupt here," interjected Mr. Rockefeller's counsel, rising to his feet "to have the witness asked if I ever acted as his counsel. Any such statement is an absolute farce."

"If I answer that," said Merritt, "weren't you the counsel for the Consolidated Co., and didn't you act with me throughout those proceedings?"

Here Chairman Stanley interrupted and said that he did not propose to have witnesses insulted but he permitted the question as to whether Mr. Murray had ever acted as Merritt's personal counsel and the witness said he had not.

Mr. Merritt said that Gates told him Rockefeller was "hard up." He believed it at the time, but today he said Gates had "lied."

During a controversy between Attorney Murray and the witness, Chairman Stanley said:

"My Rockefeller ought to be summoned here and will be summoned." "The committee, however, up to the luncheon recess had taken no formal action."

At one point in Mr. Merritt's recital, Attorney Reed, counsel for the steel corporation, asked Mr. Stanley if he thought his line of testimony competent in the inquiry.

"The chair feels that right at this minute he is performing the greatest public service he ever did in his life," Mr. Stanley replied.

"In connection with the interstate commerce law?" asked the lawyer.

"To humanity," was Mr. Stanley's reply.

Rep. Danforth at the conclusion of Mr. Merritt's testimony asked that all the testimony of the Merritt brothers be stricken from the record on the ground that it was irrelevant to the inquiry.

The motion was lost. Reps. Stanley, Reed and McMillen, democrats, voting "no," and Reps. Danforth and Gardner, republicans, voting "aye."

Mr. Littleton, the only other member of the committee in Washington, was not present.

HELD IN $3000

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Henry Heath, the young highwayman who at the point of a revolver held up an automobile containing four persons last night on Perkins street, Jamaica Plain, was given a hearing in the West Roxbury court today. He pleaded guilty and was held in $3000 bail for the grand jury.

THREE WERE INJURED

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 22.—Three employees were severely injured and many of the women help had their nerves shaken at the book bindery of Ginn & Co., today when a freight truck crashed into an elevator that was carrying a score of employees. The wounded were sent to the Massachusetts General hospital in three ambulances while others were treated at the bindery and sent to their homes.

THE BEEF PACKERS

Striving Hard to Secure a Stay of Proceedings

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—With the last word of District Judge Carpenter yesterday, that "unless a stay order is granted the case will proceed next Monday," still uppermost in their minds were just as busy watching the activities of opposing counsel. Close watch was being kept on Washington, where it was said, Attorney Austrian had gone today with the appeal papers. It was the belief of counsel for the government that he would endeavor to gain a halt in the trial by appealing to one of the justices of the supreme court. Rumor had it that the packers intended appealing directly to Chief Justice White. This move was considered unlikely by others engaged in the case because it was argued that if the chief justice should be appealed to and refuse, then it would be practically useless to appeal to any associate justice. Therefore, it was thought that an appeal would first be made to an associate justice. It is argued by counsel for the defendants that each justice has the power, during recess, to issue a stay order on an appeal for a decision in a habeas corpus case. The question of whether the packers would go to trial next Monday, it was believed, would hinge entirely on this question of power. Whether any further moves would be taken before local federal courts was a matter of conjecture. The appeal taken from Circuit Judge Kohlman's decision in the habeas corpus proceeding with the constitutionality of the criminal provision of the Sherman anti-trust law as a basis and the subsequent postponement of the hearing by Judge Carpenter of the trial gave counsel for the packers ample time to arrange surprises for the government lawyers and these were momentarily looked for.

BOXING GOSSIP
Billy Mulvey, who is to meet George Stone in the semi-final at the Lowell Social and Athletic club Friday evening, is training daily for his coming bout, and is reported to be in fine condition. Mulvey is a clever boxer but never paid much attention to getting into condition before. Now he is preparing carefully and should give a good account of himself. Stone, his opponent, keeps in shape all the time and the pair should make a fast bout. The bout between Al Delmont and Chick Roskin of New Bedford will attract many boxing fans from out of town, for the bout was originally scheduled for Boston and there is great interest in it outside of this city. Delmont is one of the cleverest bantams that ever donned a mitt, having met all the topnotchers in his class, while Roskin is a young boxer who is coming along fast. The fine preliminary will be given and the bouts will start at 8.30 sharp.

BILLERICA
There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Billerica board of trade Monday night and many matters of importance were discussed during the evening. The feature of the meeting was an interesting address by J. L. Park of Boston. Rev. Charles H. Williams presided during the evening. The board of selectmen met Monday night and transacted routine business and also gave a hearing on the petition of the N. E. T. & T. Co. for the location of a pole in High street.

CHELMSFORD
The town is to have some hot games of basketball this winter for at a meeting of basketball enthusiasts held at the firehouse, Monday night, a league was organized. Arthur W. House was chosen president, and Fred Carl, secretary and treasurer. A league of four teams was formed, composed of practically the same members as last year. The teams are: Firemen, captain, H. V. Switzer; Pirates, captain, Roy Montgomery; Tigers, captain, Charles Douglas; Alumni, captain, Fred Carl. The schedule of games was arranged, the first, a double header, to be played between the Alumni and Pirates and the Tigers and Firemen on December 2. The majority of games will come on Saturday nights.

MATRIMONIAL
The marriage of Mr. William C. Jackson, son of Dr. and Mrs. William B. Jackson of 329 High street, and Miss Mabel A. MacIver, was solemnized last evening at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. A. C. Wheelock, 157 Nesmith street, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. M. Craft. The bridegroom is well known in this city, where he lived until a year ago when he went to Milwaukee to accept a position in the tanning business. The young couple will make their home at 771 Maryland avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN

Fixed the Hours of Voting at the Primaries

At a regular meeting of the board of aldermen held last night it was voted to extend the time of voting next Tuesday from 12 m. to 5 p. m. The order for the extension of time was introduced by Alderman Flanagan who said that additional time would be required to accommodate the women voters who will represent about 50 per cent of the regular voting population of the city. He said that the tremendous rush of women to be registered for the school board was unprecedented and it would require time to handle so many new voters. There was no opposition to his order.

John H. Murphy, secretary of the board of trade, spoke on the act relative to the preparation and opening of public travel and ways in the city of Lowell. He said the act was intended to prevent the putting in of new streets without the sanction of the mayor, city civil engineer and superintendent of streets. There were no remonstrants and the act was accepted.

A hearing on petition of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company for four pole locations between Raynor and Westford streets, on Pine street was held. Mrs. W. H. Wilson asked that the board postpone action until they viewed the premises. She said that the running of wires through the trees would prove disastrous to them.

A hearing on petition of the same company for pole locations on Gardner, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth avenues was read. Eugene F. Crane objected to the putting in of a pole or poles at the corner of Crawford street and Fifth avenue.

A hearing on petition of the same company for five pole locations on Forrest street, between Chalmers and Linwood streets, was scheduled, but because of a desire to cancel the petition on the part of petitioners it was voted to withdraw the petition.

A joint order granting permission to the Lowell Wearing Co. to blow its whistles or sound gongs at starting and closing times was adopted.

The mayor's appointments of Frank B. London and William R. Brown to be surveyors of lumber and weighers of hay were confirmed.

The city auditor's statement of the finances of various departments was referred to the joint committee on appropriations.

A joint order to borrow $3000 for improvements at the rifle range, at the Middlesex Village school, and for a hot water heater at city hall was read.

In the common council the loan term was changed from ten years to one year and it was so voted to amend and to pass in concurrence.

Licensees to keep and store gasoline were granted Pratt & Forrest, Alphonse Bibeault, John E. O. P. Prentiss and John T. Saunders.

A petition that West Fifth avenue be extended was referred to the committee on streets.

A joint order to borrow $12,000 to place out appropriations for the industrial school, cemetery department and for the law department was read.

Of this amount $10,000 is for the industrial school; $200 for the cemetery department and $200 each to defend the Hassan Paving Co. and grade crossing suits. The order was adopted on the part of the aldermen. It was voted to grant permission to the New England Telephone & Telegraph company to erect five poles on Foster street.

Mr. Jodoin moved a ballot for city physician. The motion was not seconded and it was then voted to adjourn.

GREENHALGE SCHOOL Holds Entertainment and Art Exhibit

A delightful exhibit of photographs, color prints, engravings and copper plate paintings was held at the Greenhalge school yesterday afternoon and evening in the assembly room of the school. In the evening an entertainment was given by the class of 1909. The first number was a song by Miss Alice Handley, Miss Frances Dowd accompanying her on the piano. Then there was a song by Miss Beatrice Deland.

The main event of the evening was the reading of a paper, prepared by the makers of this collection of pictures and descriptive of the collection, and a very able criticism by the master of the school, Mr. Frederick A. Wood.

This evening at the entertainment to be given by the members of the class of 1910 from this school, Mr. Philip S. Marden will give an address on "Greek Sculpture".

The main exhibit is of reproductions of the masterpieces of art and architecture by photography and carbon print. The prints are all excellent and include a variety of subjects from all the most important schools of painting.

THE BOARD OF POLICE

Heard Patrolmen's Request for More Pay

Patrolman David H. Hogan and Gilbert W. Sheridan of the police department appeared before the members of the board of police at the meeting held last night with a request that the pay of the patrolmen of the department be increased 25 cents per day.

Patrolman Sheridan stated that members of the force had not received an increase for 25 years and inasmuch as employees in other departments were paid more than they are in Lowell.

The board took the matter under consideration.

The hearing in the case of Hugh Ferguson, proprietor of the St. James hotel, was again postponed, this time until November 28. The case on the new complaint will be heard in the local court Saturday, and the defendants wish to see the disposition made of the case at that time.

The minor licenses granted were as follows: To sell ice cream, fruit and confectionery on the Lord's day: Geo. B. Davis, 25 Bridge street; Kathie Kelly, 25 Lake street; William and Wilson, 14 Merrimack square; special police, Frank Hollis, for the Merrimack Hotel, 159 Middlesex street and vicinity.

Licenses surrendered and cancelled: George Mevis, 313 Central street; Daux Brax, 14 Merrimack square.

OF CHILDE HASSAM'S PICTURES AT WHISTLER HOUSE

An exhibition of color drawings and water colors by Mr. Child Hassam was opened in the Whistler house yesterday and it will continue one week.

The exhibit numbers 35 pictures and is both novel and interesting. The subjects are mainly French and Spanish, and include several landscapes, street scenes, ancient churches and houses.

Mr. Hassam's reputation as an artist is international and his style is all his own.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

"Nights in a Barroom" with its familiar characters will be attractive at the Lowell Opera House on Tuesday, Nov. 28.

The play is one which has stood the test of more than fifty years and the present version is one that should prove interesting for Messrs. Holden & Edwards, under whose direction the production is staged, have interpolated much good comedy and some especially funny songs.

BILLY THE KID

The sale of tickets for "Billy the Kid" which is to be the Thanksgiving Day attraction at the Opera House is now going on and promises to be an exceptionally large one. "Billy the Kid" is a play, a breezy western one with plenty of comedy and heart interest and is being presented by a clever company. The engagement here is for two nights commencing Wednesday, Nov. 29th and with a matinee Thanksgiving day.

MAUDE ADAMS

Now that we are to have "Chanticleer" local theatregoers may decide for themselves whether the success of the drama should be credited to Rosland's brilliant writing and construction or Miss Adams' rare charm, or whether the triumph is due to the happy combination of both. That Miss Adams' appeal to women is unrivaled there is no doubt, and you will find women at the Opera House in large numbers on Dec. 5. Perhaps the two things above all else in the personality of Maude Adams that have won her so many admirers are her constant naturalness and her unaffected womanliness. Through all of her triumphs, despite the fact she is the ideal of a vast army of American women, Miss Adams has remained untarnished by the artificiality of the stage or by the vanity that so often comes with success.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

Different people have different tastes as to musical instruments, but there is one instrument that appeals to all, however their tastes may be relative to the others and that is the harp, the instrument of the poets and minstrels of old, the instrument on which was poured forth the harmony of the old songs that never die. This week the Elliotts have a musical act at Keith's which includes solos and duets on this grand instrument. They play from grand opera on the harp and also entertain with songs, both being excellent singers. Their act is one of the daintiest of vaudeville offerings.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the undersigned, wish to extend our heartfelt thanks for the many acts of kindness shown and the consoling sympathy shown us by the Mystery club and many friends in the loss of our beloved son and nephew, Peter F. Devine.

TWO MEN WERE KILLED

Four Others Were Injured in an Elevator Accident

CHICOPEE, Nov. 22.—Two men were killed and four were injured when a temporary elevator used in construction work on the outside of a new addition to the Fish Rubber company's plant at Chicopee Falls fell 30 feet yesterday. The men, who were laborers employed by a contracting company of this city, were rushed to the Springfield hospital, where two of them died.

The dead: JOHN BAILE, TONY PANNIZIO, 42 Fremont street. The injured: Louis Pannizio, 81 Gardner street, scalp wounds.

Ismaque Defarino, Ludlow, bruised about body and legs.

Edward Perry, Ludlow, probably injured internally.

Angelo DeCarlo, 31 Gardner street, cuts and bruises.

All the injured, it is believed, will recover.

The elevator was rigged in the scaffolding on the outside of the building and was used to carry supplies. The men had been warned to keep off, but it is said that these six men boarded

HATHAWAY THEATRE

One of the interesting features of "The Struggle," Anthony Willis' great comedy-drama now being presented at the Hathaway theatre by the Donald Meek stock company, is a real fist fight between the hero and the villain which is done capably by Donald Meek and William Walsh. Ordinarily, all stage duels are with knives, pistols or fencing foils, but in "The Struggle" the fight is done in the good old American way and by two men who are handy with the fists to use a sporting term.

They put up a fast fight for a few minutes until the villain gets a blow on the jaw that floors him. "The Struggle" is an intensely interesting story of real life built on the old custom of German people to give their children in marriage without the consent of the ones who are to marry. It has a large share of pathos and is so clothed in comedy which runs through the entire play, as to keep away the sympathetic tear which ordinarily would arise. One of the most dramatic situations in the play is the accusation of an innocent girl of a theft by her former lover while she is supposed to be hiding in her room from her father, who has turned her from his home, and yet the audience roars over it by reason of the ingenious manner in which the playwright has injected comedy into it.

Unknown to the girl's accuser, the latter slips out of the door while "Andy Kiernan" (Don Meek), who is about to dress in female attire for a fancy dress ball, slips in. As the accusation is made the father throws open the closet door and instead of finding therein his daughter discloses Meek in the most ridiculous female makeup.

The play is a four act and is a fine request "Our New Minister," which was a big success upon the occasion of its last appearance. Seats for this week's performances may be ordered in advance by telephone, 811.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The New York Hippodrome lions in their big animal act at the Merrimack Square theatre this week is without question, one of the most interesting animal entertainments on the vaudeville stage today. This particular collection of beasts is claimed to be one of the best trained as well as one of the most valuable in captivity. The extreme care exercised by Trainer Glass when occupying the cage with his "pets" tells only too well the great danger attached to the act. "At the Capitol" the delightful one-act play presented by Our Stock company is due for a most successful run. The piece was written by Miss Louie Rogers Stanwood, a graduate of Radcliffe college, and the author of many short story sketches. All four members of the company engaged in the presentation are pleasingly cast and make a most favorable impression. Mack and Vincent are singers and instrumentalists of merit, and Melvin and Thatcher in their fun-maker, "The Baseball Fans" are excellent entertainers. Ah Ling Foo is a Chinese magician whose work is exceptionally clever. Pigeons, ducks and mice are only a few of the many things which this mysterious individual pulls from nowhere in particular. The photo-plays for the first three days of the week are the equal of the best ever shown here and the ones which are to be shown Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be high class. On Friday night selections from the favorite opera "The Tar and the Tarantula" will be featured by the Merrimack Square theatre concert orchestra. Box office telephone 2053.

DRESS GOODS and COATINGS AT REDUCED PRICES

These offerings that we announce today involve a loss that amounts really to a sacrifice, but the loss falls on the manufacturer—not on us—and so the gain is largely yours. Call it good fortune for you. These suitings are in a beautiful range of colorings, while the quality is the best ever seen at these prices.

ALL WOOL STORM SERGE

These storm serges are given prominence because we think hundreds of women want them for the fall suit. The quality of fibre and weaving is shown by the firmness and regularity of the twills. They were made for hard service and undoubtedly will give it. All the latest colors including cream and black. Value $1.00 a yard. Our price 75c

MANNISH SUITINGS

These suitings are manufactured on men's wear looms, absolutely pure worsted and weather tested. They are splendid quality, in a beautiful variety of stylish combinations, some have a trace or line of colors of red, others blue or glint of gold, to brighten them. No guesswork about quality—No doubt about price. 50 inches, value $1.25. Our price $1.00

IMPORTED BROADCLOTHS

We display the best known makes. Broadcloth bought here must be broadcloth; it must hold the lustre, it must never roughen, it must stand the dress-maker's heavy irons, it must wear, this is our guarantee. Here is a change of prices in the customers' favor. 50 inches wide, black and newest colors, sponged and shrunk and spot proof satin surface, value $2.00. Our price $1.50

Cotton Bed Sheets, 35c each or 3 for $1.00—2 yards wide, 2 1/2 yards long, good quality cotton. Made in our own workrooms.

men and they both count a host of friends in the society. Mr. Choquette is a charter member of Carillon council of this city, and he was its first president. He is also a member of several local societies among them being the C. M. A. C. of which he is a past president. He was also president of l'Association de la Jeunesse Catholique de New England, and he presided at the last convention of the union held at Woonsocket, R. I. Other candidates in line for treasurer, are Norbert Descelles, treasurer of Woonsocket, R. I., and an ex-senator of the state of Rhode Island, and Mr. Oliver St. Denis, real estate dealer of Fall River.

The candidates for president up to the present time are President Felix Gauthier of Southbridge, Henri T. Leclerc, Esq. of Nashua, N. H., and Edouard Cadieux of Holyoke, Mass., first president of the society. The following are candidates for secretary: Phylippe J. Hemond, secretary pro tempore of the organization and Alexis Bisson, both of Manchester, N. H. Dr. G. A. Pelletier of Winchendon, Mass., a former member of the general board of officers, Dr. Edouard A. Rochette of Worcester, Mass., and Dr. F. A. Ruest of Pawtucket, R. I., are candidates for medical examiner.

Mr. Arthur Beaucage, former editor of "L'Echo" of this city, is also a candidate for secretary general. The Lowell delegates to the convention are Adolphe Bouchard of J. N. Jacques council, Arthur Beaucage of Carillon council, Henri Lemaitre of Laval council, and Pierre A. Brousseau, president of District council, No. 5.

J. N. Jacques Council of the union held a well attended meeting in the Centralville Social club rooms in Lakewood avenue last night with President Albert Marcotte in the chair. It was decided that a committee of the council meet with the other councils of the city to make arrangements for the quarterly meeting of District council, No. 6, to be held in St. Louis' parish, this city, on Jan. 14.

TURNED ON SPEED. ARRESTED CHAUFFEUR MADE DASH FOR LIBERTY

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Shots fired by a detective who was taking him to the police station in a stolen automobile yesterday failed to halt Frank R. Chase, a chauffeur, charged with stealing the machine of A. S. Porter in Boston and bringing it to this city. The chauffeur, instead of driving to the police station as ordered, started speeding along at 50 miles an hour in an opposite direction through the streets of the Bronx and refused to be slackened down. The detective shot close to the chauffeur's face, but Chase in reply said: "Go ahead; if you kill me we'll all be killed," and turned on more speed. H. V. Chamberlain, a garage owner of Boston, who caused Chase's arrest, was obliged to climb down on the swaying running board and disconnect the battery before the car could be brought to a stop. The chauffeur was then handcuffed and taken in a trolley car to the station. He was held in $1500 bail.

GIRL WAS MURDERED

She Was Shot by Lover She Had Rejected

WALTHAM, Nov. 22.—Giovanna Natoli, aged 17, was shot and killed last night by the man she refused to marry upon the advice of her mother. The alleged murderer, Dominick Beninati, aged 22, is still at large. The shooting occurred at the home of Mrs. Mary Delosa, 21 Oak street, with whom the victim made her home. About 6.30, a few minutes after the girl had arrived from her place of employment, Miss Natoli, who was employed at the cotton mill, had just taken her seat at the supper table when the door quietly opened and a man thrust his arm through the open space and shot her.

Revolver Four Feet Away His revolver was within four feet of her when he fired. So quickly did the assailant do his work that he had disappeared in the darkness before the inmates of the room realized that the girl had been injured.

posure and gave the alarm. The girl, who had dropped to the floor without a word, was lifted onto a lounge and a physician called. Dr. Richard Hinchee, who responded, hurried her to the hospital, where she died at 8.15 without regaining consciousness. The bullet struck her just over the ear and entered the brain.

Rode Away on Bicycle Last evening it was learned that Beninati and the girl had been keeping company for several months. He asked her to marry him and she said she would if her mother would consent. It was agreed between them, Mrs. Delosa said, that Giovanna was to write to her mother in Italy and ask her consent to marry Beninati.

Mother in Italy Refuses The girl received a letter from her mother a few days ago in which the latter even forbade her daughter to continue keeping company with the young man.

When Miss Natoli told her lover of the mother's reply he became furious. He urged the girl to disregard her mother's command and to run away with him. This she refused to do and she told Beninati that he must not call upon her any more because she could not disobey her mother.

Beninati is alleged to have said that unless she would marry him he would kill her. He gave up his position in the mill Saturday and this noon he told Mrs. Mary Monica, with whom he boarded at 19 Spring street, that he wanted his supper served at 4 o'clock as he was going away.

VISCOUNT CHINDA TO BE JAPANESE AMBASSADOR AT WASHINGTON

TOKIO, Japan, Nov. 22.—The transfer of Viscount Sutei Chinda, the Japanese ambassador at Berlin to Washington was officially gazetted today. As ambassador to the United States he succeeds Viscount Uchida, who has returned to Tokio as minister of foreign affairs. Washington was notified of Chinda's tentative appointment a week ago but the appointment was not officially made here until the American state department had indicated that the selection was acceptable. The minister at Stockholm, M. Sugimura, succeeds Baron Chinda, at Berlin.

BABY PITIFUL SIGHT WITH ECZEMA

Completely Covered. Bandaged from Head to Foot. Dared Not Wash Him. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment 4 Weeks and He Was Cured.

"A few days after birth we noticed an inflamed spot on our baby's hip which soon began spreading until baby was completely covered even in his eyes, ears and scalp. For eight weeks he was bandaged from head to foot. He could not have a stitch of clothing on. Our regular physician pronounced it chronic eczema. He is a very able physician and ranks with the best in this locality. Nevertheless, the disease began spreading until baby was completely covered. He was losing flesh so rapidly that we became alarmed and decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment."

"Not until I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment could we tell what he looked like as we dared not wash him, and I had been putting one application after another on him. On removing the scale from his head the hair came off, and left him entirely bald, but since we have been using Cuticura Soap and Ointment he has as much hair as ever. Four weeks after we began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment he was entirely cured. I don't believe anyone could have eczema worse than our baby."

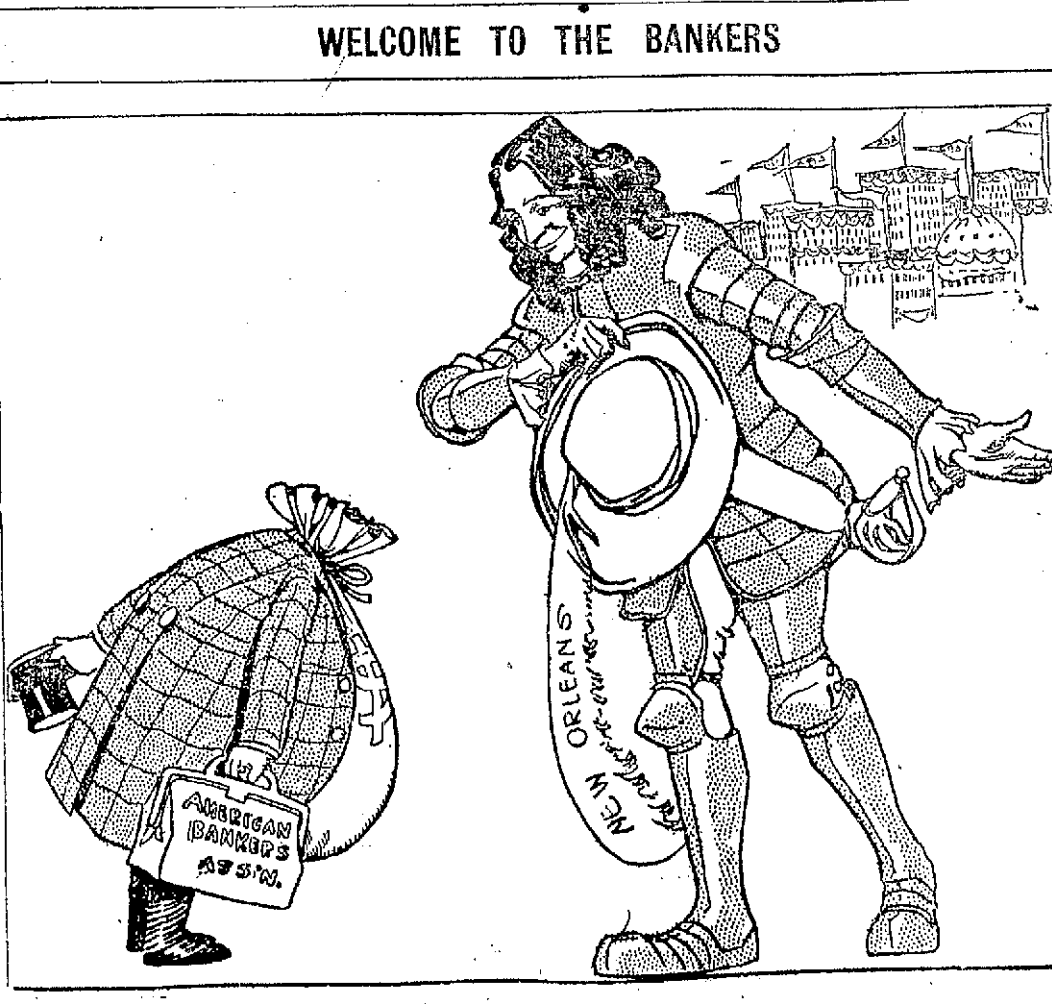

"Before we used the Cuticura Remedies we could hardly look at him, he was such a pitiful sight. He would fuss until I would treat him, they seemed to relieve him so much. Cuticura Soap and Ointment stand by themselves and the result they quickly and surely bring is their own recommendation." (Signed) Mrs. T. B. Roser, Mill Hall, Pa., Feb. 20, '11. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 28, Boston, for a liberal sample of each, post-free, with 32-p. book on the skin.

STRUCK ON ROCKS

Steamer Prinz Joachim Needs Assistance

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The Hamburg Ann. line steamer Prinz Joachim, which sailed from New York last Saturday for Kingston, Jamaica, reported by wireless early today that she had struck on the rocks off Samana island, 200 miles north of Haiti. According to the wireless operator the boat is resting easily and in no immediate danger, but requires assistance as soon as possible. Samana island is one of the small outlying cays of the Bahamas located just southeast of San Salvador, where Columbus landed. Among the passengers on the ship are Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Bryan and their grandchildren. Samana island, also known as Atwoods Key, is an uninhabitable rock about a mile wide. The Prinz Joachim appears to be 25 miles off her course in a region known to mariners as very dangerous. The Prinz Joachim is a modern boat of about 4,750 tons belonging to the go-

FOUND NOT GUILTY

Napoleon Charrest Was Tried on Charge of Arson

Napoleon Charrest, charged with arson who was on trial at the criminal session of the superior court at Cambridge yesterday, was found not guilty by the jury after it had been out about three hours.

DESTROYS DRINK HABIT

The man who drinks to excess needs treatment for his condition. The Orine treatment can be used with absolute confidence. It destroys all desire for whiskey, beer and other intoxicants. It is a simple treatment, it is given in the home—no sanitarium expense—no loss of time from work. If after a trial you fail to get any benefit from its use your money will be returned.

ORINE is prepared in two forms—a powder, for secret treatment, and in pill form, for those who desire to take voluntary treatment. Costs only $1.00 a box. We have an interesting booklet about ORINE that we are giving away free on request. Call at our store and talk it over. Riker-Jaynes Drug Co., 119-123 Merrimack st.

Charrest worked for a tailor in upper Market street and occupied a room in the rear of the shop. On the night of the 27th of September a fire broke out in the tailor shop and as a result of investigation it was found that gasoline had been used and Charrest was placed under arrest. Although he admitted that he had used gasoline he said he did so to remove some vermin in the place. He said he had been drinking and may have accidentally allowed a lighted match to come in contact with the gasoline.

After being given a hearing in the local court probable cause of guilt was found and later he was indicted by the grand jury.

The trial opened yesterday and it was three hours after the jury was charged that it returned a verdict of not guilty. J. Stuart Murphy appeared for the defendant.

STRUCK BY A CAR OFFICERS OF OWLS

Overseer Houston Was Painfully Injured

Were Entertained by the Degree Staff

Nathaniel Houston, an overseer in the Lawrence Mfg. Co., suffered a painful accident last night when he was struck by an electric car at the corner of Merrimack and Hanover streets. Mr. Houston was returning from his work at about 6 o'clock when the accident occurred. The ambulance was called and he was removed to the Lowell hospital, where it was found that he was suffering from a laceration of the left eye and a bad abrasion of the left knee. The injured man returned to his home, 5 Osgood street, last night.

97 PER CENT PERFECT

AN UNUSUAL RECORD FOR A PILE REMEDY

When Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, of Lincoln, Neb., located the cause of piles and found a successful inward remedy for piles, he had it put on sale under a strict guaranty of satisfaction. of Owls," said the speaker "is a friend to the suffering and the helpless. They endeavor by good cheer and kindness to make this world a better place to live in. They believe in equality. The golden rule is their creed."

Warden John J. Hartnett then sang a favorite at once, and had to pay for his cleverness by singing some more.

Arthur Peters was called and gave a recitation and was commended for his effort. "Our degree team" was the subject assigned to C. P. Harrington, and it was seen at once that he knew what he was talking about. Mr. Harrington is the degree staff drillmaster and is a great favorite with the boys.

James E. Dwyer's subject was "Lowell's outlook, politically."

Vice President C. W. Richards spoke on "What the winter has in store for us." The vice president offered many timely suggestions, some of which no doubt will be acted upon by the next year.

"Optical illusion" was the subject assigned to J. H. Rogers, the financial secretary. This speaker made some of the best hits of the evening. His "knocks" on candidates now before the voters of the city were timely and very much enjoyed.

Readings and recitations were given. Songs were sung, and stories told by these members of the degree staff: Geo. O'Malley William Hartnett, Geo. Latham, H. Warden, J. Hurley, William Hollingsworth, L. Smith, J. E. Zell, L. Charron and P. Morrison. All these were well received and contributed much to the evening's entertainment.

"Auld Lang Syne," was then sung by all present and brought to a close one of the most successful social affairs yet held by the Owls.

FORMER MINISTER

SAID TO HAVE JOINED THE REVOLUTIONISTS

TOKIO, Nov. 22.—According to reliable private advices received here from China, Tang Shao Yi, the former minister of posts and communications, who refused to continue in office under the new regime, has joined the revolutionaries and declared for a republic. He is one of the most prominent of the younger Chinese progressives in Peking and is well known abroad. He is a graduate of Yale and was sent to America as a special envoy to thank the United States for the return to China of a part of the Boxer indemnity.

The same despatches declare that Yuan Shi Kala is believed to be only waiting the right opportunity to join the revolutionary cause.

Will Spend the "Night Before" at Vesper Country Club

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—A 35-minute scrimmage failed to develop a score when the Harvard Varsity clashed with an eleven made up of varsity substitutes and coaches on the Stadium gridiron yesterday afternoon. The regulars did not have the services of Percy Wendell to carry the ball, as he was given another day off, but Campbell, Reynolds, and Frothingham, Morrison and Huntington were all used in the first-string backfield.

The work of the regulars did not come up to what the coaches desired by any means, and a long session has been prescribed for today in consequence. There seemed to be something of a reaction as a result of Saturday's hard game with the Greens, and the players all lacked the life and dash that has been in evidence for several days.

The most encouraging part of the work was the return of Bob Porter to his old place behind the line. This is the second day that the varsity quarterback has donned his uniform since his injury at Princeton more than two weeks ago, but his work yesterday shows that he is regaining his form rapidly, and unless he gets another setback he should be in first class shape for Saturday's big game. He gave no signs whatever that he was not fully recovered, and he can be looked for in the final game with a good deal of certainty.

Sam Felton was also back in his old place at right end and is working well again. He is spending some time each afternoon in punting, but he is working regularly with the team and can also be counted on for the final contest. O'Brien also will probably get a show on the right wing, as his good work in recent games has shown that he is a player of good varsity caliber.

At the start of the scrimmage the regulars were given the ball in mid-field. In the progress down the field a large variety of plays were tried, but many of them with little success. Twice the varsity worked the ball down to within their opponents' 10-yard mark, only to be held without gaining the distance.

A number of times the play was carried back to the middle of the field, and the march was started over again. Throughout the fray the substitutes were kept on the defensive in order to give the varsity attack a good tryout. Among the coaches playing with the subs were Lee Leary, Paul and Lottrop, Frothingham, Charles Hann, "Doc" Leslie and Hamilton Corbett, all former Harvard players, and their aggressive work yesterday showed that they had forgotten few of the fine points of the defensive game at least.

Huntington was again shifted to fullback, and Parmenter went in at center. With Felton in the backfield and able to look after the kicking, Blackall will not be needed in the backfield to do the punting, and Huntington, then probably, will be used at fullback, but in case Felton is forced to drop out and Blackall is sent to fullback, Huntington will probably be shifted into the line in place of Parmenter.

Just who will start the game on Saturday in the pivotal position will depend on whether Huntington considers Felton in good enough condition to go in at the start of the game.

The afternoon's practice yesterday wound up with a 20-minute signal drill, in which the team was driven at top speed. It was not until darkness made it impossible to see the ball that the players were sent to the locker

Penacook, N. H., Man Badly Injured On the Boulevard Today

Mr. H. W. Alexander, who conducts an automobile garage at Penacook, N. H., had a narrow escape from being killed about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon when something happened to the machine which he was operating and caused the car to overturn near the windmill on the Pawtucket boulevard. The driver was pinned under the car and might have been crushed to death but for the assistance rendered by Russell E. Rolfe, who was thrown from the car, and escaped injury.

Mr. Alexander was taken to the Lowell General hospital, where it was found that he was suffering from a number of bruises and lacerations and might be internally injured.

Messrs. Alexander and Rolfe went to Boston yesterday where the former purchased a model 33 Hudson touring car, and the pair were on their way to Penacook when the accident happened. The machine was being operated at between 20 and 30 miles an hour when it either skidded or the steering knuckle broke, for suddenly the machine refused to respond to the steering wheel and before the car could be brought to a stop it ran into the sand on the side of the road and turned turtle, Mr. Alexander being pinned under the car, while Mr. Rolfe was thrown several yards but fortunately landed on the grass.

Employees at the pumping station rushed to the assistance of the man, and word was sent to the ambulance station. A few minutes after the accident an auto came down the boulevard and volunteered to take the injured man to the hospital. He was placed in the tonneau of the car and was being rapidly taken to the Lowell General hospital when the ambulance put in an appearance and Mr. Alexander was taken the remainder of the way in the ambulance.

Today another session is promised. The men will report as soon as possible after 2 o'clock, and the work will be continued until dark. Tomorrow a short open practice is planned, and the undergraduates are planning their usual parade to the field to cheer the team and the individual players.

The team will not leave Cambridge until Friday afternoon, when it will go to the Vesper Country club, near Lowell, to spend the "night before."

Harry Kersburg rejoined the coaching staff yesterday after a two-week absence, in which he has been coaching the Lafayette team. He will remain with the squad through the week.

For the first time since the fall of 1907, of "are-we-down-hearted" fame, a torchlight procession of students will be held in the college yard and vicinity tonight following immediately after a big football mass meeting in the Union, of which three are being held this week. All the undergraduates have been asked to provide themselves with torches.

FOOTBALL NEWS

Somebody asked Tom Shevlin after the Yale-Princeton game if Yale could beat Harvard. "I wanted to lick him," said Shevlin. "How do I know who's going to win? How can anybody tell anything about this game they are playing now, a game built on the theory of error to score?"

Shevlin, who knows as much football as anybody and more than most, is firmly convinced that football as played now needs rule changing, and he thinks just two changes are needed. It may be that the changes he advocates will be presented to the rules committee when that body convenes in the winter, and they may get considerable support for there is no little dissatisfaction with the present game, because it doesn't put enough premium on offense.

"Mind you, I'm not kicking because Yale was beaten," continued Shevlin as he ordered oysters and a mixed grill at the Waldorf, where he is living temporarily, for Shevlin commutes daily between New York and New Haven during his coaching period at Yale.

"We've won games from Princeton under the present rules and played a better Harvard team to a standstill, so we haven't had any the worst of it with the rules. But I'm not strong for a game in which the team on the offense plays the hardest game, takes all the risks (the only error on which a team can score is one made by the other side in possession of the ball) and can't get anywhere. I'd like to see a game in which there isn't so much kicking on the second down and in which the rules don't play your defense for you as they do now."

Shevlin's suggestions for changes are these: First, keep the ten yards and have four downs instead of three; second, have the four backs on the defense ten yards behind the scrimmage line when the ball is put in play. "These are the only changes needed," he says. "The present game makes too big a demand on the quarterback in offense and doesn't give the other players enough chance to show what they can do. Suppose you gain seven yards on the first try and none on the second. Then it's up to the quarterback to find a way to gain on the next and last try and about the only way out of it for him is to order a kick. A team really has to make its distance in two plays, which are not enough."

"Four downs, on the other hand, would lead to the development of a constructive offense. Let the rules stay as they are about not helping the runner, but give the quarterback and the other ten players a reasonable number of opportunities to see what they can do in choosing and trying plays so as to give the offense a fair test. This would mean an equitable change in one of the first plays being made right and a mistake being made in calling the second, a chance which it doesn't have now and which would put less responsibility on one man, the quarterback, and give more opportunities to the other ten men.

"Let them leave the forward pass in if they want to. It's no good and won't

The Ella Clifton Attempted to Double Cape Cod

VINEYARD HAVEN, Nov. 22.—For the second time in less than a week the little Boston schooner Ella Clifton has attempted to double Cape Cod only to be driven back in a damaged condition and today she lies at the wharf here without anchors, windlass, mahlum and other running gear, while in addition she is leaking.

The Clifton was bound around the cape last week with a cargo of gravel from a Long Island sound port when she was torn from her anchorage under the Handkerchief shoal. She was in danger of going ashore on Great Point, Nantucket, when the revenue cutter Acushnet in response to hurried wireless calls reached the scene and towed her to Hyannis and later to this port.

The tug Neponset came here from Boston Monday and yesterday took the Clifton in tow and started around the cape in the teeth of an increasing northeaster.

The Clifton has lost both anchors and had her windlass carried away in her first attempt to round the cape and there was no chance to anchor her. When the Neponset found the schooner too big off Nauset she had to return to this port instead of waiting under the Handkerchief for more favorable weather. The Clifton will remain here for orders.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 22.—Leaders of men in several big lines of work talked to delegates of the American Bankers association when the convention organized for the second day's session here this morning.

Most of the speakers discussed their topics from a technical viewpoint. James H. Fernald, president of the First National bank of Chicago, talked about the mobilization and control of the reserves of the country. President Schurman of Cornell university, taking the public's side so far as viewpoint goes, spoke on "Public Opinion on the National Reserve Association." George Reynolds, president of the Commercial bank of Chicago, talked about "Re-discount and Book Credits."

It is predicted on the basis of a strong vote that Arthur H. Reynolds, Chicago, now treasurer of the association, will become chairman of the executive council.

MANY OPERATIVES

Have Left New England for Canada

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—The migration of many operatives to Canada and elsewhere during the long period of drought prevalent in the New England cotton mills is handicapping a number of large corporations which are endeavoring to increase their outputs. Mill officials say that the dull business of the last two years has not only created a large exodus but has induced operatives to enter other branches of industry. The slight improvement among the cotton mills of the country which was noted early in the fall and which followed somewhat tardily the spurt in woolens is progressing slowly but none the less healthily.

STARS OF HARVARD AND YALE READY TO CLASH IN FINAL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 22.—The football eleven of Harvard and Yale will clash here at the stadium Nov. 25 in the final big game of the season. Although no championship title hinges on the event, Princeton having defeated both, there is no decrease in interest. If the weather is right it is likely to be the most satisfactory contest of the year. Yale came through the game with Princeton without a single injury of consequence, and the same is true of Harvard's encounter with Dartmouth. Harvard and Yale have met on the gridiron thirty times since 1876, in which time Harvard has won only four games, four have been tied, and Yale has won twenty-two. Up until 1908 Harvard had not defeated Yale since 1881, when Campbell's great eleven triumphed by a score of 20 to 0 over a Yale eleven that had beaten

UNITED STATES LAW VERSUS UNITED STATES STEEL

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

WHAT happens when an irresistible force is sent against an immovable body? The old question, propounded as a "catch" in logic, occurs to the mind when one considers the situation created by the bringing of the government suit against the United States Steel corporation. In resistance might, viewed with respect by any government on earth or by any conceivable combination of powers, the United States government, the consensus of nearly 100,000,000 persons, is the "irresistible force." On the other hand, the United States Steel corporation, the very biggest industrial concern in the universe, the employer of 200,000 men, the recipient of a revenue greater than that of the government, the mighty combination of far-reaching, allied industries, may be likened to the immovable body.

The shock of the clash may stir the world. It is the very culmination of the anti-trust actions which have engrossed the attention of economists for a decade. Unless a basis of compromise be found, it may be, say the alarmists, the financial Armageddon in which men and financial institutions and industries may go down in a vortex of disaster. It is the climax of some of the most important questions which have engaged the minds of men for many years.

The hearing of the case against the corporation will bring into action some of the ablest legal minds in the country. Francis Lynde Stetson is the corporation's chief attorney. Jacob M. Dickinson, former secretary of war, has been engaged by the government as special counsel.

"The Biggest Thing on Earth." When the United States Steel corporation was formed, in 1901, by combination of previously existing corporations, it was hailed as "the biggest thing on earth." So it was, in command of capital, in extent of resources, in the enlistment of able intellect, in possibility of good or evil influence on the trade of this country and of the world, and in other respects. The combined stock and bond capitalization of these companies, yoked together to form the "steel trust," was $911,700,000. The present capitalization of the corporation amounts to $1,461,900,000, divided as follows: $508,000,000 common stock, $350,000,000 preferred stock and $593,900,000 first and second mortgage bonds, including those of subsidiary bodies. It is the world's first and only "billion dollar corporation." The men who approve the government's suit assert their hope that it will be the last and that the ultimate result of the attorney general's action will be its resolution into the originally independent companies, more than 200 in number, which were merged to form the ten monster companies recombined to make the corporation.

These ten companies were themselves monster aggregations of capital. They were the Carnegie Steel company, Federal Steel, National Tube, American Bridge, Lake Superior Consolidated Mines, American Steel and Wire, National Steel, American Steel Hoop, American Tin Plate and American Sheet Steel. Others like the Tennessee Coal and Iron, the acquisition of which caused so much furor in 1907, were added later.

Purpose of the Combination. To Charles M. Schwab, first president of the United States Steel corporation and one of Andrew Carnegie's chief lieutenants in the steel business, is awarded the credit—or the discredit—of suggesting the formation of the big corporation. Asked by the congressional investigating committee which probed into the consolidation to explain his purpose in suggesting it, Mr. Schwab said:

"I explained the very great advantages that would result in manufacture through such an organization as the United States Steel corporation, and I gave my reasons in detail. First of all, that instead of manufacturing steel as it was then manufactured by a number of companies, each of which manufactured the same lines, it was my idea that the organization to be truly successful should be made of such a character that one mill should be run on one product and not one mill on fifty products, as was then the rule."

How far Mr. Schwab's contention was correct in predicting success for the corporation, viewed only on the material side, may be gathered from a study of the figures showing its dealings. The gross receipts have amounted in ten years and eight months to $5,813,243,724. In one year they have been as high as $787,014,757. Last year they amounted to $708,961,424.

The United States government's receipts from customs and all other sources of revenue in the fiscal year which ended June 30 last were $700,109,995, so it will be seen that in one year and in one respect the United States Steel Corporation was a bigger thing than the United States government by over $2,000,000. This is the colossus of finance and industry against which the law department in Washington has directed its attack. The corporation may be reduced to its component parts without disaster—crash of business is predicted by few alarmist economists—but the action is bound to be felt wherever the steel trust stretches itself.

Defend Corporation's Size.

Naturally the steel corporation heads do not and cannot conceal the fact of its immense size. They argue, however, that size is not in itself criminal, that their business has been marked by fair dealing and by justice to competitors and that they have not monopolized the steel and iron business or fixed prices, in spite of their preponderant position in the industry. Elbert H. Gary, the chairman of the board of directors of the corporation and chairman of its financial committee, who is the virtual but not titular head of the company (the president is James A. Farrell), said recently:

"We do not wish or intend under any circumstances to countenance any violation of any law in force. I cannot say in language too emphatic that, not only from the standpoint of good morals, but from the standpoint of our personal interests, we must never make the mistake of intentionally violating or permitting to be violated any law which is in existence."

Judge Gary's Defense.

This was spoken to the presidents of the underlying companies which form the corporation. Continuing, Judge Gary said:

"Certainly we know that in trying to understand the application of the Sherman law, so called, we have been confronted by two extremes. On the one hand, if we should have engaged in the destructive competition which naturally results from unrestrained selfish competition, we might have placed ourselves in a position which would justify the criticisms which have been applied to other large interests—that we might properly have been charged with attempting to establish or exercise a monopoly. On the other hand, if we had attempted to foster competition and to make it certain we were in nowise disposed to restrict competition by entering into agreements that we should not compete we would have been in danger of violating another provision of the Sherman law which is opposed to restraint of trade.

"I wish we could be of real, substantial benefit all the time to our competitors and to our customers, because we know that would be of benefit to ourselves, and, what is more important, to the two hundred odd thousand men who are dependent upon us for continuous employment at good, fair living wages. We do not seem to be in that position at the present time."

These are the words of the man who told the congressional investigating committee personally he believed "the Sherman act does not now and never will fully prevent the organization of great combinations of capital. I believe we must come to enforced publicity and governmental control of corporations."

"So far as I am concerned, speaking for the United States Steel corporation, I would be very glad if we could know exactly where we stand and could be free from the dangers and criticism of the public. I wish we could go to some responsible governmental source and say, 'Here are our facts, here is our business, here is our property and our cost of production' and could be told just what prices we could charge and just what we could do."

The utterance attracted much attention at the time it was made, last June. The steel trust's plea for justice from the government has been given. On the other hand, we have the testimony of witnesses before the investigating committee that hundreds of millions of the steel trust's securities need splices of dividends to elevate them above the water which is said to form their only foundation. And, too, there has been much talk recently of an international steel trust which should be strong enough to dictate terms to the combined governments of the world if need arose. Among the men named in the government's suit are the two John D. Rockefeller, Sr. and Jr.; J. Pierpont Morgan, Andrew Carnegie and others almost as well known in finance and industry.

"SIDNEY LOVE'S IN FUNDS AGAIN"

GOOD evening," wretchesed the Flatiron building to the Times building tower, along Broadway, "have you heard the news?"

"No," answered back the white imitation of an Italian tower. "What's new in this old town anyway?" "Sidney Love's in funds again," said the architectural monotony at Twenty-third street.

"You don't tell me!" replied the

was sorry when he dropped out. (Even if it hadn't liked him it would have been sorry, for New York tries very, very hard to like a man with money to spend and a willingness to scatter it.)

Sidney C. Love is the young man—he is not yet forty—whose marital and financial difficulties caused the running of much newspaper ink two years ago, who faded into prominence again in the earlier months of this year when the cross suits for divorce of himself ten years, brought him wealthy clients and social sponsors and, probably, saved him from utter ruin when he failed almost three years ago.

But in one matter his personality failed him signally. That was in matrimony. It couldn't keep for him the love of "the most beautiful woman in America," just as it had not proved its adhesive qualities in a previous matrimonial venture.

Lots of times it has been said of Sidney Love that "he went up like a rocket and came down like a stick." But that is not strictly true, for a rocket takes about the same time to go up as it does to come down, and Love took several years to reach the zenith of his flight, while his descent was very much more rapid. Keokuk, Ia., had the honor of introducing him to the world, but he soon outgrew Keokuk and went to Chicago. He became a clerk in a railroad office. Clerking was too slow for Love, so he entered a stockbroker's office. Soon the personality of which something has been written began its work, and he expanded socially to so wonderful an extent that the smartest set in Chicago was glad to have its butlers introduce the agreeable, entertaining young man. Naturally, when mother and the girls "took up" Sidney Love, papa had to follow suit, and a chart of Love's fortunes soon began to resemble the diagrams which tell of the advance of the cost of living.

One of Chicago's great griefs is the facility with which New York's financial center acts as a magnet on the western city's bright men. Wall street supplanted State street in Love's affections, and his operations in "the little narrow street which begins in a graveyard and ends in the river" attracted much notice among the younger, faster set in New York's moneyed circles and even among the older men. The Loves, Mr. and Mrs., were taken up by the Vanderbilts.

The tale of Love's financial undoing is spelled "w-h-e-a-t." He tried to "buck" James A. Patten—that's all. When the smoke cleared away, according to current tales, Love was "in bad" to the extent of $2,000,000. But nothing happened, save that he gave up his business and went west to engage in gold mining. It was said that his backers forgave his financial failings.

Just about then the ill-fated was thrown on the matrimonial troubles of Love and his wife, who was the famously beautiful Marjorie Burnes, called by an English artist "the most beautiful woman in America." (The report goes that the painter never saw her, but formed his opinion from a portrait.) She is an heiress of the "unlucky" Burnes millions of St. Louis, which are said to be tainted by a curse. In her divorce suit in Westchester county, N. Y., she said Love had ill-treated her and made other charges. The cross suit of Love in Oregon, brought about the same time, was defeated. There is a daughter, about three years old, who is now with her mother. Love fought hard to obtain possession of the child, but lost.

Now he is said to have inherited a goodly share of the $7,000,000 estate of an uncle, whereat Broadway rejoices.

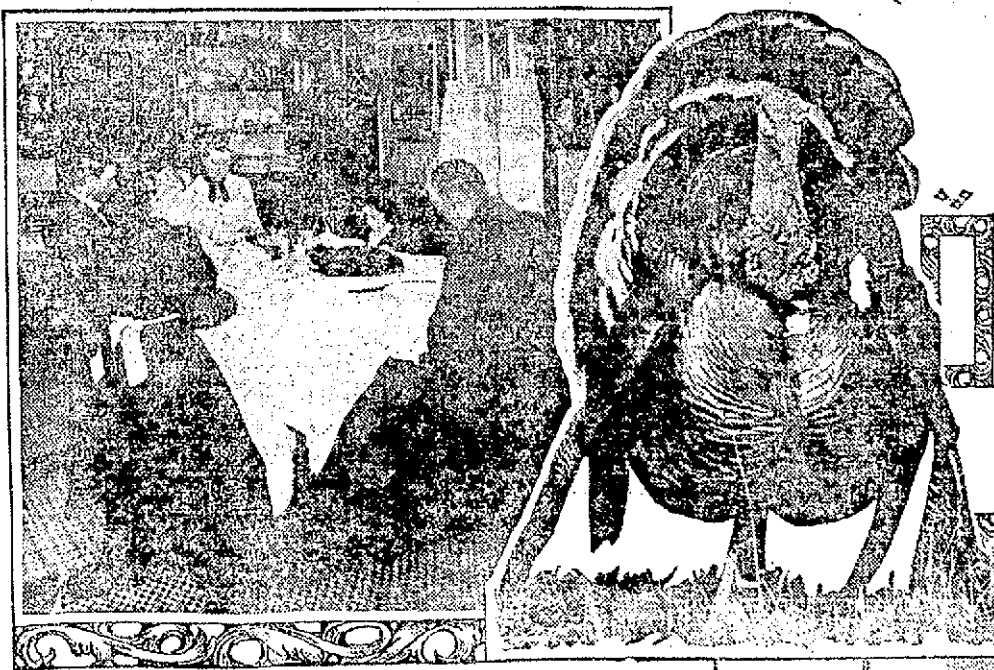

"AMERICA'S MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN" AND HER EX-HUSBAND, SIDNEY C. LOVE.

lower which looks down on more lights than anything else on earth can see. So the report ran from Wall street to the region of the newest "loster palaces." "Sidney Love's flush again and coming back to spend some of his new wealth." New York, that part of it which knew Sidney C. Love in the happy days of two years and more ago is glad for New York liked Love and and his wife were tried and who has again become a sub for comment by the announcement that he has inherited a fortune. In funds or out of funds Love has an interesting personality. That word "personality," by the way, has been applied very often to Love. It was his "personality" which raised him from the position of a clerk to that of a millionaire stockbroker in

I.
WHEN city folk sit down
Upon Thanksgiving day
Their tables groan with dainties
fine
For which they've had to pay.
The costly turkey makes them glad;
The fruits though dear, are nice,
And they are thankful that they had
The necessary gain.

II.
THE farmer likewise sits him
down;
His heart within him glows,
And when he thinks of folk in
town
His soul with joy o'erflows,
And this his deepest joy affords
Upon Thanksgiving day—
That in the local bank he hoards
The price they had to pay.

III.
NOW, out on those who wildly
wild
The muck rake for their gain!
Thanksgiving day to me revealed
A truth that's very plain.
This world of ours is managed
well,
With joy for all its ranks.
When those who buy and those
who sell

HIGHLAND M. E. CHURCH

To Observe Anniversary of Dedication of First Chapel

Today marks the 35th anniversary of the dedication of the first chapel of the Highland M. E. church, and the event will be observed in a fitting manner. At 7 o'clock this evening a banquet will be held in the vestry of the church and a feature of the evening will be addressed by the following prominent speakers: President Lemuel H. Murlin, J. D., of Boston University; Rev. Franklin Hamilton D. D., chancellor of the American University of Washington, D. C.; Hon. Charles S. Baxter, former mayor of Medford; Rev. Dr. Geo. H. Spencer, district superintendent of the Cambridge district of the M. E. churches. The address of welcome will be delivered by Rev. Arthur Bonner, pastor of the church. An entertainment program will be given after the discourses and an orchestra will also be in attendance.

History of the Church

The Methodist Episcopal church was the first of the great Evangelical denominations to establish a mission in the Highland section of the city. A committee made up of representatives of the three older Methodist churches in the city met on the evening of May 12, 1871 to consider the advisability of such a work being inaugurated. This committee acted favorably and a mission work was inaugurated in Highland hall on March 12, 1875. A meeting was held at which all the Methodist pastors of the city were present, Rev. Daniel Dorchester, D. D., presiding elder of the Lynn district, presiding. This meeting completed the organization of the Highland Methodist church, the mission feature of the work passing in consequence. During the early months of the mission the pastors of the older Methodist churches in the city, St. Paul's, Northern Street and Central, graciously acted as pastors of the mission also.

In the summer of 1875 Mr. John F. Munahan presented the church with a church building lot, 30x100 feet.

June 11, 1876 the first building erected for worship on the church lot was dedicated. The Rev. W. F. Warren, J. D., president of Boston University, preached the dedicatory sermon. Chapel and land were together estimated to be worth only $5000.

Of the 16 pastors covering the years from the inauguration of the mission in the Highlands till April of the present year perhaps those marked by prosperity and growth were those of Rev. E. A. Smith, 1882-3-4; Charles Tilton, 1893-4; and Dr. James Louis, the present secretary of the New England Methodist conference.

It was during Mr. Smith's pastorate of three years that both spiritual and temporal prosperity marked the life of the church as perhaps at no other time in the history of the church. The membership greatly increased, the congregations were very large and the chapel was developed into a most commodious church building at a cost of $7500. Also a parsonage costing $4500 was secured for the convenience of the pastor.

During the administration of Rev. Charles Tilton, now pastor of Trinity M. E. church, West Medford, Mass., improvements were made upon the church building including the installing of a steam-heating plant. The Sunday school grew to be the largest in its history during this pastorate.

The four years' pastorate of Dr. Mudge was notable as a period of great peace and prosperity on all lines.

The church is at present enjoying prosperity. The $10,000 indebtedness left on the property after the building was being gradually reduced and is at present about $5000. The property is at present estimated to be worth $18,500.

The present minister, Rev. Arthur Bonner, Ph. D., was reared in Warren, Mass., educated in the Massachusetts public schools and at Boston university, which latter institution conferred upon Mr. Bonner the degree of Ph. D. last June after a post graduate course in philosophy and literature covering a period of years.

The present anniversary is the 35th of the organization as a church, but of the dedication of the first chapel.

220 ARRESTED

Big Suffragette Attack on Parliament Met by Police

The organized raid upon the British parliament by hundreds of suffragettes was stopped by the police who arrested 220 of them after a struggle that caused great excitement. Some of the women chained themselves to railings and posts on the sidewalks, and when prevented from entering the parliament buildings they smashed windows of public offices by stones carried for the purpose.

STORY OF THE OUTBREAK

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The suffragettes fared badly at the hands of the police last night. They had threatened to force their way into the house of commons and make a protest on the floor of the house against the prime minister's refusal to pledge the government to a bill giving equal suffrage to both sexes, but they failed to even reach the entrance to parliament.

Thwarted by the police, who arrested 220 women and three men, the suffragettes resorted to a campaign of window-smashing. Driven from parliament square by the police, 1800 of whom were on duty, the women, accompanied by sympathizers and gangs of rowdies, proceeded through Whitehall armed with bags of stones concealed under their coats and broke the windows in the public offices, liberal headquarters and the National Liberal club.

They even extended their operations to the Strand, where windows of the postoffice bank and other private concerns suffered from the onslaught. The militant tactics of the suffragettes followed a statement by Premier Asquith that the government was unable to introduce a bill to enfranchise women as the cabinet was divided on the question, but would allow an amendment to be introduced to the proposed manhood suffrage bill.

leaving it to the house of commons to decide whether women should be given a vote.

The suffragettes had made ample preparations to renew their attacks on parliament with a battle which was expected to surpass all previous efforts. They met early in the evening in Caxton hall, less than a mile from parliament square, and after adopting a resolution declaring that the prime minister's denial of their request was a grave and unpardonable insult to women, called for volunteers for "dangerous service."

A detachment of 50 women headed by Mrs. Pethick Lawrence and accompanied by immense crowds, started for the house of commons to present the resolution, or take whatever other action was deemed advisable.

Strong detachments of police, both on foot and mounted, guarded the streets from Caxton hall to the house of parliament. They broke up the deputation into units, which, when they reached the cordons surrounding the square, were thrown back, or if too persistent were arrested and passed along to a receiving squad in the square and thence through a double line of constables to the police station.

The greatest confusion prevailed. Several women were injured in the scramble, while others fainted or became hysterical and required the attention of the ambulance men. The battle was fierce, but short.

An hour after the women emerged from the hall parliament square had been cleared of the attacking forces, except half a dozen women who had chained themselves to the railings and whose chains the police had to file or break.

The demonstration was not so large as those of last year. The damage to property was greater than ever, however, and the number of arrests established a new record. Cannon Row, crowded with prisoners and the police were occupied for hours in making charges against them. Among those arrested were Mrs. Lawrence, who is joint editor of Votes for Women, Lady Constance Lytton, sister of Lord Lytton, and Hon. Mrs. Evelyn Haverfield, daughter of Lieut. Gen. Lord Alington. The people arrested were liberated on bail.

Among the many buildings where windows and glass doors were smashed were the offices of the Daily Mail and Somerset house, on the south side of the Strand. The latter building contains public offices. The window-breaking was systematic, the motive apparently being to ensure arrest. Many of the women carried stones attached to long tapes. These were used as slings.

STOCK MARKET

WAS HEAVY AT THE CLOSE THIS AFTERNOON

Some Signs Of Weariness—Was Not Responsive To Deals In Special Stocks—Business More Active While Selling Was In Progress

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Heavy buying of the leading stocks was continued when trading was begun today. Speculative interest was again centered on the copper stocks. Anacoda opened at 10 1/2 and rose to 10 3/4 to a maximum advance of 1 1/2. Utah Copper gained 1/2 and Amal Copper 1/2. Gains elsewhere were well distributed. Union Pacific, National Biscuit and Wabash pf. rose a point, U. S. Steel and S. P. and Atlantic Coast line 3/4. Pressure against Third Avenue railroad and a further rise in the metal market resulted in an extension of yesterday's severe loss. The stock dropped 1 1/2 to 3 1/2.

Prices of stocks remained at high level for about half an hour. Speculation was on a large scale in the copper stocks, the improvement in the trade and a further rise in the metal market having revived active dealing in the group. Utah Copper rose 1/2 and several other specialties and industrials improved sharply. Profit-taking, coupled with the severe break in Third Avenue, caused fractional recessions. Speculation against Third Avenue railroad fell 2 1/2, the lowest of the year. The price touched 1 1/2 on Monday.

Except for brief periods of recession, caused largely by realizing the market held strong through the morning and some substantial gains were made. Speculation was considerably broader and increased interest was shown in minor industrials and specialties. Operations were resumed on the long side of the market on an increased volume of business in the second hour and active stocks generally returned to earlier high prices. The rally in the metals induced fresh selling of these stocks. This selling checked the advance but there were no recessions of consequence elsewhere. Bonds were steady.

Speculation was sluggish but the market retained its strength. Amal-

THE POLICE BOARD

This is Not the Time to Increase Wages

It is understood that an effort may be made to increase the pay of the police officers 25 cents a day, before the present board loses its control of the police department. While other departments are short of money it would be highly improper for the police board to grant an increase of 25 cents a day to the police department. That increase would amount to $3000 per annum and it would also add to the amount of the pensions, present and prospective. The police board will do well to let this matter pass over to the new government for decision. An increase of pay now would probably be followed by an effort to have lower exempted from the provisions of the pension law.

Two More Attempts to Enter a Filipino Mess Attendant Was the Residence in Wakefield Principal Witness Today

WAKEFIELD, Nov. 22.—Completely baffled by the depositions being committed at the home of Judge Frank E. Fitz, the police force of this town does not know which way to turn. For four consecutive nights the home of the judge has been visited by some "unknown" and during last night the "unknown" made two calls while a couple of police officers were on guard, unaware of his presence.

Officer Joseph Preston kept his eyes on the rear door. At about 10:30 Judge Fitz called to him and when he reached the rear piazza he was dumfounded to see that the door knob had been moved. The policeman was positive in his opinion that the door was not tampered with on the outside.

At 5:30 o'clock this morning it was found that the front door knob and door plate had been removed, how, the police could not explain. Today, Judge Fitz asked for the privilege to go armed and it was granted him. His family was also given this permission and instructed to shoot any suspicious looking character found hanging around the Fitz home.

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Faustino Paz, a Filipino mess attendant on the battleship Nebraska, who peeped into the junior officers' messroom while the shooting was going on and then ran up on deck, was the principal witness called at the continuation today of the trial in the United States circuit court of James Beeks, a negro mess attendant charged with the murder of Alexander Allen, another colored waiter.

Paz testified that on the morning of May 8 last when the battleship Nebraska was in drydock in the Charlestown navy yard he passed Beeks while the latter was shining shoes in the corridor leading from the junior officers' mess. No words were exchanged but he heard Beeks mutter, "You got me, I'll get you some time." Allen was sweeping the mess room at the time. When he repassed about ten minutes later both Beeks and Allen were in the mess room scuffling over a broom. While he was in the wardroom pantry shortly afterward he heard some shots fired and, running into the corridor peeped into the junior officers' mess room.

Allen was standing looking out of the porthole with his left side to the door. Beeks was standing four or six feet from the door firing at Allen. Paz testified that as soon as he saw what was going on he ran up on deck. This remark from the witness caused Beeks to smile broadly in the prisoners' dock.

When the cross examination of Dr. Briggs was concluded the defense rested its case and the commonwealth at once opened its rebuttal. District Attorney Callahan conducting the examination. Five witnesses, all of Lebanon, Conn., Spencer's home town, were heard before the luncheon recess. Those witnesses were Albert Kneelien, judge of the probate court, Charles Bell, town clerk and town treasurer, Nathaniel Barker, a storekeeper, Mrs. Harriet Robinson, who has lived in Lebanon during her entire lifetime of 60 years and has been a teacher in the Sunday school attended by Spencer and of which the prisoner's father was superintendent, and Miss Louise Cooley, formerly Spencer's school teacher. All testified that they had known Spencer and his family well and never knew of any peculiarities or eccentricities exhibited by the prisoner or any of his relatives. Under cross examination Miss Cooley recalled that on one occasion Spencer had trouble with some of his schoolmates and ran home for a revolver. She thought that this act was somewhat peculiar. She also said he frequently left school during sessions and went either to his home or his father's store but she did not think that this indicated that he was eccentric.

BOSWORTH ON TRIAL

He is Charged With Killing Woman

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 22.—The prosecution having introduced evidence to show that Arthur Bosworth shot and killed Mae Labelle at Essex Junction last June after the young woman had caused his discharge from the hotel where both were employed, the defense is endeavoring to show that the defendant was mentally irresponsible. At today's session of the trial attendants from the state insane hospital at Waterbury testified that while Bosworth was under observation there he was irritable, criticized the management of the hospital and was possessed of the idea that his confinement was part of a plan to deprive him of a hearing in court.

SEVERAL RALLIES

WERE HELD IN THIS CITY LAST NIGHT

Several rallies in the interests of different candidates were held in various parts of the city last night. Jas. E. O'Donnell, Thomas J. Fitzgerald and J. Joseph Hennessy addressed the members of the Metropolitan club in Chelmsford street. James F. Afiskella spoke to an audience at the corner of Broadway and Adams street, and Andrew E. Barrett talked to voters of ward nine in the High street engine house wardroom.

ACCUSED OF MURDER

The Police are Searching for Chinaman Named Leon Ling

CLEVELAND, Nov. 22.—The arrest in Texas of Leon Ling, charged with the murder in New York two years ago of Elsie Sigel, is expected to follow information telegraphed to that state by the Cleveland police. The murderer is said to be hiding in the home of friends in one of the principal cities of Texas, which, however, the police decline to name at present.

The information came to the Cleveland officers as a result of a long feud which was responsible for the fatal shooting of Woo Dip here yesterday.

Dangerous Blaze Broke Out Last Night

A blaze which threatened to gain great proportions broke out on the fifth floor of No. 10 mill of the Tremont & Suffolk mills last night and considerable damage was done before the fire was placed under control. The members of the fire department connected with the mill did good work and they were materially assisted by the local fire department. The principal damage will result from smoke and water, although the loss by fire will be over $1000. The cause of the blaze is unknown.

The blaze was discovered during the early part of the night in a box of bobbins. The volunteer firemen were summoned but before they arrived on the scene the flames had spread rapidly. The sprinkler system checked the flames to a considerable extent and the firemen poured volumes of water on the fire.

The smoke which poured through the windows into the street gave passersby and residents of the vicinity the impression that the fire was much larger than it really was and some persons pulled in an alarm from box 52. The apparatus was on the scene in a few minutes and one line of hose was laid up the fire escape, while another was pulled up the main stairway, and a chemical line was also brought into service, but when Chief Hosmer arrived he found that the mill firemen had the fire well under control.

The protective company did excellent work in covering up the goods and machinery on the floors below that in which the fire started. Eighty covers were laid, it being necessary for the protective machine to make two trips to the firehouse in Warren street for extra covers.

After the blaze was under control the members of the local department assisted in clearing the water and debris out of the building.

In the "Tar Party" Case Will be Made Today

LINCOLN CENTRE, Kan., Nov. 22.—Closing argument in the "tar party" case will be reached today, it was predicted at the opening of court this morning. The state rested its case with the testimony of Mary Chamberlain yesterday and before the evening adjournment twelve of the defense's witnesses had been heard.

A. M. Simpson, one of the three defendants now on trial, resumed the stand at the opening of court today. The plan for the defense was to follow his testimony with that of the other two accused men, Sherrill Clark and John Schmidt. Only a few more witnesses, if any, other than these will appear. It is understood. It is possible that Miss Chamberlain will be called to the stand for further interrogation. A letter in the possession of Everett Clark, which came from a former friend of the young woman, is regarded highly by the defense and if an attack is made on the character of the girl, as is expected, an effort may be made to get the letters into the records.

The main line of the defense to be followed throughout, however, is that Clark, Sims and Schmidt were not at the "larring" and, therefore, though they knew it was to take place and had started to the scene of the crime they were not actual participants.

ANOTHER OUTBREAK

Spencer Made an Attack on the Attorney General

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 22.—At this morning's session of the trial of Bertram Spencer, charged with the murder of Miss Martha Blackstone, the prisoner indulged in another outburst of violence in the courtroom, Attorney General Swift being the special object of his wrath. The attorney general was conducting the cross examination of Dr. Edward B. Lane of Jamaica Plain, one of the alienists for the defense, which was begun before adjournment yesterday. Dr. Lane was testifying as to how he reached his conclusions regarding Spencer's mental condition at the time that Miss Blackstone was killed and Miss Harriet Dow was wounded in the Dow home in this city. As Attorney General Swift mentioned the name of Miss Dow, Spencer began to show signs of anger. He muttered to himself and moved uneasily in his cage. Looking at the attorney general Spencer shouted in anger: "I'll give you something!" Mr. Swift turned leisurely, looked into the face of the prisoner and smiled. The smile seemed to put Spencer into a frenzy. He jumped to his feet and began to swear and curse at the attorney general.

Thursday Wade, the defendant's guard, soon overpowered the prisoner and forced him back into his seat. Spencer struggled with the officer, muttering continually. The prisoner's wife put her hand through the cage and tried to soothe her husband, but he thrust her hand away and cried savagely, "Let me alone." Spencer, however, was soon subdued.

During the outburst most of the spectators stood up in order to see what was going on. Sheriff Embury Clark ripped for order and ordered all persons to be seated. Most of the spectators heeded the command but half a dozen women remained standing. Judge Crosby then directed that all persons who had not obeyed the sheriff be ejected and three or four women were escorted into the corridor by the court officers. Then the trial was resumed.

Dr. Joseph Courtney of Boston, who is in charge of the insane patients at the Carney hospital stated that he examined the prisoner at three different times and that he had arrived at the conclusion that Spencer was insane and irresponsible at the time of the crime. Asked if a man who shot a woman in order to escape showed lack of mental control the doctor replied that this would not show lack of control in any normal man.

On cross examination Dr. Briggs

Is Overcrowded and Pupils Sit in the Corridor

Because of the crowded condition of the Bartlett grammar and primary school on Wainwright street, the principal of that school, Herbert D. Bixby, has advised the parents of first grade pupils that if they continue to send their children to the Bartlett school it must be for one session only, for the present.

Up to the present time the corridor has been used for seating about 40 children, but the corridor is too cold for class occupancy in the winter time and the return of these 40 children to the class rooms means that the beginners will have to give way to make room for them.

Principal Bixby says that this crowding in the first grade is caused in no way by children coming to the school from outside the district, there being but four in the first grade rooms from outside the district line.

His letter to the parents of the first grade children reads as follows:

Dear Sir:

I am writing you this letter to call to your attention the fact that the Bartlett school is in a very crowded condition. The primary department contains some 220 children. More than 200 of these are children of the immediate district and must be cared for in this building. To do this we have at present but four rooms at our disposal, the other rooms of the building being occupied by the grammar department. Since April, some 40 children have been seated in the corridor, but the approaching cold weather makes this arrangement longer impossible. The school committee, last spring, requested the city council to furnish new rooms in the building that these children might have proper accommodations.

This the city council refused to do. Consequently, the following plan must go into effect Nov. 21, 1911:

Children of the first grade will attend one session only, per day. The first week children now in Miss Roche's room will attend school mornings and those now in Miss Perham's room will attend school afternoons. On the second week, children now in Miss Roche's room will attend afternoons, and children now in Miss Perham's room will attend mornings.

This is done on account of the difference between the length of the morning and afternoon sessions, that all children may receive a like amount of instruction. Each week you will be notified on what day this change will occur.

Two regular teachers will be employed in the room both mornings and afternoons, and as much individual attention will be given to children as is possible. This plan will not be allowed to interfere in any way with the promotion of children at the end of the year, provided the attendance has been regular. To insure promotion, however, attendance must be regular. By applying at the office of this school for certificate, parents so wishing may send children to the first grade of the Cross street school both sessions of the day.

It is hoped that parents will be patient in this matter until such time as proper accommodations shall be furnished. The principal of the school will be glad to talk the matter over with parents and others interested at the school, at any time.

Very truly yours,
H. D. Bixby.

Through a Chain of Bucketshops

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—More messages relating to the objections of customers were read today at the trial of George Graham Rice and other members of Sheffels & Co. on charges of swindling through their chain of alleged bucketshops. They all told of the sentiments of a customer in Providence who had ordered stock evidently but had not received it.

"The firm's branch office in Providence wired: 'B— kicking like the devil. Wants his stock as he is going abroad.'"

The answer to this, signed, "G. G. R." was: "Thought he was a friend of yours? Hold him off until tomorrow."

To a request from Providence for an excuse to give the customer "G. G. R." replied: "My stock of romances is exhausted. You give it to him."

Are Barred by the Providence Police

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 22.—Thanksgiving eve will pass in Providence this year devoid of one of its time-honored customs, that of raffling turkeys in stores, markets, saloons and homes. An edict has come from the office of the police commissioners prohibiting the continuance of the practice, following the protest made to the board by the committee on public morals of the Federation of Churches, which declared that this custom "is a menace to the morals of the community." Raffling for turkeys on Thanksgiving eve has been in vogue in this city as long as the memory of the oldest inhabitant can revert.

TO PAY DEPOSITORS

SACO, Me., Nov. 22.—The receivers hope eventually to pay dollar for dollar to the depositors of the Saco savings bank, which closed its doors on December 16, 1910, according to their final report, filed with State Bank Examiner Dutton today. The receivers Frank C. Doering and Frank Nutter, state in their report that they had received from all sources $424,372 and disbursed for various expenses $83,341, leaving on hand available or a dividend $341,031.

THE O. M. I. CADETS

Observed Their 7th Anniversary Last Night

The seventh anniversary of the organization of the O. M. I. Cadets was observed last night by the young soldiers and their girl friends. The affair was the most successful ever conducted by the organization and the evening was spent in a most enjoyable way. The only drawback was the absence of the organizer of the cadets, Rev. Denis A. Sullivan, O. M. I., who is confined to St. John's hospital as a result of a severe cold. It was planned to make the event a double one, for, aside from the cadets' anniversary, it was also the seventh anniversary of Fr. Sullivan's assignment to the Immaculate Conception church. The cadets had planned a great reception to their chaplain and his illness that prevented his attendance caused great regret among the boys. The cadets and their young friends assembled in Y. M. C. I. hall at 8 o'clock and after a brief reception at which the young people were greeted by Rev. Fr. Elgie, O. M. I., and Rev. Fr. Fox, O. M. I., dancing was in order. An orchestra of six pieces furnished music and a varied order of engagements was carried out. During the evening a buffet luncheon was served and the cadets and their friends were about as happy a gathering as one ever saw. The hall was prettily decorated with the national colors and the stage was set with palms and ferns. Dancing was continued until 11 o'clock, when the young people departed for their homes. The general manager of the affair was Major Francis J. Haggerty.

MAJOR FRANCIS J. HAGGERTY

THE PERSIAN GOV'T

To Comply With Russia's Ultimatum

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The Persian government today officially notified the British government that acting on the latter's advice, it would comply with the demands of the Russian ultimatum. Orders have been given for the withdrawal of the gendarmes, who were sent by Morgan Shuster, the Persian treasurer general, at the instance of the national council to seize the property of Shuh-Ez-Sultaneh, brother of the ex-shah of Persia. The Persian government will apologize to Russia. A new Persian cabinet will be formed today.

TWO ACCIDENTS

Young Men Met With Painful Injuries

Harry Audibert, a young man living at 26 Beaulieu street, received a bad cut on the leg while at his work in a local mill this forenoon. He was taken to his home and at 12.50 o'clock this afternoon the ambulance removed him to the Lowell hospital, where he received treatment.

Lost Two Fingers

Arthur Pinard, an employe of the Conway Transfer company and living at 657 Middlesex street, suffered a bad accident this afternoon, when he lost two fingers of the left hand. Mr. Pinard was unloading a beer keg at Martin Moran's saloon in Salem street, when in some unaccountable manner his fingers were caught under the heavy keg and almost severed from the hand. The ambulance was called and the injured man was removed to St. John's hospital, where the doctors amputated the two injured fingers.

BIG CLAMBAKE

We shall have an exceedingly long ballot at the primaries and a delightfully short one at the final election.

If the Manchus are massacred in China they will be made victims of a fate they dealt out to thousands of others.

The appropriation committee is right in applying the cut-off rule on demands for new appropriations. Let the demands pass over to the new city government.

Will the indictment or even the conviction of the parties who made charges against the Middlesex county ring give the county officials a clear vindication? That is a question that under present conditions the public would not answer in the affirmative.

THE SUFFRAGETTES AGAIN

The suffragettes are to resume hostilities against Premier Asquith in London. The militant tactics proposed will do no good. The British premier is very fair in this matter of woman suffrage as in every other matter. He says he does not personally believe in it, but he will not object to the fullest discussion of the matter by parliament whenever an opportunity presents itself. That means that a bill may be the subject of debate, and the time is not far distant when the British parliament will favor the extension of the franchise to women.

THE VOTERS' RESPONSIBILITY

Seldom has it happened with the introduction of the commission form of charter that so many people became candidates for the first election as we find on the ballot prepared for the primaries of Nov. 28th in this city. If a preconceived effort were made to defeat the object of the charter, no better plan could be adopted than to have such a multiplicity of candidates, a large proportion of whom are wholly ineligible and unfit for the offices they seek.

The task before the voters at the primaries will, therefore, be one of great difficulty, and one in which they will have to exercise unusually good judgment in order to secure satisfactory results.

To be plain about this matter, the interests of the city are at stake, and unless the voters decide to adopt heroic measures we shall see the main object of the charter defeated. It is time, therefore, to talk plainly to the voters and to say that unless these undesirable candidates be turned down and wholly ignored at the primaries it will be impossible to select the best men who are up for office.

The new charter gives the voters a larger list to select from than did the old. There is ample material from which to select a first class city government, but the great trouble is, that the voters are liable to be misled by the great number of undesirable candidates who are going from house to house, stirring up excitement, appealing for votes and telling the people that they, the candidates, have a chance of election.

The old custom of voting for those who make a house to house canvass or who buttonhole the voters along the streets should be abandoned in the present case. It is very evident that the best men who are up for office, and the most desirable men to select for public office, can never adopt this method of campaigning. What then is to be the result if the voters support the undesirable candidates whose reputation extends only to their own precinct or at most to their own ward? It will simply operate against the movement for better city government. Let the voters concentrate upon the strong candidates, men whose reputation is known throughout the city, men who are known to be capable, honest and trustworthy and who have had the experience necessary to fit them for the position they seek. Unless the voters adopt this course they cannot possibly elect a city government that will conduct the city's business in a thoroughly honest, efficient and progressive manner.

It would appear that some directing mentor is needed to name the strongest men on the ticket. The Sun could easily do so, but declines for the reason that its judgment might not be accepted, and the attempt might make a bad matter worse. Besides, it would hardly be fair for a newspaper to single out any number of men as those most worthy of support at the polls. The voters have certain rights that should not be interfered with, and one of these is perfect freedom of choice. They will have ample opportunity in the coming primaries to exercise that right without the slightest restriction, and the result will show whether they use that privilege in the interest of good government or the reverse. There are a few days left in which the voters can make inquiries of disinterested parties as to who the best candidates are. The Sun will publish brief sketches of the candidates for the information of the voters. Thus the latter may be able to get the information that will guide them in making a wise selection at the polls.

We cannot under present conditions approve any movement for a good government association which would be liable to split the electorate on lines far more objectionable than the political party labels. Therefore, in this case we must depend entirely upon the patriotism, the local pride and the good judgment of the voters, confident that they will select none but good and capable men for the various elective offices.

There are so many democrats up for nomination that very few can hope to be nominated. We presume, therefore, that after the primaries they will blame the charter, but the responsibility rests on their own shoulders. If they all want to be candidates it is obvious that the number to be nominated will be inversely small. If they thus defeat themselves by an over-weening desire for office they need not blame the charter for their mistake. The party designations have been abolished, and nobody is now to be considered on party lines. In the present election it is to be hoped that the voters will pass upon the candidates on the basis of merit alone, so that we may have a municipal board and a school committee made up of men fully competent by training and experience to conduct the business of the city in a manner that will reflect credit upon themselves and demonstrate the superiority of the new system of government to be introduced on January first of next year.

SEEN AND HEARD

"Your age, please?" said Registrar Evans to a somewhat portly woman who advanced to his window in the office of the board of registrars. "I'm twenty-one," said the woman. "It would be to your interest to tell the whole truth and nothing but—"

"I'm fifty-one," said the woman, interrupting the genial George in his little speech. Here's another one in which Mr. Evans figured. He was going out to "grab some cats" when a woman accosted him. "I have been waiting here for more than an hour," she said, "and I'm awfully tired. I wish I could get registered. I want to go home and prepare the evening meal."

"Even registrars of voters have to eat," said Mr. Evans. "If I should open the office for you there are fifty others who would want to come in. I am going to lunch. Forget the lunch," said the woman. "Think of the lovely dinner you will have on Thanksgiving day, and it is only a couple of weeks away."

Needless to say that Mr. Evans "beat it" for the restaurant without further ceremony.

If pigeons had the right of suffrage there is many a flock that would vote in a body against the continuance of confetti as a wedding appurtenance. They are the pigeons that dwell in church towers.

"It is only when confetti usurps the place of rice that they hold a grudge against it," a sexton said. Since bridal parties took to showering the bride with confetti the quantity of rice thrown has diminished by half. The birds miss it. Formerly they had a chance to gorge on rice after every big wedding. They were a knowing lot and could scent a wedding party two blocks away.

"I always give my husband a box of cigars on his birthday, and they don't cost me a cent," said the woman. "You know, men never realize how much they smoke. My husband always has a box of his favorite brand in his cigarette, and when I take them out one at a time—I mean one each day, he never misses them. I save one of the old boxes and by the time his birthday comes around I have it full. And I give it to him and he always wants to know how I knew his favorite brand, and is tickled to death, the old goose."

ONLY A NEWSPAPER GUY
I see a man strut through a jam in a hall. Take a seat amid the speakers and chat with them all. "Is this Murphy?" I ask, "that the crowd he defies?" "No," says someone, "he's one of the newspaper guys."

I see a man start on the trail of a crook. And he scorns all assistance, but brings him to book. "My, Burns!" I inquire. Someone scornfully cries: "Burns? Naw. He's just one of them newspaper guys."

I see a man walk through the door of a show. Where great throngs are blocked by the sign S. R. O. "Is this Goodwin himself, that no ticket he buys?" "Well, hardly. He's one of those newspaper guys."

I see a man knock on a president's door. And the sign "No admittance" completely ignore. "Is this Morgan, that privacy's rights he denies?" "Morgan? Shucks! It's just one of those newspaper guys."

And some day I'll walk up the great streets of gold. And see a man enter, unquestioned and bold. "A saint?" I'll inquire. And Old Peter'll reply: "Well, I should say not, he's a newspaper guy."

—Carleton G. Garretson, in the New York Globe.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Springfield Union: Dr. Cook describes the demonstration in Copenhagen against him by saying: "A great crowd sought to shake hands with me, but were prevented by the police." Perhaps the great American public can swallow that without choking. For Dr. Cook has found that he can fool some of the people all the time, even if he cannot fool all the people some of the time.

Lawrence Telegram: Lawrence is in no position to throw stones at other cities in the commonwealth. But the newspapers of so many other cities in the commonwealth have been casting stones this way for some time that perhaps we will be forgiven if we draw attention to the fact that no one has ever claimed that there were four thousand voters on sale in this city, at have criticized Joseph Pulitzer's test of "tenseness" in awarding the prize offered each year to a reporter should consider Robert Louis Stevenson's eulogy of the divine gift of leaving out."

There are times, of course to enlarge to "play up," to satisfy public interest or to kindle it. But Mr. Pulitzer must have felt, as many feel, that there is much less danger of falling in this respect than in the stultifying concentration which puts much into little space. Every good editor wages endless war against the plague of superfluous words, and feels when all is done that he has only half succeeded. Every word printed means that another must be left out, and the history of the world to tell every day, consciousness of such prime importance as to justify the stress put upon it in Mr. Pulitzer's bequest. It is not a question of the space consumed; a story filling a page may be as terse as Tacitus, while the most terse news may be swollen with needless and meaningless words.

A MATTER OF TEMPERAMENT

The Commoner: Just before the election of 1908 Mr. Rockefeller said that he favored the radicalism of the present Mr. Bryan for the presidency. Now we know what he meant. He had examined both candidates carefully and from his standpoint he was right. Mr. Rockefeller's temperament suits Mr. Rockefeller. The latter would rather defend a suit in equity than be a defendant in a criminal prosecution.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Switzerland has been holding an election for members of the federal council. The results as usual, show a large predominance of the radical and socialist elements in the republic. As a consequence of the recent census the membership of the council has been increased from 187 to 189 seats. In the old body the extreme leftist elements held 103 seats, against 84 liberals and conservatives. For the new council 169 members were elected on the first ballot. Of these 107 were radicals, 35 Catholics, conservatives, 10 liberals of the centre, 10 socialists and 7 democrats. The second ballot gave the radicals, who are the administrative party, six out of the twenty contested seats. Thus the government has a radical majority behind it of more than fifty votes, not counting the socialists, who are always ready to cooperate with it an "advanced legislation."

The general result makes very little difference in the complexion of the council. A remarkable feature of the election, however, was the turnover in the city of Geneva from liberalism to radicalism. In the old council the city had seven members, of whom four were liberals. This time a combination of radicals, socialists and Catholics was formed, resulting in the choice of five coalition members and only one liberal on the first ballot out of the eight members allotted to the city under the new census. The liberals were defeated for both of the remaining seats on the second ballot.

The discussion which has been going on in France and Germany as to whether the government of the two countries made during the recent Moroccan dispute appeals to socialism to aid in averting war had its original impetus to either of them. The leader of the social-democrats in that body, Myhrer Troelstra, started the ball rolling with the flat footed statement that the two governments had communicated with the International Socialist Bureau of Brussels.

The hint was at once taken by the leading German socialist journal Vorwärts, which affirmed the statement even more positively. The North German Gazette and the Paris Temps contradicted the story, but then the Frankfurter Zeitung and the Paris Radical second chamber, the leader of the social-democrats in that body, Myhrer Troelstra, started the ball rolling with the flat footed statement that the two governments had communicated with the International Socialist Bureau of Brussels. # THE SUFFRAGETTES

Prefer to Go to Prison Rather Than Pay Fine

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Unrepentant suffragettes to the number of 223, many of whom are apparently still in their teens, appeared at Bow street police court today to answer for their sins of yesterday and were sentenced to fines or alternative terms of imprisonment varying from a fortnight to a month. The women invariably chose prison instead of a fine.

Counsel for the public prosecutor said he could not adequately describe the "disgraceful and discreditable scenes of organized disorder" of which the accused were guilty.

From the evidence it is quite certain that the militant suffragettes acted yesterday on a complete plan of campaign. As soon as they were released by the police drawn up in Parliament square they dispersed into small groups, who mixed with the crowds.

These were kept on the move by the police. Occasionally a missile was hurled from the middle of the throng but the police were unable to detect the thrower. This gave the militants more confidence and as they came within reach of the government officers in Whitehall and the surrounding streets the throwing of stones became more frequent and excited shouts of "Vivas for women" were raised.

At the National Liberal club on the Thames embankment the excitement reached its height. The club was full of members. These flocked to the windows as the crowds approached but were soon forced to retreat in order to avoid the showers of well aimed stones which crashed through the low windows. Many more arrests were made here and also along the Strand, where the telegraph office and operators were attacked as well as a number of the stores. Some of the suffragettes rode on horses and motor cars from which they threw stones. The newspaper offices, over a mile away, suffered in this way and in some instances the assistants succeeded in escaping but in others they appeared to seek arrest.

Somerset house, where all the public records are kept, was also attacked but its distance from the sidewalk and its formidable walls prevented much damage being done.

Most of the women arrived in court this morning carrying grips with a change of clothing in anticipation of spending a period in jail. A number of them who had broken windows of a value exceeding $50 were committed for trial at the London sessions. All of these, however, were allowed out on bail.

A poster circulated by Mrs. Rathick Lawrence calling on women to gather in their thousands "and see fair play and protect their sisters from being brutally victimized by the police in uniform and plain clothes, as they were on Black Friday, 1910, when as a result of ill usage one woman died and many were seriously injured," was produced in court.

Counsel for the government warmly condemned this as a disgraceful and unworthy production.

FUNERALS

LADD—The funeral services of Miss Alta E. Ladd were held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. Hall, 58 Highland avenue, and were largely attended by many of the friends who had made while in this city. Rev. Selden W. Cummings spoke at the services in a most beautiful manner, telling of her loving disposition and her wonderful capacity for making friends. He reviewed her course at the Lowell General hospital and after her graduating the term spent at the Floating hospital in Boston, in search of further knowledge. Miss Ladd returned to Lowell after leaving the hospital in Boston and practiced her profession. On her second case, one of pneumonia, she was herself stricken with the disease and died a few days later, a sacrifice to her profession. Mrs. Ladd sang "Over the River" and "My Heavenly Home" and "Some Sweet Day," in a most impressive manner.

GREEN—The funeral of Mrs. Gertrude E. Green took place Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the rooms of Undertaker George W. Healey, 73 Branch street. The services were conducted by Rev. Asa R. Ditts, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church. The remains were taken to Mount Auburn cemetery, Cambridge, Mass., Wednesday morning and burial took place this afternoon in the Edison cemetery.

SULLIVAN—The funeral of the late Mrs. Maria Sullivan took place this morning at 9 o'clock from her home, 12 Lane street, and was largely attended. The cortege proceeded to St. Peter's church, where at 9 o'clock a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. W. George Mullin, assisted by Rev. John Burns as deacon and Rev. John O'Brien as subdeacon. The choir under the direction of Mr. James P. Donnelly sang the Gregorian mass, the solos being sustained by Miss Whiteley and Mr. Donnelly. Mrs. Josephine McKenney presided at the organ. Among the floral tributes were a beautiful wreath from the daughter of deceased, Miss Margaret Sullivan, and a large spray from Mrs. A. E. Sanborn. The bearers were Michael Keefe, James O'Brien, Frank Riley, Philip Gity, John Duffy and James Donovan. At the grave Rev. Fr. Mullin read the committal prayers, and the burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery, in charge of Undertakers J. F. O'Donnell & Sons.

PENDERGAST—The funeral of John H. Pendergast took place this morning from his late home, 4 Cross street avenue at 8.30, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. The cortege proceeded to St. Patrick's church, where a high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock by Rev. Timothy Callahan. The choir sang the Gregorian mass and as the body was being borne from the church the choir sang "De Profundis." Miss Alice Murphy and Mr. Andrew McCarthy sustaining the solos. Mr. Michael Johnson presided at the organ. Among the many beautiful floral tributes were: large wreath from family; large cross inscribed "D. T. U. Local 85," from from Susan C. Lynch, James R. Donnelly, J. H. Sheppard, Jennie Gleason and James J. Gaffney. The bearers were John Dunally, John Coulon, Chas. Earley, James J. Gaffney, Frederick Hammond and Thomas Hadley of Lawrence, Mass. In attendance at the funeral were a delegation from Court General Shields, P. of A. consisting of James Fyfe, James Lang, Frank Lang and John Hulme; delegation from Bartenders' union local 55, Frank McMahon, Patrick Meslin, Redmond Sullivan and Michael McFarland. Interment was in St. Patrick's cemetery, Rev. Timothy Callahan read the committal prayers. The funeral was in charge of Undertaker Peter H. Savage. COMPLETE REVELATION TO MANY PEOPLE

Among the many statements made in connection with the introduction of "Tona Vita" the new tonic that is accomplishing such remarkable results in Lowell, none is more interesting than the following by Mrs. James R. Borge, of No. 58 Grand street. "Mrs. Borge said: 'I have been complaining for the past three years. I have been almost continually during that period, but with no success. I had dull headaches and I felt so tired that I hated to be on my feet. My condition grew serious. I took all kinds of medicine, but nothing seemed to help me. I bought a bottle of "Tona Vita" and took it for the first time, and is establishing as great a record in the larger cities of this country as the original did in Europe. Specialists are stationed at the Hall & Lyon Drug Co., where they are meeting a tremendous number of people each day and explaining the nature of their remarkable preparation. The sale of this medicine is now the biggest thing of the kind ever seen in Lowell and each succeeding day marks an increase of interest. "Tona Vita" is proving a complete revelation to the thousands of men and women in the city who did not know exactly what was the matter with them. It would be worth anybody's time to visit the Hall & Lyon Drug Co., the exclusive agents for Lowell, and inspect the large numbers of testimonials from those who have been benefited by the new tonic, and who have undoubtedly faith in it as a remedy of unusual value. These specialists are on hand to meet the public from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m."

Good Centers Are Not Numerous This Season

TACKLING IMPORTANT TO FOOTBALL MEN

By TOMMY CLARK.

IN going over the list of centers this season one finds that there is a scarcity of good men for the position. Years ago under the old rules the middle man on the line was generally a place for the fattest boy of the school. The new code has given that doctrine a black eye. The center who is fit for the part these days must be an athletic youngster who can run, tackle, pass the ball well, fit in more ways than one and generally prove his usefulness.

The center who plays good football under the new code must combine quickness of body with quickness of thought. While the passing of the ball still devolves upon him as it has in the past, the new centers have shown such remarkable ability to play fine defensive football that they have revolutionized every idea that had been in vogue as to the duties of the position.

Those whose playing has stood out this year are Morris of Penn., Weems of Annapolis, and Bluethenthal of Princeton. The last mentioned is the best middle man in the east this season. In the west Morrill of Minnesota is the leader. Others who have shown up very well are Storer of Harvard, Whyte of Cornell, Walmsley of Westmore, and other things intended to put ginger into the football players and make them fight harder for their college and victory.

To the modern game of football organized yelling and singing and the coaching of rosters are just as essential as the coaching of the players themselves. Straggling yells out of tune don't reach the players; hence they carry no ginger and do no good. In the stands there must be team work just as there must be team work among the men struggling with a ball back and forth across the white lines. The college or school without its band of organized rosters and squad of yell leaders isn't on the football map. Watch these yell leaders and one soon realizes that it isn't the easiest work done in the world. These rooting coaches never see more than mere glimpses of the game. The chief thing they see is the enemy ripping through for good gains. Then it's "Hold that line! Hold that line!" Brandishing their hands faster and more wildly than the most eccentric of band leaders, these yell leaders then put in a busy five minutes perhaps. Another glance and the line has held. Then it's "Block that kick! Block that kick!"

Next, perhaps, will come a series of good old college yells, yells that must drown out the enemy's rooting; otherwise they are useless. These are shouted just to let the team know that the rosters are still there, pulling, shouting and fighting for them to win.

No rest at it for the yell leaders.

Their hands, mouths and bodies are going all the time, before the game, between halves and between quarters. They must know music, too, and when a song signal is given by the band the rosters are led as a chorus.

MINNESOTA HAS NEW IDEA IN ATHLETICS.

Dick Grant, the old Harvard university runner, at present coaching the University of Minnesota athletes, has sprung a new idea in the athletic game by combining Bible study with athletic training.

FIRST FOOTBALL GAME WITH RULES.

The first football game to be played with any kind of rules was that between Columbia and Yale in 1872.

TACKLING, which is one of the most important individual plays in modern football, is one of the things which seem to be receiving scant attention from many western coaches. Under the new rules practically every tackle made in an open field one, no hard, accurate tugging of the runner but become more and more important until at present it is to be doubted if there is a more important individual play.

Western coaches have been rather negligent in teaching their men how to perform this most difficult feat, and the schools of this division which have achieved any portion of fame through the ability of their men in this particular might be counted upon the fingers of one hand. Michigan, Illinois and Notre Dame are three schools in which hard, deadly tackling is the first thing instilled into candidates for gridiron honors, and every year the men of these three squads need give no odds to eastern teams in this respect.

One of the most important rules concerning tackling was made in 1910 and was in force last season. Yet this rule was scarcely ever enforced by officials, and coaches have practically agreed among themselves to take no cognizance of the paragraph.

The revised rule is as follows: "A player when tackling an opponent must have one foot at least on the ground."

This was aimed at the flying tackle, which some persons believed to be dangerous both for the man making it and for the one thrown by it. It came in the sweeping revision of 1909 and apparently was slipped in while the students of the game had their minds elsewhere, for scores of former players and present coaches who have been asked their opinions of the flying tackle fewer than 10 per cent have declared they thought the flying tackle a dangerous play, while more than 50 per cent have declared the flying tackle less likely to result in injuries to players than the ordinary standing check.

A flying tackle, as its name implies, is made by a player "on the fly"—that is, it is a diving tackle, the man making it often taking both feet off the ground before he hits the man carrying the ball and calling through the air with almost irresistible force.

It is one of the most difficult tackles to avoid, for the stiff arm is practically useless against it. The tackler comes sweeping in low, where the leverage of the stiff arm is practically a minus quantity, and the force gathered in springing through the air is far greater than could be obtained by a man standing firmly on both feet.

Of course if the tackle is started too soon it can be easily avoided, for the man making it naturally cannot change his course once his feet have left the ground, but if made an instant too late all the man carrying the ball must do is to sidestep it.

Flying tackles are essentially open field plays, and as the game under the new rules is practically entirely played in the open field the flying tackle has come to be used more and more in the game. It is a dangerous play, and off tackle and around end plays are more easily stopped by the dive than by a piling up.

Tackles in the day of line plungers were usually made by linemen who had both feet on the ground. They checked the runner for an instant, and in this instant came the push and pull of the mass play, which probably resulted in more injuries to players than any other part of the game with the exception of the deadly body check.

Harvard used a tackle in 1905 which combined all the good qualities of the flying dive, while it was strictly within the rules. Instead of leaving the ground with both feet the Crimson players converted the dive into a lunge, keeping one foot on the ground, and thus obtained the leverage of a purchase on the ground the instant they hit the man carrying the ball.

It takes the exceptional player to execute this well, however, and only a few weeks of attempts. Yale used it to a slight extent last year, as did Harvard and Princeton, but when sure tackles were imperative the men instinctively reverted to the use of the flying tackle.

More than one old player is of the opinion that the flying tackle, properly made, is less dangerous than any other sort. It is undoubtedly the prettiest play on the gridiron, and spectators will applaud a perfectly made flying tackle quicker than they will any other thing. It is a noticeable fact that few men who are masters of the flying tackle ever have been injured in using it, the great percentage of injuries resulting from it coming rather as the result of its misuse than its use.

"To my mind, the flying tackle is one of the safest possible ways to stop a runner," declared a former star recently. "It is quick and sure, and if the man running with the ball has been taught how to fall he is in little danger. I have used the tackle myself in all the football I ever played, and most of the men against whom I played have used it also, yet I never received an injury."

"When a runner is hit hard and dumped quickly there is no chance of his regaining his feet and so no necessity for 'piling on.' On the other hand, an inexperienced tackler catching a man in a gentle manner in such a way as not to cause him to lose his feet the instant he is touched is in need of help from his teammates. Players of the side carrying the ball naturally rush to aid their comrade with the ball, and this results in the mass play.

"The flying tackle is made at a point below the center of mass of the man carrying the ball in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred. This naturally slams the man to the ground in short order and the play is all over. With a standing tackle the man carrying the ball is hit above the center of mass and balance and is able to keep his feet to a far greater extent. A man hit hard and thrown to the ground is far less liable to injury than one who struggles in the grasp of an opponent and often is involved in the center of a struggling mass."

Few coaches or officials take cognizance of the rule forbidding the flying tackle. A prominent western coach was asked last season immediately upon the promulgation of the rule forbidding the play what tackle he would teach his men.

"That depends altogether upon how strictly the rule is enforced," was his answer. "There is one man, however, who will be taught the flying tackle as much as I ever taught it before the football back. All his tackles are made when the man carrying the ball has passed the line of scrimmage and he is the only defender of the goal line. The penalty for violation of the rule is five yards. I figure that I would rather take a certain penalty of five yards for the violation of the rule than take a chance of teaching this sole defender of my goal a less efficient tackle than the dive. The penalty is easier every time."

Officials found it well nigh impossible to enforce the rule last season and after a few ineffectual attempts desisted. A tackle is the work of an instant, and it would be difficult to tell whether the man making the play had one foot on the ground, as is the task of the baseball official in calling plays at first base. The football referee, however, never is in as favorable a position as the baseball arbiter and is seldom willing to call a foul.

Of course flagrant violations are penalized and will continue to be, but flagrant violations are as much an offense against the perfection of the play as they are against the rule itself and seldom occur with good coaching.

Michigan, Notre Dame and Illinois are the schools which show greatest ability in the west in the art of tackling. The coaches of these schools usually lay stress upon the value of sure downing of the man with the ball and much of their early season practice is directed toward perfecting the art. The method used is strenuous, both for the tacklers and the backs. The backs are sent running down the field with the ball, and the tacklers are dispatched after them in pairs. Backs are never praised for escaping the oncoming tacklers, for the order of the day is tackling practice, and the tacklers are soundly "balled out" for failures.

GRAND CIRCUIT HORSES TO AUSTRIA.

Two of the season's best grand circuit performers will be raced in Austria next year. John E. Madden has sold Soprano, 2:03 1/4, to Leopold Housner of Vienna, the present owner of Bob Douglas, an American bred trotter. Arlo Leyburn, from the Geers stable, has been sold to J. Schliersinger and will also go to Austria.

Huntington, Harvard's Little Fullback, Strongest Man In Football

A MASSACHUSETTS boy, fullback of the Crimson football squad and the lightest man who ever played the position, is this year's strong man at Harvard. He is Frederic Dane Huntington of Leicester, Mass., twenty-one years old, 163 1/2 pounds on the scales, 5 feet 7 1/2 inches high and "nothing but muscle." His record for the strength test shows a superiority of 200 points over Jack Johnson.

Young Huntington's astonishing

The Sargent methods include points for strength of legs, arms, back, chest and lungs; weight also figuring in the calculations. With his legs Huntington is able to lift 1,262 pounds, and with his back 584 pounds. With a short intermission after these feats he "chins" himself sixteen times, and with one minute's respite after that he "dips" twenty-five times. Other Huntington statistics are: Capacity of lungs, 200; strength of lungs, 24; strength of right forearm, 65; strength of left forearm, strength was determined by a series of tests conducted under the system employed by Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, director of the Heminway gymnasium, and a strength expert who has measured the brawn of many athletes who have held the public eye, among them John L. Sullivan, Yusuf, Sandow, James J. Jeffries and Jack Johnson. His record under the Sargent test is 1,302.2 points, ninety-four more than those of his teammate, F. H. Leslie, whom he displaces as the Crimson's strongest student. In addition to excellent the negro pugilist in brawn, this young son of Harvard also compares favorably with Jeffries and Sandow.

Besides holding the position of fullback on the football eleven the Leicester boy is captain of this year's hockey seven and is prominent in other Harvard sports. In comparison to him some of the other brawny Harvard men are almost puny. Captain Fisher, who was an All-America guard last year, for instance, did not come within 400 points of Huntington in the Sargent test.

Last year's strong man, Leslie, was second this year with a record of 1,209.2; W. J. Gardner third with 1,132, and H. B. Gardner fourth with 1,040.

THORPE AN ALL AROUND ATHLETE

THE 1911 football season has brought into the public eye a young Indian student at the Carlisle school who promises to become one of the greatest athletes the world has ever seen. James Thorpe, a Sac and Fox from Oklahoma, went to Carlisle in 1908 with no knowledge whatever of athletics, and since then he has accomplished a variety of athletic feats on floor, gridiron, diamond, track and in the field.

Thorpe is a basketball player, at which game he fills the center position with remarkable skill. He is a baseball pitcher of great talent and covers any of the sacks or outfield as well as many professionals. He can put the sixteen pound shot 43 feet and broad jumps 22 feet 10 inches, having done much better in practice. He can run 100 yards in 10 seconds, his school record being 10 1/5. When he tries the high jump his measure is 6 feet, but he has done better than that. The high hurdles are easy for him in 15 4/5 seconds, while the 220 yard hurdles he negotiates in 28 seconds.

This youthful redskin hunts, plays lacrosse, tennis, indoor baseball, handball, hockey, all with equal skill, and can fill almost any position on a football team with credit. As football halfback he is probably seen at his best. One great coach said after seeing him play at Pittsburgh that it was worth five times the admission to a game to see Thorpe tear down the field for one spurt.

"Silk" O'Loughlin Tells One on Umpire McCarthy

UMPIRE "Silk" O'Loughlin tells this one on Jack McCarthy, umpire in the American league in 1905, considered one of the wildest arbitrators that ever officiated in the circuit.

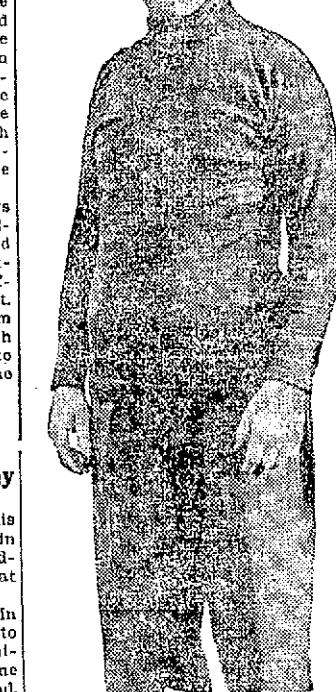

"Jack had just finished a series in Cleveland, where he had bumped into a peak of trouble. The decision uniformly had gone against the home fans, and they were in an ugly mood. Jack was a born fighter. He wouldn't take anything from anybody, either ball player or fans. He went to the mat with several obstreperous fans and came out the winner, but he shrugged his shoulders when one mentioned Cleveland to him. We had just finished a series in Chicago and were on the way to Boston. We were nearing a town when Jack looked out the window and asked what the name of the city was. 'That is Cleveland,' said the porter. Jack shut his eyes and said, 'Let me know when we are through.'"

Maxims For the Gridiron

monuments have their uses, but not on the football field.

Use your "searchlights." The rules say, "Keep one foot on the ground when making a tackle," but that does not mean that you should grow there.

One man only is needed to carry the ball, but it is mighty hard going for him unless he is ably assisted by his teammates.

Do not get discouraged at strong opposition. Keep up your courage and determination when the game seems to be going against you. The team that has met and surmounted strong opposition and difficulties is the team worth while.

A universal rule for tackling—never let anything get away from you. Do not hesitate; "no to it," carry the fight into the enemy's country.

Remember, it is not what you did in your last game or last year that is going to win the day, but what you do now. You will get out of the game just about what you put into it.

Play the game fair. You will have so much more confidence in yourself and far more enthusiasm for your work.

The spirit of the contest is half the battle, so have plenty of spirit, but "no spirits."

UMPIRE BILL EVANS KNOWS WHY FANS BECOME WILD

"NOW I know how it feels to see a decision go against one's favorite. Now I know why the baseball fan acts like a wild man," said Umpire Bill Evans during one of the world's series games.

"I never understood until now the sensations endured by the spectators at a ball game. I don't believe I have had a headache for ten years until this series."

"It's funny what a difference there is between the views of an umpire and a spectator. On the ball field I feel no thrill. It is a cold blooded mechanical affair from that point of view. I have no preference. It is no trouble being impartial. In the world's series in which I was an umpire I felt no different from the way I felt during any game of the regular American league season.

"But what a difference there is to a ball game when one becomes a spectator and a fan. It's a vastly changed game then, a thing of beauty, of skill, a game which thrills and inspires."

Bill was thrilled. He had never looked at an important contest from the fans' point of view before. He was one of the wildest fans. He shouted and howled when Baker's home runs turned the tide of the second and third games. He groaned when the Giants scored the winning run of the fifth game and when Murphy's error let the Giants score the first run of the final game.

He watched every action of players and umpires. He passed opinions on the decisions of the arbitrators like any rabid fan, never failing to express disapproval when he thought the decisions against the Athletics.

For the first time in his life he knew the feelings which make of the average mild individual a raving maniac when once the real baseball fever hits him.

Bill's ideas have changed vastly. "This has the umpire's job beaten a mile," he declared after the Athletics had settled the championship beyond doubt and he had wiped away the perspiration which had gathered during the early exciting periods of that decisive contest.
